HARRISBURG.
Governor Pennypacker on Monday approved the bill authorizing those who had participated in the feast held Harrisburg to bring suit in the Dauphin county court against the State. This bill is one of the echoes of the trip made by the Legislature to New York in the spring of 1897 to participate in the dedication of the Grant tomb. Mr. Russ was the enterprising one that occasion, and furnished such a magnificent feast that the Legislature passed the bill appropriating money to pay the bill with little opposition. In round figures the bill was $6,000. Governor Hastings, however, was of the opinion that those who had participated in the feast should not be liable for the bill, and he vetoed the appropriation. In 1899 the Legislature passed a bill authorizing Mr. Russ to bring suit in the Dauphin county court to recover the sum alleged to be due him, and Governor Stone vetoed it. At the session of 1901 no effort was made to repeal such a bill. Governor Stone still being in the executive chair, but this year Mr. Russ' friends feeling that an injustice had been done him, introduced the bill through Senator Dewalt and it passed with small opposition, and the Governor has approved it. Mr. Russ will at once bring the legal machinery in motion in the Dauphin county court, and the State will be defended in a suit for the collection of the money.

The Supreme Court of the United States has just decided another of the elective franchise cases involving State constitutional provisions. It has decided in favor of the State, and the decision is adverse to the claimant, it being held in effect that the franchise is a matter of State regulation, in so far as the selection of those allowed to exercise it is concerned, outside the express provisions of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution. The present case is rather a novel one, inasmuch as it referred to registration, which is a necessary precedent to voting. The majority of the court held that it had no jurisdiction, from which three justices dissented.

WASHINGTON NOTES.
It was officially stated in Washington, Monday, that the United States is still awaiting an answer from Russia in regard to the scope of the demands she has made upon China, especially in regard to the proposed inclusion of voting rights for Manchuria and the non-opening of more treaty ports. The Chinese minister, Sir Chen Tung Liang-Cheng and the Japanese minister, Mr. Kogoro Takahira, called on Secretary Hay that day. The latter asked whether the United States was inclined to withdraw its objection to the closing of the open door. What answer Secretary Hay made to this is not known.

A most sensational development of the investigation of postoffice department affairs occurred just before the department closed last Thursday when Postmaster General Payne announced the summary dismissal of James M. Tynes, assistant attorney general for the post-office department, coupling with the announcement the startling charge that all the papers and records in the safe of the latter's office had been abstracted by Mrs. Tynes, wife of the discharged official, with the assistance of her mother. The postmaster general states that Mrs. Tynes has refused the demand of the government for the return of the papers taken, and said the circumstances in the case will be submitted by him to the department with the assistance of former Attorney General Tynes, through his attorneys, returned the missing papers to the P. M. General.

GOV. PENNYPACKER has been vetoing one fool bill after another, and the wonder increases as to what he will do with the negligence idiosyncrasy.

COLORADO, the state that has produced so many millions in gold, silver, copper and lead, is but twenty-seven years old; and the battleship, launched at the Cramp yards in Philadelphia, last week, was named after her.

SOME days ago the army of the Mad Mullah surrounded a detachment of the English army in Somali, Eastern Africa, and killed nearly all of them; and Saturday's paper reported another battle, in which the English were victorious and killed 2,000 of the Mullah's followers.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT emerged from the forests of the National Park, last Saturday, had a great reception at Oaaha, Tuesday, talked and kissed babies at Des Moines, Tuesday, and is due in St. Louis to take part in the dedication ceremonies today.

RUSSIA'S determination to retain possession of the Chinese province of Manchuria, contrary to treaty, makes her commercial interests conflict with those of Japan, on the Japan Sea, and may be followed by a war between the two nations, into which some European nations may be drawn.

Business Morality.
Ex-District Attorney Philbin of New York told a story the other day, as an example of average business morality, of a commission merchant who boasted that he once sold only a portion of a consignment made to him for the money that the consignee expected, and converted the remainder to his own use. This raises the question whether such extremely loose views of honesty really represent business ethics.

As a witness on the other side the words of a prominent business man at the head of a great department store are quoted. He says: "I can afford to lose in a transaction, but I cannot afford to have my customer lose. I cannot afford to earn my profit implicitly with regard to my goods and to see that I would much prefer to suffer than to have him suffer. I must make my customer my friend."

There is no doubt that, even considered as an enlightened self-interest, there is a much higher standard in the second statement than in the first. But it should also be recognized that truth depends on a factor not stated. The merchant cannot afford to let his customer suffer from misrepresentation or defect if the customer can go elsewhere to get the goods. The reason why the statement is true lies in the loss of trade that would result if the customer is injured. But if the merchant were the only one of whom the customer could buy any given goods then he could afford, so far as pecuniary interest is concerned, to let the customer suffer the loss from inferior goods or hidden defects better than to pocket that loss himself.

The universality of the rule stated in the second case depends on open and free competition. Wherever complete free competition is maintained, the losses from unfair dealing, and even from dishonesty, can be imposed on the buyers with impunity.—Dispatch.

The Pennsylvania Commission for the St. Louis Exposition, provided for by a concurrent resolution of the Senate, has just been appointed, a part of it by the governor and the remainder of it by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house. The commission embraces within its membership representatives of various interests and different sections of the state.

A Hundred Years Ago.
John Fulton and Annie Hays, his wife, came to Butler county in 1793, and their son, Nelson Fulton of Middleburg, was born there in 1807. In 1857, John Fulton died in 1857.

Samuel Fulton came to the county in 1793, and his daughter, Mrs. Nancy Mahan, wife of W. A. Mahan, died in 1873, aged about 73 years.

These notes are in answer to a note in our issue of March 26th last, which contained a list of the names of the hundred years ago. How many men are yet living in the county whose fathers lived here in 1793, and how many of them are still in the county, is a question that is referred to registration, which is a necessary precedent to voting. The majority of the court held that it had no jurisdiction, from which three justices dissented.

The First Clear Night.
THE NEBULAR THEORY.
In speaking of the solar system last week, it was said that besides the planets, revolving about the sun were asteroids, comets and meteors. These were explained as remains of a former planet that had undergone repeated explosions. The comets are irregularly shaped masses of gaseous material that have somehow become inhabitants of the solar system. They are thousands of miles in length and weigh but the weight of any one of them is comparatively insignificant, perhaps as much as the earth's atmosphere. The comets are supposed in their flight through inter-stellar space to have come from the outer reaches of the system, drawn in or captured by one of the planets and compelled to revolve about the central sun. The "shooting stars" are not so well understood, though they are evidently related to the comets, for they are often identical. Meteors only shine when they come in contact with the atmosphere of the earth, due to the heat of friction. Most of them actually do "fall" to the earth, usually, however, after being pulverized by the intense heat.

The study of the planets has shown that the same direction in elliptical orbits, they all rotate on inclined axes, and that generally accepted explanation is that the solar system has gradually developed into what is now, after being pulverized by the intense heat.

According to the whole solar system is supposed to have been a nebula, or cloud of gaseous particles separated from each other by the force of gravitation. These particles, attracted to reach the center of gravity, in battering against each other developed into a rotary motion, and finally broke and collected together in masses or planets which continued to revolve about the sun, there is a method on an axis at the same time. Each planet, by continuing this process, produced the existing planets. There is no explanation is called the Nebular Theory.

Pat. Just Over.
As I was walking down Butler's main street,
A sassy policeman I chanced for till
He looked strait in me face and he gave me some fun,
Saying, "Come you over from Erin go braugh?"
I grabbed my sheshlan right tight in my fist,
And around his big body I caned it to twist.
The pale came round me like a parcel of rage,
Saying, "You wild Irishman he struck the police."
They kicked me, they cuffed me—at me they swore,
Saying, "What brought you over from Erin's green shore."
I told them prates had failed, I had nothing for tilate,
And I would not be a wild Irishman, and I was not a me late.
Then the wild mob howled and said take him till the jail,
He wild he had a long time before he find bail.
Just then Mayor Kennedy came along—he took in the sight,
His kind heart was moved to pity at my sad plight.
He said I know you are a Pat by the cut of your hair,
I know you are a pat by the clothes that you wear.
Then Mayor Kennedy dispersed the wild, jeering mob,
Saying, "Come to my office and I will give you a job."

Now Paddy in his fine uniform struts on the street,
And like his brother palaceman he slaps on his hat late.
