army of mackerel successfully co ner a shoal of small fry in a rocky shallow pool which was a cul de sac. The mackerel swam behind their victims in serried ranks, a company of hungry, determined creatures, intent upon a gorging feast to which there need be no limit. They had followed the fry for miles maybe, merely swal-lowing one here and one there to keep their appetites whetted. Now they had cornered them where there was no escape for their victims. urassed companions beneath .-- Long

The Old Way of Shrinking Them of and the Modern Way. The old way of putting a tire on wheel was to shrink it on. The tire was made just a trifle smaller than the theel and then heated, with the result of expanding it slightly. When thus neated it was crowded down over the rim of the wheel and then cooled with water to keep it from burning the wheel and also to contract it. Coolng, it was shrunk on to bind the wheel ire setting press. By this method the tire is made jus ightly. The modern way of putting a ire on a wheel is with a hydraulic a trifle larger than the wheel, so that it will go over the rim freely. The bed of this press, upon which the wheel lies horizontally, with an openng at the center for the hub, is com-posed of 18 sections, radiating from the center and in shape like the spaces between the spokes of a wheel. The uter end of each section is turned up ward, the turned up ends making a continuous flange, or collar, all around the bed of the press. Each one of the sections has under it a hydraulic cylinler, and the sections are all arrange to work to a common center. In use the wheel is laid on the press with the old tire around it within that turned up collar, or flange, around the edge When the press is set in operation, the collar, or flange, is irresistibly contracted. When it comes in contact with the ire around the wheel, it does not bring up against it, but keeps on contracting just the same, now contracting the tire as well and setting it upon the until the wheel itself has been brought to the requisite degree of dishing. New York Sun. Photographed by Earth Light who loves to watch the
