CHURCH NOTES.

The Union meetings formerly held in the Grace Lutheran church, were last Sunday transferred to the First Presbyterian church as the former proved too small for the audiences. The trustees of St. Paul's Orphans Home, Butler, met in Pittsburgh, Monday, to consider the offer made two weeks ago for their property. A land improvement company offered the trustees $75,000 for the 30 acres of land around the home, with the purpose of laying out a plan of lots. When this offer was first considered a proposition was presented for moving the home to Greensburg. The feeling of some of the trustees and patrons of the home is that $100,000 would be only a fair price for the property, but an option at $75,000 is said to have been given.

Perhaps there are a great many young people going to church to have a good time, not being as attentive as they should. Often times those conducting the services keep the services too long and forget to quit when they are through. It reminds us of a Sunday school teacher talking until the children became restless and the speaker, anxious to hold their attention, asked "what would I say?" One of the children exclaimed "you can say 'amen'." Even children know when they have enough.
