That prolific writer, Mr. Theodore Kremer, has just finished a new melodrama founded on the life and escapades of the famous Biddle Bros. called "A Desperate Chance." As their lives were filled with all sorts of adventures, were would restructly invertible that to were filled with all sorts of adventures, one would naturally imagine that to put them in a play would necessitate the use of countless fire-arms and the committing of numerour murders, yet such is not the case. There are many thrilling situations and climaxes, but at no time does the action descend to the cheap clap-trap methods so prevalent in many of the modern melodramas. All the scenes have been specially prepared from various points where the action of the play is laid, and altogether, a great production is promised.

MR. PLASTER OF PARIS-SEPT. 19. We are to have "Mr. Plaster of Paris," at Park Theatre Friday Sept.

Mr. Plaster of Paris, a musical farce Mr. Plaster of Paris, a musical farce comedy, as its name implies, with just enough plot to hold the langh provoking incidents together, will be the attraction at the Park Sept. 19. The comedy deals with the suspicious and their attendant rediculously funny predicaments of one Abindiab Binks, who has married the beautiful, dashing young widow. Mrs. Plaster, relict of the late Mr. Plaster of Paris, who is supposed to be dead, but is very much alive, and who, through the aid of Abel Sigh, an Oklahoma divorce lawyer, succeeds in mixing things up in general.

The advent of the first comedy of the season is always hailed with especial interest.
