declares an ardent student of the ways of birds and beasts. He says: "Several years ago it was my fortune to capture two young eagles of the baldhead species. When meat was thrown into the room where they were confined, the male showed plainly how great was his desire to pounce upon it, but a glance from his sister was sufficient to keep him rooted to the perch until she had finished. When beef and other similar meals were given them, this easy victory for the fair sex was the rule, but when a fish was introduced it was only after a flerce fight that the female succeeded in rem ing her brother of the respect due her. "A pair of young great horned owls which I at one time owned had also displayed this female domination. I fed them principally on live rats, and when they were turned loose in the room the male retained a stolid and indifferent pose upon his perch until the female had satisfied her hunger, after which he would dispatch what was left. Many other are the instances among the ea-gles, hawks and owls in which the fe-male bird is the master of the situation."-Baltimore Sun.

In three years he came into port a least 12 times, and he never brought less than $30,000 worth of stuff. He did not always have the same junk, tin. but his men were always the same. His money was of all B4tions and all coinage, and it was fair to believe that he robbed all alike. As there were no charges against him I did not think best to say anything ashore, and so Whang Ton arrived and departed without let or hindrance. On what turned out to be his last visit, so far as I know, he brought only about $10,000 t be exchanged, and he informed me that he had decided to leave the sea and settle down ashore. He was more com-municative than I had ever known him to be before, but there were only two or three points I remembered after ward. One was his retirement from trade, and the other was about a Philippine craft lying astern of him. She had brought in $28,000 to be exchanged, and I was to put the money aboard of her that evening. He asked many questions about her, as I remembered later, and I answered all as far as could and gave no weight to the mat-While I received and shipped mostly between 9 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m., it happened now and then that a craft wanted to sail after hours, and so I stretched a point in her favor and charged a percentage. This percentage was to cover my increased risk. In the case of the Philippine craft the money was to be on board at 6 o'clock, which was an hour after dark at that season of the year. It was placed in the launch at 4:30, and I steamed out to a Malay craft and counted and re sealed the $28,000 she had aboard. Then I spent 15 minutes talking with the captain of an American whaler and was ready to run down and get rid of my cargo. I had to pass Whang Ton's funk en route, and he was on the lookout for me. He said he had overlooked a box containing about a thousand dollars and was anxious to have it count-ed and credited with the rest. As he had a basket of wine and a box of cigars for me, I could not well refuse and I went aboard with my two clerks to rush the count through. Five armed men were left in the launch, and I had no anxiety. We had counted half the money and old Whang Ton was standing by with a grin on his face when five or six natives who had sneaked in-to the cabin suddenly flung themselves upon us, and we were made prisoners. At the same moment a dozen of the crew dropped over the rail into the aunch and made a flerce attack, and n two minutes she was captured and her crew passed up. Then followed the treasure, and as the launch was se cured alongside the junk lifted anchor and set sail for the north. The boldness of the trick compelled success. The old pirate smilingly informed me that no one would be hurt and that his only object was the money, and after I had got over swearing and threaten-neo, a three legged living skeleton and ing and realized my helplessness we

When Hurry Was the Fashion. The following extract from the Lon-don Times of May 14, 1801, gives an interesting picture of the good old days: "It is now the high fashion to run, or at least to frot, through the streets at a rate of six miles an hour. A running walk is absolutely necessary for any young man who has the least for any young man who has the least pretession to ton. You must lounge in a hurry and sauntar with expedition. It is an old proverb, the more haste the worst speed, but Bond screet daily shows us the more hurry the less to do.
