Grand Opera House Pittsburg

Next week James E. Wilson, the leading man of the Grand Opera House stock company, bids farewell to Pitts-burg. The play chosen for his final week is one that gives him exceptional opportunities, and his last appearances will doubtless be the occasion for crow-ded houses all week at the Grand. The play is "In Mizzoura", a Nat Good-win success, and Mr. Wilson, who does all things well, is always at his best when following in Mr. Goodwin's roles. He has achieved big successes in those previously produced by the stock com-pany, and "In Mizzoura" gives him a role that is particularly adapted to his ability.
