In the selection of a piano, look them over well. Don't take the salesman's word for them; use a little good judgment of your own. If the case is a flashy one, made of pine wood and well covered with paint, make up your mind the piano is simply a "thump box," worthless as a piano, made simply to give the party selling you the instrument a large profit and you are the victim.

First-class pianos are made of the best material all the way through. The cases are made of hard wood throughout and everyth, ing accordingly. In your examination of the Chase Bros., Hackley and Carlisle Piant's you will find them first-class in material and workmanship. We make no pine case pianos. We are ready to give you a new piano at any time should one prove defective. Call and see us and look the pianos over inside and out.
