WHILE NED BALKED

By RUBY DOUGLAS. Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McCreary.

The rain was falling in torrents as the congregation came out of the little church at Auburn. Not a cloud had barred the clearness of the sky when the sexton pulled the heavy worn bell rope to call the good people to service, and it was not surprising that the air was arrayed in their smart spring frocks and bonnets.

"Get up, Ned; get up," said Bob, touching his faithful old friend lightly with the whip. But Ned, who had a few ideas of his own, thought a nice little rest under the dripping trees would be a good thing for him and incidentally help along matters behind him and refused to move.

"That's the best of it," said Ned, looking ready to cry. "Yes? Ned is stubborn too." Bob placed a decided accent on the last word.

"I shall get out and walk," he said after Bob had urged Ned in vain to trot along. "I'm not foolish, Inez," said Bob a little crossly.

"That's better than freezing," he retorted. "Please, please come back, Bob," and Inez burst into tears. That settled it.

"I'm sure, Inez, I'm a brute. I know it. Forgive me, darling," he said as he jumped into the seat and took her in his arms. Ned thought it was now time to jog along.

A WHISTLER STORY.

The Climax of a Dinner in Honor of the Eccentric Artist.

At the close of the case of Whistler against Ruskin, the former, finding himself very much in need of rest and recreation, decided to make a southern trip. When he arrived in Venice his American friend thought to cheer him by giving a little dinner in his honor.

"Jimmie, do you know that you brutally insulted me tonight?" "Well," continued the host, "I held my tongue as long as necessary. The more you know of me, the more you will speak to me like that again?"

"After the evening meal is finished the 'pudgy' men go to the club or cafe, while the ladies take themselves to the large, open bay window. Lamps are placed near them, and as you wander through the room you find them everywhere at the height of your eyes and quite near enough for a handsome long rows of these groups of women, none of which are given brilliantly dressed, thick powdered and bedecked with the quaint old jewelry of the country.

"The first steam vessel which crossed the Atlantic ocean was under the American flag and was named the Savannah. The launching took place in New York harbor on Aug. 23, 1818, and the first trip, began March 28, 1819, was from New York to Savannah, Ga., which was reached April 6.

"I think your daughter intends to elope." The old man looked at the neighbor who was always interfering in matters that did not concern him and shook his head.

"The Vault of St. Michael's." The most interesting incident of pilgrimage in Dublin is still to be seen upon which Handel is said to have composed his "Messiah." In the graveyard, the last resting place of Robert Emmet, and the vault of St. Michael's provides a more gruesome thrill than the morgue.

A WAGON JACK.

A Handy, Steady Acting Afloat Recently Made at Home.

An Orange Judd Farmer correspondent submits a plan for a wagon jack which, he says, any one can easily make. The construction is seen at a glance. A D consists of two strong pieces of wood connected with a strap hinge at C. This is bolted to the lever at A and to the base at D. On the end of the lever a strong iron hook is secured.

"I'll grab the nearest water bottle and smash it over your head." The rest of the company sat quite at ease and dined in their hearts, while the angry host glared across the table at his antagonist. After a few seconds Mr. Whistler said in a tone of childlike innocence:

"After the evening meal is finished the 'pudgy' men go to the club or cafe, while the ladies take themselves to the large, open bay window. Lamps are placed near them, and as you wander through the room you find them everywhere at the height of your eyes and quite near enough for a handsome long rows of these groups of women, none of which are given brilliantly dressed, thick powdered and bedecked with the quaint old jewelry of the country.

FARMER'S GARDEN

A WAGON JACK.

My opinion is that it would pay many farmers to put in a cheap silo and convert a portion of their late corn into silage this year, especially if they have young stock at reasonable prices to feed this winter. I am not yet ready to say that it is the best for older cattle—i. e., feeding cattle—nor have I any thoughts of saying that it is not good feed for them. I have not yet proved that to my own satisfaction.
