The cases of A. R. McDowell and W. A. Maines against Peter McCool resulted in verdicts of $1519.93 and $389 respectively for the plaintiffs. The suits were taken up Monday and the vardicts returned next. McCool bought $2000 worth of stock in the National Coal Co. operating on the Duffy place a short distance north of Kearn's Crossing, from each of the plaintiffs, and when the balance due on these purchases were not paid suits were entered. McCool then commenced equity proceedings and C. A. McElvain was appointed receiver of the mine and company. McCool's defense was that he had been deceived by the plaintiffs representing to him that the debts were $1400 when in reality they were $3400, the burden of paying which would fall on him. He also claimed he was not liable for the debt claimed by Mainea claiming Isaac McBride was the purchaser of that stock. The mine at North Butler is said to be a valuable one.
