The Witch of Cragenstone

By ANITA CLAY MUNOZ.

Author of "In Love and Truth"

CHAPTER VI.

INHERITING from his mother a hard, unyielding nature, young Taunton, in his life of struggle and trial to keep his farm intact, had obtained what success was his through firm resolve, grim determination, and the wisdom of accepting the law.

With her hair brushed smoothly back and a prim kerchief crossed over her shoulders, hiding the fair round neck that the doctor's stroke she wore, she looked so calm and serene, but within a very different creature from the merry young woman who but a moment since had been running on the skirts of the young man.

Joshua shifted on his chair and worked his lips, but he said nothing. "I was a most frightful storm, good cousin. Were they lands much damaged?"

"Nay," he replied. "Being in the valley, we are protected some. But though the storm was not so bad as the Lord had given her a better liking for it."

Joshua's small eyes glittered. "Then he spoke the truth?" he cried, the words fairly bursting from his mouth in his eagerness to speak them.

"To manage an estate, I faith, is not a woman's work. Why, cousin, I am not that these lands under thy management alone in two years would detract in value to one-half. Thy father, Margaret, ever with an eye to the best interests, gave me the stewardship of this estate. Didst never occur to thee what his object was in this?"

"He knew, Joshua, that thou wouldst perform thy duties punctually," she replied pleasantly, suppressing a yawn behind her hand, "for thou art known to be a zealous man and one of integrity."

"I have good Elsie and old Giles," she replied, "and two better watchdogs never had a maid to guard her. What wouldst thou have me do?"

"The buckle of her shoe coming loose, she leaned over to fasten it when the cross that she wore on the fine gold chain about her neck fell to the floor."

"I have good Elsie and old Giles," she replied, "and two better watchdogs never had a maid to guard her. What wouldst thou have me do?"

FARM & GARDEN

MARKET CLASSES OF HOGS.

The Bacon Type of Hog Receiving Greater Attention in This Country. In selling hogs to the local buyer or shipper the farmer is very often at a decided disadvantage because he cannot interpret market reports to the full extent of their meaning and therefore either does not get what his hogs are worth or loses a sale by asking too much for them.

An attempt has been made by the Illinois experiment station to explain how swine are classified and graded on the Chicago and other markets. This attempt has been made with a view to benefiting the average farmer.

For answer the rough breeze tossed her hair about and blew the white points of her kerchief over her face. "Ah," she murmured softly, "I need not thy Bekke confirmation, shifting 'neath my hat, that is ever my guidance, doth give me assurance that he'll come tonight! What frock shall I wear, did Elsiebeth, with no thought about thy meaning? Shall I do him wrong, as thou wouldst have me, a Parisian lady in my silken gown of peachblow hue with feathers waving high above my head, or shall I let him take me to his heart as a simple mountain maiden with smooth hair, gray homespun frock and sober countenance? Whichever way, good Elsiebeth, will Godfrey like me best?"

"An my opinion were worth the giving in such a case," she replied, "I think Sir Godfrey will see only the happy light in blue eyes and thy red lips when first he cometh to thee."

"Elsiebeth!" Margaret shook her finger at her companion, laughing lightly. "Thou hast surely had a lover, although thou hast ever denied it, or else how knowest thou so well their ways? Come, I'll wear my peachblow silk, deck myself in the grandest fashion and receive my Godfrey in the withdrawing room with all the honors I would bestow upon the king were he to visit me. The king?" she exclaimed, with a disdainful toss of her head.

"The sight of the complete adoration of her charge for this man caused a feeling of pain to strike the elder woman, and she, with a gasp, remembered the lacing of Margaret's bodice she felt compelled to say: "Methinks 'twere not well, sweet, to fasten thy heart so entirely on a man who yet thy blue eyes and thy red lips with much experience of the world doth know that many men, especially worldly men of fashion as Sir Godfrey La Fabienne, would a maid with mad love, the more they love, the more they desire to cure a broken heart."

"Elsiebeth!" exclaimed Margaret sharply. "Cause thine idle chatter and dare not cast thy vile insinuations against Sir Godfrey's presence." Her face flushed, tears filled her eyes, and she took the lacings out of Elsiebeth's bodice as though she no longer wished her aid, walking from her.

"Elsiebeth followed her anxiously, regret at her showings in her countenance. "It is but my love for thee that gives me false anxiety, honey, for thy happiness is my happiness, and thy sorrow more than my sorrow."

For a time Margaret was silent; then she said with great seriousness: "Elsiebeth, never again express thy doubt of Sir Godfrey. Doubt that the sun riseth to light the earth; doubt that night falls upon the day; doubt thy love for me, but never cherish such thoughts as thou didst utter to-day. A moment since against Sir Godfrey La Fabienne—a man, she continued in a low, passionate voice, "so much to me, so deep in my affection, that I could die for very joy of loving him. Were the earth to divide us, Elsiebeth, we are one—heart and one soul forever!"

Then, after a deep felt silence, she said in a breath: "But, prithee, come, the peachblow gown is happy faces, for this is a joyful day, good Elsiebeth!"

There is a demand on the markets of this country from foreign countries usually for the principal part of the feed of the fat or lard hog, is coming to be generally recognized as detrimental to the best development of swine from the breeder's standpoint. Coupled with this there is not so great a demand for fat pork as there formerly was, and shipping and storage facilities are much better; consequently more fresh and lean meats are used.

The oat crop is one that requires a great deal of moisture throughout the season, and the best crop is assured by preparing the soil so it will conserve moisture. The reason the old plan of seeding oats in corn stubble fields so frequently is because the ground is stirred shallow and wet early in spring, will not set firm very well. The teeth must be very fine and some judgment employed in their use. The hog says are extremely light, not larger than a small wire, and must be used in a spring frame that will hold them tight so that they will not double up. Jewelers' saws will be needed for spring brass.

At the Hub. A New Yorker was visiting in Boston. Seeing a parrot in a cage, he asked: "Does Polly want a cracker?" "I require no sustenance from you whatever," replied the Back Bay bird, with hauteur. —Yorker Statesman.

Not Much Loss. "But," blazed the heavy villain, "suppose our plot should leak out?" "It's so thick it likely is," shouted a man in the audience. "But then there's so little of it you'd hardly miss it!" —Philadelphia Press.

Where Eggs Are Currency. Eggs are current coin in Mayo, Kerry, Donegal and Leitrim. They are everywhere received over the counter in payment for tea, sugar, meal, oil, bread, tobacco, patent medicines and general household commodities. Accounts with the dairy exist in credit in eggs. Predatory agents traveling throughout the wilds with worthless teas, itinerant tinkers and musicians, hawkers of tinseled jewelry and holy pictures, all accept this current coin, generally unloading it at the nearest railway town.—Dublin Lady of the House.
