GOATS AS THRASHERS.

sque Customs Practiced by New Mexico Farmers. The many sidedness of the domestic goat as a contributor to the satisfac-tion of human needs is perhaps less unerstood than the facts warrant. The importance of the goatskin in the leather trade we all know about, and most of us have heard that goat's milk is a staple article of diet among some peoples. But it takes a trip to New Mexico, where herds of these democratic animals are an everyday feature of the landscape, to make us acquaint-ed with the fact that goat's flesh is shipped east by the car load to do duty as mutton chops, that goat horn is a material out of which the ingenious red man loves to fashion tobacco boxes and that the live goat makes an excellent thrashing machine. In New Mexico it is quite common to see a thrashing floor upon which wheat is being tramped out by a herd of goats. Such thrashing floors are made in the open fields by plastering a bit of ground with adobe mud, which dries in the hot southwestern sun to the hardness of cement. Upon this the ripened sheaves are spread. The goats are then turned in and driven rapidly round and round by shouting Mexicans round and round by shouting Mexicans or Indians, the trampling of the multitudinous little hoofs gradually shattering the grain out of the heads. When all is considered beaten out the goats are given a recess, and the drivers pick up shovels and pitchforks and start in to toss the broken straw and the chaff high in the air. The wind catches the light stuff in midair and catches the light stuff in midair and carries it away, while the grain, by carries it away, while the grain, by reason of its weight, falls to the ground and is ready for the sack. These thrashing customs, primitive as the time of the pharaohs, form one of the most picturesque sights of agricultural life in New Mexico, that easy going land of "wait a bit," where in all the United States time is cheanest and merit. They cure the sick.

One advantage accrues to the respec table member of the community from the minuteness with which the Dres-den police look into the affairs of every inhabitant of the city. If he is a care-ful man and always carries papers which may serve to establish his iden-tity he is practically immune from the indignity of being arrested and march-ed off to the police station unless, in-deed, he commits some especially hel-nous crime. Does he drive faster than the law nermits, does he cross a bridge the law permits, does he cross a bridge on the left hand side, he is stopped by the guardian of law and order and rethe guardian of law and order and requested to give his name. If he has his papers with him the policeman may then and there impose a fine of from 1 to 3 marks. If then he admits that he is in the wrong and pays the fine the incident is closed. If, however, he the incident is closed. If, however, he wishes to appeal from the policeman's decision he may do so. Even in that case he is not arrested, but a day or two later he is notified to appear in court and answer to the charge against him. But then if he is found guilty the lowest fine that can be imposed is 3 marks. That this custom of permitting the policeman personally to immitting the policeman personally to impose small fines is little understood by pose small fines is little understood by foreigners is shown by a remark made to me by a gentleman who had lived in Germany the greater part of his life and in Dresden for a number of years. In reply to my inquiry as to whether there was ever any question of coruption in the police department he re

The Tailor Bird, dangers, and if they were not gifted with peculiar yet useful instincts they would fall ready victims to their en-mies. Chattering monkeys and big snakes steal and eat their eggs, while their offspring are preyed upon by foes on every side. But it takes a sly monkey or snake to get ahead of the tailor bird, a small East Indian sing-ing bird. She hides her nest so skill-fully that her enemies cannot find it, no matter how hard they try. This no matter how hard they try. This she does by using her long, slender bill as a needle. With the tough fiber of a parasite plant abundant in the tropics as a thread she sews a dead leaf taken from the ground to a living one near the end of a slender and hanging branch, and between these leaves she builds her nest, where neither makey nor snake can approach. ther monkey nor snake can approach, because the branch will not bear their

> Dog and Cat.
> The effect of a dog on a cat's tail is well worth study. When a cat encounters a strange dog the tail immediately imes an upright position, the back omes highly arcaed, and the fur stands out straight all over the body. This sudden change dismays the dog, who brings himself to a halt, and the who brings himself to a halt, and the two regard each other steadfastly.
> But if the dog should turn his gaze away for a fraction of a second there is a swish and a bound, and the cat has disappeared over a fence or up a tree. Stimulated by the presence of a dog, cats have been known to climb to such heights that they were unable to descend the way they went up.
