The official vote of Cambria county was not concluded until Saturday. From Wednesday morning until late Friday night hundreds of citizens from all parts of the county guarded the courthouse day and night, a man named courthouse day and night, a man named Balsinger in particular patroling on the outside with a Springfield rifle. It was feared that the returns might be trifled with, and the long delay in counting the votes whetted this suspicion. The official vote gives O'Conner, Dem. and Union, a majority of 71, over Judge Barker, who was a candidate for reelection. Besides being Judge, Barker was the local political boss and an armed mob around his Court House was a sad commentary on his judicial career. McKinley's plurality in the county was 3,308. Barker presided in Butler during the Braun divorce case.

The Philadelphia Press has declared for a contest of the recent election in Philadelphia. The demand is based upon the statement that the vote cast for District Attorney was greater than that cast for the State offices and greater than that for Precident last year. This it considers indubitable evidence of fraud, and charges that 40,000 illegal votes were cast or counted. If this assertion can be proved it would, of course, mean a reversal of the declared result of the election in Philadelphia and in the State.

of election day the vote of 106 out of 108 election districts was made known at the City Hall within 35 minutes after the closing of the polls.

This is especially significant to those who noticed that night that not a word was received of the vote in Philadelphia for four or five hours after the closing of the polls. Then the wards in control of the city machine returned more votes for the Republican candidates than were cast for President McKinley, though the Republican vote in the entire city was 40,000 short of McKinley's vote. In this contrast we may discover a was 40,000 short of McKinle y's vote.

In this contrast we may discover a reason for the machine opposition to the constitutional amendment making it possible for the Legislature to authorize the use of voting machines. It is plain that the voting machines. It is plain that the voting machine would never do for such methods as those of the Philadelphia machine. The two machines cannot work together in harmony.— Ex
