Pianos Tuned, Voiced and Regulated.

Now is the time to have your Piano looked after. You want a reliable man to do the work, not one that is here today and gone tomorrow. ## FIGURED BY NATURE

PORTRAITS IN THE WALL OF THE FAMOUS MARBLE ROOM.

A Slab of Stone in the Treasury Department That Shows a Perfect Profile of Queen Victoria and Other Interesting Pictures.

The often repeated statement that Uncle Sam is without sentiment is illustrated in a measure in the treasury department. The famous marble room, which cost the government $800,000, although still a place of beauty, is no longer an ornamental chamber only. The room around which tradition has woven many a curious tale and the room in which the great Grant received the guests who attended his first inaugural ball, is now used as a cash room.

Long years ago, when the architect who planned the interior of the room saw his dream realized, when the painters and decorators had completed their labors and visitors were allowed to gaze upon its magnificence, it was declared to be the finest room in the country. Men and women of national and international fame have danced upon the marble floors, and today stand prosaic counters and desks. The pretty gallery in which the famous beautiful women of these days are shown, the marble slabs and beams carried on fluted columns, is still retained. But it is empty, and no one, unless it be the spirits of those who once adorned the room, looks down on the small army of employees who handle $20,000,000 each year before it is distributed throughout the United States.

This famous room of the treasury department has been used for this purpose for a number of years. The growing demands of the department made this necessary, but the place has not lost reputation even if it has become one of the government's workshops.

The marble room of the treasury department is known far and wide and is a feature of interest to visitors on a tour of inspection of the building. The interior is constructed of marble brought from sunny Italy, from France and from Vermont.

F. E. Spinner was treasurer when the room was built. W. H. West was chief clerk, and A. B. Mott was its supervising architect. Hugh McCulloch was secretary of the treasury, and his assistants were W. E. Chandler and J. F. Hartly. This information is proclaimed by two marble slabs placed above the doors. All the marble is without doubt the most magnificent that could be obtained. One of the squares, however, is particularly remarkable. It is a beautiful specimen of black Vermont marble. A crack runs through the middle of this square, the most remarkable feature in the room. On it, as though drawn by an artist, is a picture of Queen Victoria, a full life sized figure of an old Quakeress and the head and shoulders of a French soldier, with his little round cap set jauntily on the side of his head, fastened with a cord that runs down the side of the face and under the chin.

The discovery of the faces and figures on the marble was made by Messenger W. R. Elliott. One day, while seated in front of the square, he was startled by the lines of alternate black and white forming the figure of the old Quakeress. A full side view of the old woman is shown. The traditional poke and bonnet is pictured, a shawl covers the slightly drooped shoulders, and the hands are folded completely in front of the body. It needs no steady gaze to bring out the picture. It is as perfect as though drawn by a master hand.

The face of Queen Victoria is also remarkably true to life. It requires no effort of imagination to draw out the contour of her face. Only the profile and a small portion of the shoulders are displayed. The face of Queen Victoria on the marble has given the officials no end of amusement. Several years ago, while a number of young English women who had visited this country for the purpose of attending a Christian Endeavor convention were being taken through the treasury department, they were shown the face of their beloved queen. They were greatly amazed at the likeness, and many exclamations of love and veneration were expressed. While admiring the queer designing of nature one of the young women declared that the English government should purchase the marble square.

The picture of the French soldier is shown in the lower right hand corner of the square. The figure is half life size and is in profile, like the other two. The shoulders are thrown back just as they are drawn by famous French military artists. Nothing French is more truly drawn than the round cap which is set half over the left ear. There are other curious figures to be found on the square. Dogs, birds and grotesque figures can easily be traced by following the lines—Washington Post.
