At the start in a long race, the advantage often appears to be with an outsider. But the race is won not in starting but in staying. The quality which wins is staying power. It is so in the race of life. Staying power wins, and as a rule the best stayer is the man with the best atomach. All physical strength is derived from food which is properly digested and assimilated. When the food eaten is only partly digested and assimilated there is a loss of nutrition which means a loss of strength and the general tion which means a loss of strength and the general result is physical break-down.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gives strength and staying power, because it cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food eaten, and so strengthens the body naturally by the nutrition derived from food.

Accept no substitute for Golden Medical Discovery. There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are easy and pleasant to take. A most effective laxative.

A BANANA TREE.

The Fruit Grows Small End Up and Is Cut While Unripe.
Contrary to popular belief, bananas
do not grow on the tree as they hang in the grocery, but with the small end of the fruit pointing upward-to all ap pearances upside down.

There is probably no other fruit of such universal consumption about which so little is known to the average person as the banana. Something like 100,000,000 bunches are annually eaten in this country alone, but scarcely one man in a thousand not connected with the business knows what a banana tree

The fruit is never allowed to ripen on the tree, but is cut half or three-quar-ters "full"—that is, half to three-quarters "full"—that is, hair to three-quar-ters developed—according to the dis-tance it is to be shipped, and comes to maturity by feeding from the stalk, which contains a large amount of sap. Bananas cut in this way attain prac-tically the same size as if allowed to remain on the tree, in which case the bunch becomes too much of a burden for its support and either falls or for its support and either falls or breaks the tree and ripens on the ground.

After the cutting the plantation is "cleaned," which merely consists of severing the standing trunks within a few feet of the ground, and a new tree comes forth from the remains of its predecessor, so that the fruit in all stages of growth is to be found at the same time and the yield is continuous.

An Anecdote of Wordsworth. An Anecdote of Wordsworth.
A contributor to the London Spectator thus writes to that journal:
Your interesting article on "Vastness and Isolation" recalls to my mind Wordsworth's own interpretation of Those obstinate questionings

Of sense and outward things,
Fallings from us, vanishings—
as reported to me by the late Professor Bonamy Price. One day as he was walking with the poet in the hills he waiting with the beautiful asked him what he meant precisely by the words "fallings from us, vanish-ings." Wordsworth's answer was to this effect: "Sometimes I find myself in a mood in which the whole material universe seems to fail away. The sense of outward things is lost. Nothing re-mains but an immaterial self, detached from all physical conditions. In or-der to get back into the known world of consciousness I have to clutch at something—so." Here he grasped the bar of the gate on which they were leaning at the moment. I was much struck by the story at the time and made a note of it.

George Washington's Sobriquets. Washington was called by many soriquets. He was first of all "Father of His Country." "Providence left him childless that his country might call childless that his country might can him father." Sigourney calls him "Pater Patries," Chief Justice Marshall, the "American Fabius." Lord Byron in his "Ode to Napoleon" calls him "The Cincinnatus of the West." For having a new world on his shoulders he was called the "Atlas of America."

The English solidary called him by the he was called the "Atlas of America."
The English soldiery called him by the sarcastic nickname of "Lovely Georgius." Red Jacket, the Seneca Indian chief, called him the "Flower of the Forest." The Italian poet Vittorio Alfieri called him "Deliverer of America." In The Gazette of the United States he was called the "Savior of His Country." His hitter onponents as re-

Boy's Definition of Peace "Can you tell me the meaning of the word peace?" asked Miss Gray of a little boy who had just recited a patristic poem in which the word occurred. "Peace means when you ain't got no hildren," answered the child. "How is that?" asked Miss Gray.

Some persons find as much fun in reading signboards as others do in reading the comic papers. Here are a few oddities reported by observing travelers, the first of which evidently was displayed in front of a butcher's shop:

Saved In Installments.
A couple of Scottish ferrymen rowing somewhat dandified Englishman out to a steamer at one of the Clyde water-ing places saw to their consternation the man tumble over the gunwale of the boat into the water. The foremost ferryman dropped his oar and made a grab at the man as he rose to the surface, catching him by the wig, which came away in his Throwing this into the boat impa tiently, he made a second grab, catching the collar of his shirt, when the collar and front came away in his hands.

Casting these away from him in great disgust, he cried, "Man, Donald, come here quick and help's to save as muckle o' this man as ye can, for he's comin' awa' in bits!"

In nearly every city in China women are to be found sitting in the streets busily plying their trade as menders of clothing. Their knowledge of needle-craft is generally limited to what is called "running," and therefore they are not much retreated by English or are not much patronized by English or American travelers. They are, how-ever, never without patrons among Chinese tradesmen, who are often native of other districts and have no one els in the city to mend a rent for them, their wives and children being left at home. For this class of customers the skill of the litherant sewing woman is sufficient, and to them it is a great convenience to have the necessary repairs rapidly made while they stand by and wait.
