The Townsend-Esch bill to regulate railroad rates enlarges the Inter-State Commerce Commision from five to sev-en members and empowers it to declare inreasonable or unjustly discriminat ory and to fix a just and reasonable rate, which becomes operative 30 days after notice has been given, but at any time within 60 days the carrier may apeal to a "court of transportation creat

> Representatives Hays and Hocker berry, who voted for the resolution en-dorsing the President's stand with re gard to railway rebates and discrimina tion, and who thereby incurred the displeasure of the U.S. Senator Boies Pen-rose, have earned the thanks and hearty congratulations of every citizen of But ler county. Their constituents, regard-less of party, are proud of them and endorse their denial of the right of a bos to dictate their votes.

Frank McClain of Lancaster Co. is now the floor-leader of the House, tak ing the the place of D. J. Shern of Philadelphia, who was a failure at it.

Among the bills introduced, Monday was one by Hays of Butler, providing that no plea of the statutes of limitation shall operate to bar or defeat recov ery in any proceeding against the per son or estate of any person who has not had or maintained an actual residence in Pennsylvania during the running any of the periods of limitation pre scribed in such statutes in any case where the cause of action shall hay arisen in this State.

If there is such a thing as a "crimina trust" the Beef Trust fills the bill. That trust has used its vast power gained by rebates from the railroads, to lay violent hands upon the food of the people and to fix prices at will. It has played both ends for its sole profit. It has refused fair prices to the cattle rais ers and has sold the product of its pack ing houses at high prices to the con-

New Brighton was the scene of a terrible bob-sled accident, last Friday night. A large sled carrying sixteen boys dashed down a hill and into a passing train, and those who did not save themselves by jumping or falling off were either killed or injured. Among the killed was Merl Saviers, a son of John E. Saviers, and whose mother was Mattie Keefer, a daughter of Daniel Keefer of West Liberty. He lived for but ten minutes after the sled struck the train. The boys had watchers posted at the track but their sled was going so fast they could not stop it. County Commissioner McCandless is related to the Saviers, and attended the funeral, Sunday afternoon.

Oil and Gas Notes.

-The Market is $1.39.

Texas oil—The Jennings oil field, according to Colonel Alba Heywood, a heavy producer of the Texas and Louisiana oil fields, is the largest in the world. The proven area is now about 60 acres, but in this limited territory over 8,000,000 barrels of oil have been produced since September, 1901. Over one half of this amount is stored in earthern storage tanks. The present daily production is between 40,000 and 50,000 barrels. Some of the gusher wells have declined, but are still producting oil in immense quantities.

ducing oil in immense quantities. Kaosas—The Standard Oil Co. has ordered a suspension of all work in the Kansas oil fields. Nine hundred men have been laid off. The order came from the Kansas City headquarters and while no explanation was given, it is supposed the opposition the company has met at the hands of Kansas legislators is responsible for the action. Eastern oil men estimate that the company has more than $15,000,000 invested in the Western fields upon which it has not yet realized. The order to suspend work was issued by Daniel J. O'Day, general manager.

Gen. Lew Wallace died at his home in Crawfordsville, Ind. last night, aged 78 years. Alexander Furgason, the oldest man in Indiana, and possibly in the United States, died in his log cabin home near the town of Gilman. Ind., last Sunday, at the age of 120 years. In an old family Bible, so old that it is bound with wooden covers, the record is made from which his age is computed, but Mr. Furgason contended that the Bible record was short six years and he was really 126 years old.

Dr. Frank Cowan, one of the most remarkable characters of this state, died at his farm near Greensburg, last Sunday morning, in his flist year. He was a son of former U. S.
