

Piecing.

That's a word which may not be in the dictionary in this sense of its use, but which is in very common use in some sections of the country. "She's always piecing" they say of the woman who runs to the cupboard at irregular hours and eats a piece of pie, cake, or some other dainty. This irregular eating is one of the chief causes of dyspepsia and "weak" stomach.

Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are completely cured by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the supply of rich, pure blood, and gives the body vitality and vigor.

"A year ago I was feeling very badly," writes Mrs. Lizzie Abney, of 25 Johnson Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. "I had a very poor appetite and when I sat down at the table I could not eat, but would have to go away without even touching the food. Chasing to bed, from a friend who used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I bought a bottle to try. I thought I would give the medicine a trial, and I can hardly express the benefit received. From the first dose seemed to do me good. My appetite returned and I was able to eat. I have improved so much since taking the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I do not look like the same person. Am to-day well and strong—the result of taking the bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

uses Walker's Soap because it is free from alkali and saves the company thousands of dollars in a year in preserving paint, varnish, and fabrics washed with it. Before the Pennsylvania Railroad used Walker's Soap, newly varnished cars were found to be shabby and need re-varnishing. The cause was a mystery till the company's chemist investigated and found it was the alkali in common soaps that was destroying property. A standard of soap purity was then set up, and now the cars are washed with

THE CELEBRATED "LEAF ANT."

One of the oddest little creatures in all animal nature is the "leaf ant" of Central America. Although different species of this oddity are known to inhabit the American continent from Brazil to Mexico, the real home of the true leaf ant is in Nicaragua. To all outward appearances this little insect is a common ant, but of a gigantic size. It must be admitted, when compared with the ants of our temperate regions, being on an average over an inch in length. The habit for which these ants are so celebrated, and one which we could hardly believe were it not for the testimony of reputable naturalists, is that of carrying a leaf for their food. Just as our women and men carry parasols and umbrellas for the same purpose.

When at work, the leaf-carrying ants march in a long line, each individual member is protected from the sun's rays by a little banner of green. Another remarkable fact in connection with this leaf-carrying ant is that it carries a leaf to its nest, and there it works at work carrying the leafy particles and umbrellas for the same purpose.

Millet and "The Angelus."

It was only after long years of struggle and dire poverty, through which Millet was consoled and supported by his wife, that the artist was able to take the three famous cottages at Barbizon and "try to do something really good." It was then that he began to paint the most beautiful "poets of poverty," "The Angelus," which is today one of the most valuable pictures in the world. Again and again he threw aside the picture, but was never deterred by it. He finally succeeded in averting his eyes from the picture, and as often his wife replaced it on the easel and induced him to continue.

On one occasion he was so annoyed by the picture that he seized a certain effect that he seized a knife and would have destroyed the canvas and ended the matter once for all had not his wife fortunately seized his hand and induced him to give the picture another trial. Thus it was that at last "The Angelus" found a place on the walls at the Louvre. The success it won encouraged Millet to paint many more pictures and thus place himself among the immortal in art.

Abraham Lincoln.

This Lincoln of the Mack Loan, who built his neighbor's cabin and hood his neighbor's corn, who had been a cooper and postman and flatboatman, who had followed a rough justice round a rough circuit, who had rolled a local bully in the dirt—respected woman from Illinois, tended the beds of a man a sick woman who feared the judgment, told coarse stories on barrels by candlelight (but these are pure legends) the rise of a new nation, addressed political mobs in the raw, swooping down from the stump and flinging embroilers east and west—the Lincoln who was one day the sick and the sick of the nation in her agony, whose large hand was to be on her feeble pulse and whose knowledge, almost divine, was to perform the miracle of her healing—Winston Churchill's "The Crispien."

A Chinese Joke.

There was a man in Ching-an who was very fond of giving dinners, but the food given was atrocious. One day a guest threw himself on his knees in front of this gentleman and said, "Am I not a friend of yours?"

"You are, indeed," replied his host.

"Then I must be one of you a favor," said the guest, "and you must grant it before I rise from my knees."

"Well, what is it?" inquired his host in amazement.

"Never to invite me to dinner any more," cried the guest, at which the whole party burst into a loud roar of laughter.—North China Herald.

Sternal Lamps.

A common superstition that the ancients possessed the art of making lamps which would burn forever for a long time obtained, and it was claimed that one such lamp was discovered in the tomb of Rosteluchus. Science, however, has long set this, together with other superstitions, forever at rest, since it has been demonstrated that the fire will not burn in a chamber from which the air has been exhausted.

A Trench Saved a Life.

The Rev. George Harvest, rector of Thames Ditton, England, was very benighted, so that on one occasion he went into a friend's house, and, seeing no servant, he rambled over it, finally entering the room of an old lady ill of a quincy. He stumbled over a clothes-horse, and the awkward man made the patient burst into such a fit of laughter that the quincy broke, and she lived many years to thank him.

Tunnels.

A New York newspaper remarks that "ferries came and ferries go, bridges rise and bridges fall, but tunnels last forever." There is a scientific truth in the observation. Of all works of man earthworks, plain earth mounds sanded over, are about the most enduring. A properly constructed tunnel is essentially a work in earth and so almost as permanent as the great globe itself.

Bostonian Bravery.

Mamma—Johnny, you've been in bathing and I told you not to.

Johnny—But if I went in to save life, mamma?

Mamma—Oh, in that case, you did right. Not by whose life did you save?

Johnny—I didn't save any life, mamma; he got away from me. It was a fish, you know, and I guess there wasn't any danger of his drowning after all.—Boston Transcript.

A Word of Caution.

"Yes, doctor, I want to see you. It's about my wife. She's got something in her throat that hurts her just as soon as she gets to talking. She's coming over to see you herself. And you'll be very careful, won't you?"

"About removing it?"

"Yes. About not removing it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Suspensions.

Caller—How are you feeling today?

Invited—Not so well, think I'll try another doctor.

Caller—What's the matter with the one you had?

Invited—I'm afraid he is acting as an advance agent for his brother, who is an undertaker.—Chicago News.

Diap's Love Her.

She (pettishly)—I don't see why you should hesitate to get married on $3,000 a year. Papa says my gowns never cost more than that.

He—But, my darling, we must have something to eat.

"Oh! Will you always thinking of your stomach?"
