POLITICAL.

The result of the city election in Philadelphia will have more effect in changing the political leadership in this state than will the election of a delegate to the state assembly.

One Philadelphia correspondent says strong language about the state and puts it forward for a few city offices in Philadelphia next month will depend the question whether or not Pennsylvania shall continue to be dominated by an smooth crew of political parasites as ever stultified a political ship or cut a political throat.

They are fighting a desperate battle in this good old city of Brotherly Love. It is pre-eminently the people against the gang which has not only relentlessly ruled this city with a rod as powerful in its graft proclivities in this modern Babylon as was Aaron's water serpent in the desert, but the same gang, whose political ramifications throughout the state are such that for years it has been able to dictate every act passed by the Legislature and every penny appropriated for public work and charity, but, if all the indications count for anything—the gang will go down.

The Philadelphia Commonwealth investigation of the administration of Mayor Weaver began Tuesday with the production of all the evidence in his possession of the character calculated to make good working campaign material for the machine.

This subject is one calculated to make a native born and bred citizen as angry as Taylor found he was not only willing, but anxious to go on record as a perfect witness. He told them that former Director of Public Safety Smyth had given orders that the police must not interfere with repeaters at election time and when the examining member endeavored to cut off this form of testimony by asking the homes of the people who were protected he promptly replied that it was done by men who had served time in the penitentiary and whose pictures had been removed from the Bogue's Gallery by this same former Director Smyth.

Official End of the War. At Washington, last Saturday, the personal representatives of the Emperor of Russia and the emperor of Japan signed their respective copies of the peace treaty, thus officially ending the war.

The Lewis and Clark Centennial at Portland closed last Saturday, and it is said to have been a success financially. One way lying on an Iowa railroad track, last Sunday, caused the death of five men, and the destruction of two locomotives and eleven cars of grain.

It is believed that the President in his forthcoming message to Congress will deal even more forcibly with the necessity of vigorous Federal control or supervision of corporations engaged in interstate commerce than he did last year. The investigations conducted by the Department of Commerce and Labor, through the bureau of corporations, into the workings of the beef trust and the private car lines, and the very startling developments brought out by the New York inquiry as to the affairs of the great life insurance companies, would seem to emphasize the need for such supervision as well more efficiently guard the rights of the public in these directions.

LUTHER BURBANK has done more, and is doing more, for humanity, than perhaps any other American. He was born in Massachusetts in 1849 and removed to California in 1875. Mr. Burbank, by infinite pains and industry, coupled with superior intelligence, has produced a degree of perfection in fruits and vegetables that is marvelous. All his life has been quietly but earnestly devoted to this work. The great improvement in the potato within the past quarter of a century is mainly due to his efforts, as well as the production of the finest varieties of grapes and roses.
