*PITTSBURG EXPOSITION

PITTSBURG EXPOSITION OPEN.

Enormous Crush of Sightseers-Brilliancy of the Interior Amazes the Public.

THE NEW MUSIC HALL.

Brilliant beyond any similar event in the smooky City was the opening on the evening of Wednesday, September 4, of the new Pittsburg Exposition, and so enormous was the crush of sightseers that moving about at times was almost impossible. Manager Fitzpatrick declares without reserve that the throng that was present on this occasion was the greatest, the grandest and most brilliant ever seen at an Exposition opening in Pittsburg.

To say that the beauties of the new buildings aside from any other feature.

To say that the beauties of the new buildings aside from any other feature, caused wonderment and amazement is putting it mildly. The public was wholly imprepared for the brilliant illuminations, for the grand promesades, for the superb new music hall and for the really elegant booths and displays.

The new march, composed by the world's greatest bandmaster, John Philip Spuza, especially for the dedication of the new buildings and asned "The Pride of Pittsburg," was received with wild enthusiasm, as indeed was all the music presented by the ever popular leader. Sousa and his Band will remain at the Exposition until September 17, after which they go direct to Glasgow. Scotland, to play four weeks at the Exposition. The programs prepared by Mr. Sousa for his Pittsburg engagement contain some of the choicest novelties found anywhere. The Sousa encores, thrilling because of their rhythmical strength, of course, will be in evidence at each of the four daily concerts.
