The People's Candidates.

FOR PRESIDENT, WM. H. HARRISON.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, FRANÇOIS GRANGER.

Democratic Antimasonic Candidate for Governor, JOSEPH RITNER.

The celebrated Indian Chief, OCHLOA, one of those who were made victims of the treachery and dastardly policy of Gen. Jesup, died recently at Fort Moultrie, after an illness of a few days.

The Ladies Book.

The February number of this "Book of Books" has just reached us. It far exceeds its predecessors, and cannot fail to enhance the distinguished reputation it already enjoys. It is embellished by a delicately tinted engraving of the Fishion, and two pages of popular music. The literary contents are generally from well known contributors, whose praise the trump of fame has long since sounded in "loneliest accents." The first article is the 2d Act of "Ormond Greenacre," a tragedy from the pen of the accomplished Mrs. Hazle. It is a powerful dramatic effort and depicts, in vivid colors, scenes in the times which "tried men's souls"—when our forefathers, with souls that "liberty inspired" with knowledge of just rights and equal laws, "determined to throw off the shackles of tyranny."

"And yield their only homage to the God of Heaven."

The respective characters in the drama are well sustained, and their individuality preserved, and so far the interest of the narrative is on the increase. We shall look with impatience for the conclusion.

"Sanzas, by Grenville Mellen," are in his usual strain of smooth, harmonious verse.

"A Sermon in a Garden," reminds us of Hervey. In most beautiful and picturesque style the writer embodies much good philosophy and sound moral precept.

"The Emigrants' Daughter," by Mrs. Sigourney. The mention of this author's name is ample praise.

"Althea Pever," is the continuation of a lively sprightly narration, by Miss Leslie, designed to convey a useful lesson to the mind of the attentive reader.

"Luisa to Mrs. Hemans," by J. E. Vail, are well worthy of dedication to the "Queen of Song."

"The Murderer's Fate," is a well written, stirring tale, descriptive of the danger of placing too much reliance on circumstantial evidence, in criminal trials. The story is an exciting one.

"Female Education" contains many useful practical hints on this all-important subject—every parent should read it.

"The Three Pictures," by Miss Medina, is a brilliant production, and in a tale of great power and thrilling pathos, inculcates the homely advice "think, before you speak."

There are other pieces of merit, but our space forbids a notice. We cannot, however, refrain from a mention of two pieces of sweetest poetry, "The Star of Hope," by Miss Boyle, and "Come with me," by Mrs. C. L. Hertz.

The publisher remarks that a correct likeness of the present Queen of England will appear in the next number—and in the July number a portrait of Mrs. Sigourney. The publishers are certainly using every effort to render their "Book acceptable, and we think a generous public will properly appreciate it.

We learn from the National Intelligencer that the Rev. Henry A. Muhlenberg has been nominated by President Van Buren, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Austria.

The Philadelphia Inquirer of Wednesday last, says: "On the 25th ult. the House of Representatives of Michigan adopted a resolution, by a vote of 42 to 4, instructing their Senators, and requesting their Representatives in Congress to vote against any measure which has for its object the annexation of Texas to the Union, for the reasons that it would be unnecessarily extending our territory, and create discontents which might endanger the stability of the Union."

The Legislature of Ohio, have unanimously adopted a resolution, protesting against the annexation of Texas to the United States. A proposition has likewise been adopted, making the entire property of stockholders liable for the debts of the banks in which they are respectively interested, by a vote of 41 to 28.

Mr. Rives.

A letter from Washington says: "At a meeting of the Cabinet a short time ago, it was decided by the secretaries, that if Mr. Rives could not be conciliated, the only alternative would be to lay him aside, which you are aware could be easily effected by simply instructing the Senate of Virginia to instruct their Senator to vote for something he will not. Of course he would immediately resign, in conformity with the conditions on which he was elected."

Society of Equal Rights.

We would again call the attention of our readers to this interesting Institution. In the midst of many difficulties its career of prosperity has been onward, and we believe that it has had, and is designed to exert a still greater and more beneficial influence upon the morals and literature of our borough. The building, originally erected for the Methodist denomination, and recently purchased by the Society, has been completely refitted. It has been divided into two general compartments. The first and lower one is subdivided into three rooms, one of which is beautifully furnished and occupied as the 'Hall' of the Society—the other two rooms are plainly and comfortably fitted and will be occupied during the present year for school rooms.

The second and upper division is a large and spacious Hall 57 feet by 42, well calculated for public meetings, exhibitions, &c. It has always been a subject of regret that our borough was not possessed of a room adapted for these purposes. And now that this Society, with limited means, has, with praiseworthy zeal, met this public want, and fitted up a Hall for public use, it is confidently expected that every citizen will lend a helping hand to a Society which, if encouraged and fostered, will become an honor to our borough.

The grand design of the Society as expressed in its charter, is "the cultivation of the intellectual faculties—the promotion of morals—and the dissemination of useful information." This is accomplished by holding regular weekly meetings—when essays are read—and questions of a moral and literary character discussed. To their debates, each member has the liberty of introducing one gentleman and two ladies. We believe that it is also the intention of the Society to establish a Reading Room, and connect with it a cabinet of minerals.

The terms of membership are Fifty Cents entrance fee, and Twenty-five cents quarterly. This money is devoted entirely to the increase of the Library—and if the citizens would become members, the funds arising from this source would put the Society in possession of a large and splendid library.

We have thus endeavored to show the objects and intentions of this Society, and we much mistake if they fail to arrest the attention of every good citizen.

The following extract we make from the charter of the Society, as containing their principles: "SECTION 9. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the following shall be the fundamental articles of the said Society: Article 1. This association shall forever hereafter be designated by the name and title of 'The Society of equal Rights of Carlisle, Pennsylvania.' Article 2. The objects of the society shall be the cultivation of the intellectual faculties, the promotion of morals, and the dissemination of useful information.

Article 3. The officers of this society shall consist of a president, two vice presidents, a secretary, a treasurer, and a librarian, who shall be elected quarterly, by ballot, on the first meetings of the society in the months of March, June, September and December. Article 4. No person shall be admitted a member of the society without he is recommended as a person of good moral character, and unimpeachably attached to the objects of the society."

Article 5. Each person on being admitted a member of this society, shall pay such entrance money, and quarterly dues and contributions as the society may by their by-laws, from time to time declare. Article 7. Any member may be removed from office, or expelled from the society, whose quarterly dues or other contributions are due and unpaid for six months, for a violation of these articles, for a breach of trust reposed in him by the society, and for improper conduct, rendering him an unfit associate for men of honor and honesty, provided he is afforded an opportunity of making a defence before the society, in the manner prescribed by the by-laws.

Article 7. Stated meetings of the society may be held weekly, at such time and place as may from time to time be regulated and declared by the society, and five members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; special meetings shall be called by the president, at the written request of five members. Article 8. By-laws must be proposed at least one month previous to their adoption, and a motion to alter or repeal a by-law, must be lay over at least one month prior to its being acted upon.

Article 9. That the first and second articles are hereby declared unalterable, and that said society shall not be dissolved, while there are three members willing to continue it.

First Lessons in Draying. Through the politeness of the publishers, W. MARSHALL & Co. Philadelphia, we have received a large sheet of neat and beautiful lithographic engravings, bearing the above title, and intended for the use of schools, lyceums and families. They have been prepared by JOSHUA HOLBROOK, so long and so favorably known for his assiduous and untiring devotion in the cause of general education. They consist of drawings of familiar objects in nature, and are intended to aid and encourage the youthful seeker after knowledge. We think that they will exert an important influence over the juvenile mind, which they will teach it to think for itself, and not overlook the memory. We think also that these "Lessons" are well calculated for the object designed by their esteemed inventor. We invite those of our readers, who are desirous of viewing them, to call at our office.

There was a "tremendous big meeting," as Jack Downing says, on Wednesday evening last, in the city of New York composed of the mechanics and working men, at which resolutions in opposition to the Sub-Treasury scheme were unanimously adopted.

Pennsylvania Legislature.

Correspondence of the Herald & Expositor.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER, DATED HARRISBURG, FEB. 12, 1838.

Mr. Barclay and Mr. Miller of the city, addressed the Senate on Mr. Darrah's resolutions and the amendments dependent thereon. When this debate will draw to a conclusion God only knows; there is as yet little prospect of an early termination.

Mr. Leet, chairman of the committee appointed to visit the Eastern Penitentiary, reported. The report was accompanied with a bill for the better regulation of that institution.

Several bills for the incorporation of coal companies were reported.

In the House, Mr. Gilmore submitted a preamble and resolutions, against Silas Wright's Sub-Treasury system. Mr. G. and Mr. Johnson, who submitted similar resolutions on Saturday, belong to "the party." This looks well; the collar being to wear too hard. They have gone thus far, but further they cannot. Philadelphia, we at least give indication that there is no Conservatism in the House sufficient to modify it in essential particulars should it pass.

Mr. Ryan offered antagonist resolutions—they go the whole hog for the divorce-sub-treasury bill.

Mr. Spackman, who was elected in Philadelphia on Friday last, appeared, was qualified, and took his seat.

A great part of the time of the session was consumed in the presentation of petitions, among which the remonstrances against the annexation of Texas came in for a large share.

TUESDAY 6—Every day petitions are presented in the Senate, and to-day the usual number were submitted.

Mr. James reported a bill to grant the right of trial by jury to every human being, where personal liberty is concerned; also a bill to incorporate the Bristol Steam Tow Boat and Canal Transportation Company. Bills for the incorporation of several coal companies were reported.

Mr. Darrah's resolutions, after some debate were postponed indefinitely by a vote of 16 to 12.

In the House the long expected report of Mr. McElwee before the House—It is pretty well written, going the whole hog against that work, and recommends the immediate abandonment of it. The minority of the committee may be expected to report in a few days.

Some debate was had on the improvement bill in committee of the whole.

THE DREAMER.

No. 11.

I am not one of those queer kind of fellows who ever set down on a bed stone to count grains of sand, or the rose of a sea-fish, or bothered myself like other great men, to find out, by astronomical observations, whether the sun, moon and planets were inhabited with beings—such as we are—or whether they are odd fishes with wings, like bats, &c. No—my attention has been directed to matters more useful to society.

Any fool may ride full gallop after the perpetual motion; or break his neck in search of the Philosopher's stone. But this is rather getting off the track of my subject. In my first number I alluded to the formation of a club called the Dreaming Association. I stated its object. The following is an extract from the minutes of the last meeting:

Head Quarters, February 7, 1838. The Hon. Miss Babble took the chair and called the members of order. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and adopted. nem. con. when, on motion, it was ordered that all gentlemen who have most shamefully and disgracefully wasted their time and youth in the pursuit of that knowledge, which never yet proved a benefit to themselves, to the community, and much less to this Association—the admitted as members—and that they be advised to wear some particular badge, in proof that they were worse than knaves in pursuit of their eyes-shut, or learning to see with their philosophy—after listening to a course of scientific lectures—and which may serve in terrorem to prevent others from the adoption of similar absurd habits.

Immediately after the adoption of the above resolution, the following communication from a lovesick swain, was laid on the table and ordered to be read.

To the Right Hon. President and Ladies of the Dreaming Association. The pen which now addresses you comes from one who has indulged himself in the fond dreams of anticipation—who has breathed out his bitter load of grief into the bosom of compassion and love—and whose imagination has pencilled out a little scene, which he hopes one day to see realized.

Already he thinks he can point to the treasure which bespeaks his future happiness—and since being so enthusiastic and devoted in his attention, claims a seat beyond dispute in your society—to be classed among the dreamers. Should you deem him worthy your notice, the honor conferred will be highly gratifying, as the employment will be the most constant and agreeable of his life—be it real or imaginary, it conduces to happiness—and if it prove but ideal, it is easily acquired, and the visionary fabric costs no pains in weaving.

"Delicious dream! how often dost thou give a gleam of bliss which truth would but destroy! Oft dost thou bid my drooping heart revive, and catch one cheerful glimpse of transient joy. O come then, Fancy, and with lenient hand Dry my moist cheek, and smooth my furrowed brow.

Bear me o'er smiling tracts of 'Cumberland,' And give me more than fortune can bestow."

OYSER. RAIL ROAD JOURNAL. This is the title of a paper which has been published for several years past in the city of New York, by Messrs. Minor and Shaffer. It has been devoted principally to the cause of internal improvements, and incidentally to the physical sciences, manufactures, agriculture, mechanics, and the arts. Some time last fall, owing to the state of the times, and the indisposition of subscribers to remit their dues, its publication was suspended. It is hereafter to be published in a form similar to the English publications—more convenient for preservation and reference. We commend it to those who feel an interest in the subject upon which it treats, as a valuable depository of useful intelligence.—Springfield Pioneer.

Mr. Webster and the Hartford Convention.—There never was a more groundless calumny than that which charges Mr. Webster with being connected, in any way or form, with the Hartford Convention. The Hartford Convention was held in the winter of 1814-15. Mr. Webster was then a member of Congress. Congress assembled, in the proclamation of Mr. Madison, in September, and Mr. Webster was in New York early in the session. When he left New Hampshire, where he then lived, no proposal had been made by any State to hold any Convention; nor had such a project been agitated, it is believed, by any person.

The Government of the State of New Hampshire had no part in the Convention. Two counties on the river sent delegates, but as a State, New Hampshire had no concern in it. Mr. Webster remained at Washington through the session, or until one of his last days, until the Hartford Convention was over, and until the peace arrived. When at home, his residence was at Portsmouth, a hundred miles from the counties which sent delegates. Thus, neither from Mr. Webster's location, when at home, nor from his public station and employments, at the time the Convention was held, could he have had any connexion with this body, unless by correspondence; and, after twenty years' search, not a scrawl of a pen can be found which shows the slightest connexion of Mr. Webster with the Convention, or any of its proceedings. The truth is, he was never consulted in respect to the propriety of holding this Convention, and he never gave it the least aid or countenance. The country is challenged, the members of the Hartford Convention now in Van Buren's ranks are challenged, to gain say a single word of this statement.

As to the published proceedings of the Convention, Mr. Webster himself thus speaks, in his celebrated speech, delivered in 1830, in reply to Col. Haynes: "I have nothing to do, sir, with the Hartford Convention. I joined it never. I was as far as those proceedings can be shown to be disloyal to the Constitution, or prejudicial to its disunion, so far I shall be as ready as any one to bestow on them reprehension and censure."

In the face of these facts, which have been substantially stated in the public prints, over and over again, for the last fifteen years, and never contradicted, what man hereafter will be so void of all fairness and decency as to charge Mr. Webster with having been connected with it, or giving aid or countenance to the Hartford Convention? We shall see.

LOUCKS' Famous Cure for the Rheumatism and other Pains.

Much need not be said in relation to this wonderful remedy, as the proprietor feels confident that when applied, it will, as can be proven by the number of respectable persons, effect an entire cure of the Rheumatism and other pains. It had not until lately been his intention to make it public; but by the frequent applications of his neighbours, and the wonderful cures it has effected, he feels it a duty he owes to society as well as himself, to make it more generally known and at the same time have it put as near as he can, within the reach of all who may be afflicted with that painful disease.

Hundreds of names could be published of persons who have been cured by this celebrated medicine, but the following are selected from the mass, as being amply sufficient to attest its power.

POSTSCRIPT.

BY THIS AFTERNOON'S MAIL. By the Harrisburg Telegraph of this morning we learn that the instructing resolutions in relation to the Sub-Treasury Scheme, passed the House on yesterday afternoon in the following shape:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That our Representatives in Congress be requested, and our Senators instructed, to vote and use their influence for a postponement until the next session of Congress, of the act introduced by the Hon Silas Wright, of New York, commonly called the Sub-Treasury Bill, or any other acts or acts of a similar character, and that they vote at this session for no act of a similar nature.

This resolution was adopted by a vote of 51 to 49. Messrs Gargas and Woodruff, of course, voted in the negative. Mr Garrison moved to add the following as an amendment to the resolution: "And that we have full confidence in Martin Van Buren, and in the wisdom and integrity of our democratic Senators and Representatives in Congress."

Which was passed—yeas 66, nays 44. Mr Hopkins then moved to add the following: "And our Senators are hereby further instructed, and our Representatives requested, to vote for such a mode of receiving, keeping, and disbursing the public money, as will separate, as far as practicable, the hands of the government."

Which passed by a vote of 51 to 49. These all form one resolution. Resolved, That the Governor be requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing resolution to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

To the Citizens of Cumberland County. The Auditors of the county take the liberty of stating the amount of fees paid by the county for arrests, &c. for vagrancy and intemperance in the borough of Carlisle, for the year 1837. Constables fees $87 32. Justice's " 69 50. Sheriff's " 135 65. $292 47. The Auditors are of opinion that a considerable portion of the above expenses are occasioned by over-officious exertions in some of the civil officers of the borough, particularly the constables.

From the numerous arrests for intemperance and vagrancy, there is too much the appearance of being made a business instead of a duty; and a comparison of cases between the last and a few previous years, justifies the presumption that it is so, or else the cause of temperance has been retrograding instead of progressing. In comparing the constables fees for arrests, &c. in the borough of Carlisle, for 1829, with those of 1837, for similar services, we find the increase in proportion as 1 to 19. The Auditors beg leave to recommend a more special examination, hereafter, by the Justices, before they commit, and a more full representation of proof in sending for a lodged vagrancy, as many have been committed to prison during the last year, whom the Auditors have reason to believe would not come within the description given by the law of such as may be considered vagrants.
