With the advent of February the Grand Opera House Stock Company enters upon the last half of the regular season, and it is the intention of the management to make this half the most brilliant of the entire term. During the past we have had much to say of the size and finish of our big productions and the prevailing presentation of Victorien Sardou's "Cleopatra," proves especially that the Grand's splendid facilities for extraordinary productions is fully up to the high standard for which this theatre is noted.
