A DETAIL OF SPRAYING.

An Ingenious Homemade Device For The agitators now in use are far da entirely out of print, but it inspired all the newspaper writers with caution, for, though some of them were not able to believe that Blair was telling the truth, it was impossible to overlook the fact that he was the only witness.

The most serious of the immediate results of this publication was experienced by Dr. Blair himself about 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when he received a call from Captain Neale. The captain seemed not to be representing the truth, it was impossible to overlook in the forenoon, when he received a call from Captain Neale. The captain seemed not to be representing the makes. Why Not Etch the Garden Tools It is a very frequent source of an-noyance in the country and suburbs to are mislaid and, bearing no name, can not be returned to their owners or on account of the action of unscrupulous persons. This, of course, could easily be avoided and often is by stamping the name of the owner on the artic but unless an iron brand is pos it is difficult to do this on the work. Cutting the initials is a long and unsatisfactory process. Under these circumstances, therefore, one is surprised that the name is not more fre-quently put on the metal part, as, for instance, at the back on the upper part of the spade itself. This could easily be done by spreading beeswax over the metal, scratching through the initials and pouring nitric acid into the mold so made. The thicker the beeswax, and consequently the more nitric acid which can be left on, the greater the Savages, so far as known, are exempt from cancer. Kept Her Eyes Open The first appearance on the stage of Mrs. Kendal was at the early age of five years. She played the part of a blind child and frankly confessed that it was not a success. Unwisely she had been given a pair of new shoes for the performance, and so great was the child's delight in these that nothing could induce her to keep her eyes shut, as she should have done, and refrain from taking stray peeps at her beau-tiful, shiny footgear.
