President McKinley, on Thursday, received the following telegram from W. J. Bryan:

"At the close of another Presidential campaigne it is my lot to congratulate you upon a second victory."

Stalwarts, insurgents ar. Democrats are still engaged in figuring on the result of the legislative contests in this State. They all play on the same chees board, but they move the men differently and the combinations are much at variance with each other. Each has a different view point, and the conclusions are in most cases just what the man who is doing the figuring desires. Later and more complete returns from several districes which were close have altered the original estimates, and it is now privately admitted that the contest for the vacant seat in the United States Senate is exceedingly close, with the odds in favor of Quay. The stalwart leaders will not admit that there is any doubt, but they are aware that they must depend almost entirely upon what are known as anti-Quay caucus men, those who will go into the Kepublican caucus, yote against Quay and abide by the decision of the majority.—Ex.
