WORLD'S FAIR HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS.

St. Louis Hostelries Prepared to Handlo Vast Throngs—Prices Not to Be In-creased—Hotel Inside of the Exposition Grounds With a Ca-pacity For 6,000 Guests.

Ample hotel accommodations have been provided for the World's Fair visitors at St. Louis both within and outside of the Exposition grounds. The Exposition management has organized a free information service. A pamphlet has been issued for gratui-tous circulation explaining many of the conveniences that have been provided. A list of all the hotels, with rates, is contained in this pamphlet. The entire city has been canvassed, and many thousands of private house-

NEW MUSIC FOR WORLD'S FAIR

Three Compositions by Famous People. Band Tournament.

Musical people and all who appreciate good music may thank the World's Fair for three notable compositions, written upon the invitation of the Exposition management. These are the 'Hymn of the West,' by the most distinguished living American poet, Edmund Clarence Stedman, the music for which was written by Professor John K. Paine, who is at the head of the music department of Harvard university; "Louisiana," a march by Frank Vanderstuken, leader of the Cincinnati Orchestra; a waltz, "Along the Piaza," by Henry K. Hadley of New York, who has won his laurels long before this as writer of operatic and other musical compositions. This music will be heard publicly for the irst time upon the opening of the Ex osition on Saturday, April 30, and frequently thereafter in the musical programmes of the greatest of world's fairs. These are the only official com-

Thirty thousand dollars will be given prizes for the best bands at a tour ament to be held during the Exposi-ion. All through the World's Fair the nusical feature will be prominent. The most famous bands of the world ure under contract to participate dur-ng considerable periods. Among these are Le Garde Republicaine band of France, the Royal Grenadier band of England, the American National band, Sousa's band and others.

the trees on the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis. It has nothing to do with e immense exhibit palaces, but is a thing apart. The houses in this nev city are of various styles of archite are. Some are palatial in size and apearance, while others look merely cozy many notable and historic buildings been constructed in one group. This new city might be called the City of the States, for the houses included in it are the state buildings at the Fair. The city is not compact, but somewhat straggling, as befits the picturesqueness of the view. Yet there is on-the-Pike about this city, for the grounds surrounding each of the houses are beautified with gardens typical of Vitellius is said to have spent as much vitellius vitellius is said to have spent as much vitellius is said to have spent as much vitellius vitellius vitellius is said to have spent as much vitellius v he state represented.

for participation is being raised pr vately by patriotic citizens, so that in the event of legislative inaction this ommonwealth may be represented.

The states and territories are expending over $7,000,000 in their efforts to show off to best advantage at the Exposition. This is a million and a third more than was expended at the Chicago exposition by the states. In addition to this, large cities in many states will have municipal exhibits, the funds for which are not included in these figures. The municipal exhibit idea is entirely novel. From a number of the states there will be prominent county exhibits provided by special appropriation of county funds.

This City of the States presents picture of surpassing beauty. Nature has done much to aid in the creation of the picture. Never before has any exposition been able to grant such advantageous sites for state buildings. The buildings are situated on a plateau about seventy-five feet higher than the level ground to the north upon which stand the main exhibit palaces. There are hills and ravines here and there, enabling the landscapists to lay out a most delightful pattern of roads and terraces and lawns. The smallest of the state buildings is that of Arizona, which stands near the southeastern entrance to the grounds. One of the largest is that of Missouri, from the dome of which it is said that perhaps the very finest view of the Exposition may be enjoyed. This building is a palace in the Italian renaissance architecture, built at a cost of $105,000. Near by is the reproduction of the Cabildo at New Orleans, in which the Louisiana Purchase transfer ceremonies took place — Louisiana's state building. Ohio has a clubhouse of highly ornate design, in the architecture of the French renaissance. Illinois is prominent with a most pretentious structure, with wide verand and a commanding cupola.

A description of each of the sta buildings, with any detail, would me than fill a newspaper page. It is only possible here to hint at some of the interesting structures. California, for instance, has reproduced in exact siz ors. These houses are in every section of the city, and the rates at which guests will be received is a matter of of the poetess Lydia Huntley Sigourof the poetess Lydia Huntley Sigour ney in her time. This building is said to be the finest specimen of purely colonial architecture now standi position grounds, has a capaciton management has control of the rates, which have been fixed at from $1.50 to $3.50

During the course of many acute at ments there comes the turning point when the patient is liable to have period of sinking. The fever has ope this stimulant, and the pulse goes lov and the heart presents signs of failing. This is known as the sinking

The Chinese are in the habit of treating this phase of disease by making all sorts of noises. The tomtom is resorted to, people shout, haze about, trying to excite the attention of the patient.

Our people are in the habit of doing exactly the contrary when death threatens. Everything assumes a dead ly stillness. People communicate in whispers. Tiptoeing takes the place of walking. Nothing is done to distract the patient's attention. He is thrown absolutely upon his own psychological Which is right?

A writer in the Medical Brief seems to take the side of the Chinamen in these matters. It would appear that he regards the Chinese method as the best. This writer states: "A patient of mine had received the last rites of the church, the pulse had ceased at the wrist, and he had sunk into that coma which precedes death Some one in the next house struck up I was very much annoyed and dis tressed and tried to stop it.

"Suddenly the pulsation at the wris

est excitement or noise or confusion might be against the patient's reco ery. Another patient differently con-stituted might require something to distract his attention from himself. As a rule, however, we believe th deathly stillness and the awesom quietude of the sick chamber do mor harm than good. We believe if attendants would walk about in the usual manner, speak to each other when necessary in the usual tones, address the patient as if nothing serious was happening, it would be better. A little diversion properly contrived in the vast majority of cases would be better than abandoning the patient at the critical moment to his own reflections.
