WHEN SHE COMES HOME.

When she comes home again, a thousand ways I fashion, to myself, the tenderness of my glad welcome.

And then began that terrible ride. He hooked up to the first notch and then opened the throttle.

With seven cars behind us, we shot down the grade of 175 feet to the mill.

Sixty-seven set low in her frame, but every low joint rung her bell for an eighth of a mile.

She jumped and swayed and threatened to leave the rails. The wind shrieked around us like a thousand demons.

and the rain poured against the windows in a perfect staccato.

"There's danger ahead and death behind!" shouted the old engineer. "If the rails become a boulder and drops it on the track!"

I shuddered. There was a blasted pine that marked the curve. The next second we reached it. For a moment I thought it was all over.

The train righted. We forged ahead faster, and our seven cars cleared the rambled and went down the bluff with a crash that was heard high above the storm.

There was a sharp jerk. We cleared the curve and the rain poured against the windows in a perfect staccato.

"There's danger ahead and death behind!" shouted the old engineer. "If the rails become a boulder and drops it on the track!"

BOWSER, THE NIMROD

HE TAKES A DAY OFF AND GOES HUNTING.

His Sad Experience on the Marshes, Where He Had Gone to Shoot the 'Fesive Snipe, and What Happened When He Returned Home.

"See here, you blamed old idiot! I am back again!"

"I declare! if you ain't!" replied the toiler. "Why, you must be lapsed to walk in a circle this way!"

"You are a liar! I came down here after snipe."

"Yes, you said so."

"And I've waded around for five long hours and not seen a blamed one."

"Shoo! Shoo!"

"And I don't believe there's one in the state."

"Gosh all fishhooks, but I dunno, unless they've all crawled into a boiler log to get out of the sun. I've heard that they do when it's pury hot. Yes, that must be it,
