"Your medicine almost raised me from the dead," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Egypt, Plymouth Co., Mass., Box 14. "My urine was like brick dust, and I had pain all over me and such a dragging feeling it seemed I could not do my house work. I had to sit down to wash the dishes, even. In the year 189, I was so sick did not care to live and prayed many time and God would take me. One down to many the book. I read the dishes, and to day I am a well woman. I have no backache, no headache, no pain at all, I used always to have headaches previously to the monthly period and such pain that I would roll on the floor in agony. I took three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and was completely cured."

Good Food For Milk Cows, Fattening Cattle and Lambs.

Experiments at the Michigan station combined with the experience of practical farmers show that steers, milk cows and sheep are fond of beet pulp. In an experiment on a farm where steers were fed with the object of carrying them through the winter with as little outlay as possible and where the ration was made up of mixed hay, shredded corn stover and grain ration ronsisting of corn and beet seed ground tonsisting of corn and beet seed ground together, one lot of thirty steers had pulp while a second lot of twenty steers had the same ration of hay, sto-ver and grain, but no pulp. It required steers had the same ration of hay, so ver and grain, but no pulp. It required per day and steer with the pulp fed lot 55 pounds of pulp, 8.5 pounds of mixed hay, 4 pounds of shredded corn stover and 2.4 pounds of the ground grain. On this ration the steers made an average daily gain of 1.42 pounds. The lot receiving no pulp had for a daily ration 11.5 pounds of mixed hay, 8 pounds of shredded corn stover and 2.4 pounds of grain and made a daily gain of .684 pounds. Comparing the amounts of food consumed by each pen to produce 100 pounds of gain and computing from this data the value of a ton of pulp as an additional succulent fodder, the tests show that under the conditions existing a ton of pulp fed with the other factors of the ration took the place of 421.5 pounds of corn took the place of 421.5 pounds of corn stover, 274 pounds of mixed hay and 68.8 pounds of grain. Practical feeders will naturally wait for the confirmation of these figures by future experiment before basing their operations

In another farm experiment a herd of twenty steers of mixed breeding and in poor condition was divided into two lots, to one of which was given a ration of mint hay, somewhat moldy, but palatable, wheat bran or oats and cornmeal, while to the other lot was given the same ration, and beet pulp in addition. The latter lot made an average daily gain of 2.52 pounds while the steers which had no pull made a daily gain of 1.84 pounds. Making the computations as before to find the estimated value of a ton of pulp, we find that under the conditions existing a ton of pulp took the place of 244 pounds of mint hay, 32.6 pounds of wheat bran, 296 pounds of cornmeal and 27.2 pounds of oats. During the last week of this experiment the lot of steers having no pulp were off feed and made no gains. If for this reason the experiment were brought to a conclusion a week earlier, the estimated value of the pulp would be reduced approximately by one-third.

These figures result from a single experiment and must therefore await confirmation before being taken as the statement of the station in the matter. Where in the last experiment two lots of ten steers each were fed the same kind and amount of dry feed for six weeks and to the ration of one lot of 280 pounds.

When fed to milk cows at the colleg with mixed hay and a grain ration of two parts bran to one of corn, the pulp added nothing to the yield of butter fat. It increased somewhat the milk pulp was added, the feeding of 13,775 pounds of pulp gave an increased gain

Experiments with milk cows at the Cornell (N. Y.) experiment station in-dicated that the dry matter of the beet pulp and of corn silage were of equal value. To furnish the same quantity of dry matter requires twice as much of ordinary pulp as of silage.

The consensus of opinion among farmers who have fed pulp is that for milk cows it is a good feed, although the pulp from frozen beets should be used with caution. Growing and fattening cattle do well on it, and owners declare that it saves one-third of the coarse fodder. Both fattening lambs and breeding ewes like pulp, and for them it proved a valuable factor in

Popcorn is a commodity too little appreciated. The corn from an acre of well grown popcorn will sell for more than an acre of field corn, and the stalks from the same acre are worth more for fodder. The supply of pop-corn is almost invariably short, while the consumption of it subjects everybody who uses it to a relish for it, re-marks a Farm, Field and Fireside cor-
