C. E. MILLER, SHOE MAN Makes a Grand Offer to the Trade.

A GREAT REMODELLING SALE We Must Have Money, We Must Have Room.

We are making a big change in our building. New basement new front, another story and a large addition on the rear. Our large and increasing trade makes it necessary for us to make this change, and to make this change we need money and room. Our fall goods are all in and our building is packed from cellar to roof. While we don't prospose to lose any money on these fresh, seasonable goods, we intend cutting our profits so as to make this large stock move quickly. To our old trade we just have to say to them, we are going to close some goods cheap; they know what it means. TO OUR NEW FRIENDS.

We wish to say that when we advertise a sale of goods it genuine and the trade knows it and approves and profits by it. We wish to impress on your minds that just now we are having a Great Sale of Shoes, just such as you need at this time of the year. Better take advantage of this sale.

ROUND BARNS.

Advantages Claimed For a Roun Barn Inclosing Round Silos.

Drawing some comparisons between the round and the square barn, Colone

F. D. Curtis of Wisconsin writes to

The National Stockman and Farmer as follows: A neighbor is building one of the square order 30 by 60 feet, stone basement, stalls for 36 cattle, frame about 20 feet high to roof, requiring 1,000 feet of lumber for frame. It is 180 feet around it and has an area of 1,800 feet. A round barn 60 feet in diameter may have a stone basement and same height above, more or less. It will not take half as much lumber for its frame nor half as much labor to frame and put it up and be vastly stronger when completed. The area or space it incloses is 2,700 feet-half as much again as the square one compar ed with, and the area of the walls will be the same. It will give space for 4 to 45 cattle stalls instead of 36 in the square barn, room for two round silos

16 feet each in diameter, if properly filled holding not less than 300 tons, lo cated as near as possible in the cente of the circle of the stock to consume the silage, saving more than half of the labor of feeding silage when stored outside the stable. The plan of basement here proposed is designed to make 30 to 50 cattle comfortable in winter. The outside circle represents the wall of the barn. Preferably I would have a circular row of stalls around the outside, but this i broken in upon to give room to drive in a horse and cart-drive around and out the same door to clean out the stable. The stall partitions are to be hung to a 2 by 10 piece of studding in the partition, the ends of the stud to slide into slots in the floor above and below, confining the cow in the stall by a chain behind her.

Preferably I would grade into a bank 16 feet high above the basement, which would give space for a room between the stable and the floor above. It will be well if we can get an eight foot bank to drive in over the basement, better if we can get 16 feet and still better if we can get 24 feet to the gable. If a ridge roof with a third pitch, it would give us about 20 feet to the ridge of the roof where we would have a hay carrier. Our silos going into the earth ten feet below the stable could stop at the top floor or could go some ten feet more to the support of the purline, "high enough to weight

A silo located as here recommended Sowing Timothy.

In my opinion there is no better way of getting a good stand of timothy than to put the ground in good order and sow the seed about the last week in September or first of October, one bushel to six acres. I have sown in corn the last time I worked the corn and got the best kind of a stand of timothy and clover, remarks a corre-
