The Electoral vote, not including Maryland, stands 385 for Roosevelt, and 183 for Parker.

The Election—Some Figures.

The Presidential election is remarkable in the fact that President Roosevelt will have a larger majority of the popular vote than any candidate of modern times. It is estimated that it will reach two millions. But he will also probably have a larger majority of the Electoral vote than any candidate had in fifty years past. Without Maryland the Electoral vote stands 385 for Roosevelt and 183 for Parker, making 202 majority. Since in 1858 had 215 and Grant over Greeley in 1872 had 206. But neither of those cases was as fair a test of personal or party strength as that in the late election.

Heretofore on some occasions in our political history one Presidential candidate had a majority of the popular vote and another had a majority of the Electors. This may happen again and necessarily make trouble for the peculiar provisions of the National Constitution on the mode of choosing our Presidents. But before such trouble arises it is probable the Constitution will be changed so as to make the Electors elected by the popular vote, pure and simple.

POLITICAL.

One of the results of the late election is a movement in favor of changing the method of electing a President and Vice President. Railroads and wires have made it possible for every voter in the Nation to be promptly informed about everything and everybody, and there is no good reason why the popular vote should not control the matter, without regard to state lines; and that would do away with the cumbersome ballot and messy results. At this writing it looks as though the electoral vote of Maryland would be divided this year. In 1904 Bryan had one electoral vote in Kentucky, in 1880 the vote of California was split. In 1820 one elector chose to vote for Monroe refused to do so and thereby deprived the latter of a unanimous election. In 1792 it was claimed that three electors elected in the interest of Jefferson voted for Adams and thereby secured his election. There are at present probably five million men in this country eligible to the Presidency, any of whom can be chosen by the electors "elected" last Tuesday without violating the letter of the law.

"You did it," is what Gov. Elkin Higgins said to President Roosevelt. There is no doubt but that the popular endorsement of the President's administration helped to pull through some of the local tickets; but besides this it must be recognized that many, perhaps a majority, of the Democrats, had no confidence in their party, this year, and the returns show that some of them did not go to the polls.

The official majority of Roosevelt over Parker in Butler county is 2,418, and the unofficial in the state 494,712. The only Democratic districts in the county, now, are Summit, Lancaster, Jackson east, Clearfield and Harmony. The only Democratic counties in the state, now, are Columbia, Fulton, Greene, Monroe and Pike, none of which have large populations. The unofficial figures for Clinton county, the heretofore Democratic stronghold of this section are Roosevelt, 2740, Parker 3500.

For but the second time in its history Clinton County went Republican this year. The other time was in 1876. That was in the zenith of the development of the petroleum resources in the county. There was only a county ticket to elect and more than half of the successful candidates were Republicans. The Democratic tidal wave of 1876 swept the county into the Democratic ranks and in 1878 the hegira to McKean county had set in that carried the Republican votes away. Since then Clinton has been regarded as hopeless until the present victory shows that good may come out of the most unlikely places.

The bronze statue of Frederick the Great, presented to this Nation by the present Emperor William, has been mounted on the grounds of the new War College in Washington, and will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies, next Saturday.

The Atlantic coast line from Florida to Maine was visited by a tremendous storm, last Sunday, the same travelling north and northeast.

All the telegraph and telephone systems of Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston were interfered with, and between Philadelphia and New York all the wires were down.

Though the storm came from the south it brought snow, a foot of which fell at York, Pa.

Imperial Electoral Returns.

While the election board was in session Thursday, tabulating the vote, it was discovered that the returns of some 20 districts were not entirely in accordance with the legal requirements, in not including a list of the voters.

Judge Clinton ordered Sheriff Gibson to summon the 20 boards, but as that would put the county to an expense of from $300 to $500 regarding returns that there is no probability of contests, he reconsidered the matter, and let it go.

WAR NOTES.

Conditions in Manchuria are practically the same as a week ago. The armies of Oyama and Kuropatkin remain in the same positions. The Japanese are apparently afraid to attack, and the Japs are caring, as the advantage of delay is now with them. This deadlock may last all winter, and may be broken any day.

The Russians reported that Gen. Kuroki was killed by one of their shells a month ago. The Japanese are working away at their parallels and mines, but there is no trustworthy news from the place.

The last heard of the Baltic Squadron was that of it had put into a month ago. The Russian fleet is reported to be in the North Sea, and the investigation into the North Sea outrage is to be conducted and the commission of inquiry will assemble at Paris as soon as the necessary arrangements can be perfected.

Chico.—A big gusher, estimated at 100,000 barrels, has been struck on the Young.

The Cabbage Snake.

What is called the "Cabbage Snake" has made its appearance in Northern counties. It is a head of cabbage grown in the garden of Andrew Carr in Conover township. The snake was found in the garden, white in color, was jointed, and showed signs of life.
