

From the New York Courier of Saturday. Departure of the Great Western for Bristol.

Yesterday was a gala day for New York, and celebrated in a manner rarely equalled for splendor and effect. The weather, which for several days previous had been cloudy and disagreeable, was genial and serene—and a bright sunshine looked down auspiciously upon the busy movements of the populace.

The event leading to the Great Western was so crowded with carriages and spectators, that it was with some difficulty the passengers could make their way on board. They finally succeeded, however, and at the hour appointed, (two o'clock,) Capt. Hosken made his appearance, and the preparations for departure were made.

The bell was rung—the band struck up—“Behold how brightly breaks the morning,” and the visitors on board, who were not disposed to go down to the Narrows, hastily shook hands with their friends and quitted the boat. Many, however, remained, to be taken off by some of the numerous steamers, which followed in her train.

As the boat swung and pitched in the extreme. Around were some ten or fifteen steam boats, with flags flying and decks completely covered with spectators. The pier in front was piled with a dense multitude. The roofs and windows of the houses along the river seemed hung with curious gazers—add to which the immense crowds, which filled Castle Garden and the Battery—and it does not seem unreasonable to compute, that the number of people taken in by the coup d'ad on the upper deck of the Great Western, was between seventy and one hundred thousand!

The different Boat Clubs of the city seemed to be on the alert; and they added much to the beauty of the scene as they glided past in their neat and delicate craft. As the Great Western unloosed her moorings, she was surrounded by a host of boats, which were reported to be some of the hands of the adjoining steam boats with, “God save the Queen.” The meteor flag of England and the stars and stripes of the United States were displayed in friendly contiguity. Three hearty cheers were given by the vast multitude of spectators on shore—and as many more were sent back from the Great Western till the welkin rang again. The scene was indeed a memorable and interesting one. It was as if the old world and the new had shaken hands across the broad Atlantic, and a nation's voice had gone up, to hail the glorious compact.

The Great Western went up the river some distance in fine style, and then rounded to and proceeded on her way toward the Hook. A discharge of cannon proclaimed her departure. She had not proceeded many miles before gentlemen and ladies on board were invited to a handsome collation in the cabin, where the health of Capt. Hosken and success to the Great Western were drunk with three times three cheers. There was not the slightest perceptible motion to the boat notwithstanding the wind was high. The interior arrangements of this superb vessel have been so minutely described that it may be useless for us to allude to them. We will only say that the beautiful paintings of Parris, with which the panels of the state rooms are adorned, commanded universal admiration, and were regarded as adding much to the attractions of the boat.

As the fleet of steam boats swept down our noble harbor—with their banners flying—music playing—and their crowds of enthusiastic passengers—the sun flashing while the gallant steamer, whose massive dimensions and dark sides beautifully contrasted with their lighter proportions and gay colors, floated proudly in advance of her attendants—we could not but exult in the reflection that no other city on the face of the earth could exhibit a parallel pageant. No where was ever such a spectacle exhibited—and no where but on the waters of our own glorious Hudson could such a magnificent display have been witnessed—combining as it did, all that is grand and beautiful in Nature, with all that is skillful in Art and cunning in handy work—all that is noble in man's invention, and affluent in man's resources.

At half past four, the Great Western had passed the Narrows, and the steam boat Providence came alongside to receive her visitors. The transference was effected with but little delay—and the Great Western finally departed on her course over the broad Atlantic, followed by the cheers and good wishes of the multitudes who thronged the different boats which surrounded her. When last seen, she was gliding majestically over the waves, while a dark column of vapour marked her towards the horizon. Success attend her. A nobler and more gratifying pageant than that of yesterday was never witnessed in New York. The importance of the great enterprise in our intercourse with the old world, produced by the steam navigation of Atlantic, appears to have been duly appreciated by the people of this city, and has been duly commemorated.

Col. Wren, the senior editor of this paper, was a passenger in the Great Western, which left this port yesterday for Bristol. He will remain a few weeks in England and on the continent, with a view to arrangements for the paper, made necessary by the new relations opened between this country and Europe, by the successful issue of the experiment of Atlantic steam navigation.

HERALD & EXPOSITOR. BY GEORGE H. PHILLIPS.

CARLISLE. TUESDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 15, 1838.

The People's Candidates, FOR PRESIDENT, WM. H. HARRISON, FOR GOVERNOR, JOSEPH BITNER, The Washington county Farmer.

We issue our paper this week somewhat earlier than usual, to give our hands an opportunity of doing in the military sports which will be connected to-day. Consequently our weekly report of the Philadelphia and Baltimore markets is omitted, as they have not been received at the time of our putting to press.

Governor Ritner. The prospects of the re-election of our present worthy Governor are really cheering. From every section of the State we receive accounts of large meetings of the bone and sinew of the country, friendly to the good cause.

It is a truth which cannot be denied, that Governor Ritner has done more to advance the interests of Pennsylvania than any other Governor she ever had. He is a true Republican—in his manners, honest, possessing business habits—of strong intellect, and devoted to the interests of the PEOPLE. He is just such a man as the yeomanry of Pennsylvania delight to honor.

The election of Gov. Ritner will be the downfall of loco fociism, not only in this State, but throughout the Union. Desperate efforts by his opponents may therefore be expected to defeat him. It then becomes the duty of our friends in this county to buckle on their armor for the approaching contest, and use their mightiest strength, to rescue the country from its ravagers. We hope good things from Old Cumberland.

A Calculation. At the election for Governor in 1835, in this Senatorial District, composed of Adams, Franklin, and Cumberland, there was a majority of 1233 against the Old Farmer. At the election last fall, the Ritner Senators received a majority of about 500 in the district, showing a gain of upwards of FIFTEEN HUNDRED votes. As the election in Adams and Franklin was thinly attended, we may reasonably expect the majorities in those counties to be so increased at the next election as to show a GAIN of upwards of 2000 VOTES!

If the rest of the state should do as well, the farmer Governor will have an overwhelming majority. Mr. Clay's Currency Resolutions. We regret to perceive that Mr. Clay's Currency Resolutions have been adopted in the Senate by the whole Van Buren party! Its object was to prohibit any discrimination as to the currency or medium of payment in the several branches of the public revenue or in debts and dues to the Government, and requiring that the notes of any specie-paying bank should, under salutary regulations be received in payment of the debts and dues to the Government, and be disbursed to all public creditors who may be willing to receive them.

This resolution was referred by a party vote—23 to 19—to the Finance Committee, a majority of which are opposed to it, and this its fate is sealed. The adoption of this resolution by Congress would do more to restore confidence in the community, to revive commerce and enable the Banks to resume specie payments, than all the HUMBUGS which the administration can devise. It is thus evident that “the party” at Washington intend to persist in their destructive war upon credit, business and the best interests of the country.

We had hoped the recent expressions of disapprobation at the course of the government, which the elections have shown, would cause the President and his advisers to pause in their mad career—but the hope is vain. The people must not look for aid from their present rulers, but must take the correction of abuses into their own hands. The ballot box is their only hope. The political revolution is now progressing gloriously, and ere long we expect to see the power of the present corrupt National Administration paralyzed and the will of the PEOPLE PREVAIL.

Solvent Debtors. In Pennsylvania we have an act of Assembly for the relief of Insolvent Debtors. This act is founded in humanity to those who, in the course of business or otherwise, are unable to discharge their lawful debts. Its operation is in many cases attended with the beneficial effects which the benevolent legislators who framed it intended. Like all other laws it is occasionally taken advantage of by the corrupt and dishonest. Men with their pockets filled, and in the enjoyment of every comfort of life sometimes find it convenient and profitable, as a mere matter of speculation to become insolvent—take the benefit of the Insolvent laws, and thus defraud their creditors—Such men frequently afterwards become wealthy, but by holding property in the names of other persons, contrive to evade their creditors. Such individuals may be called Solvent Debtors. We regret to state that DAVID R. PORTER, the Loco Foco candidate for Governor in a Solvent Debtor, in the fullest sense of the term. Although he has been in office for twenty years, and made from the public purse his tens of thousands, and is now a rich man—and although he can sport with his blighted horses, and bet his hundreds and thousands upon a horse race; yet he cannot be compelled to pay a trifling claim to the honest mechanic, labourer or store keeper, who was so unfortunate as to trust him. This may be according to law, but it is not according to justice. It may be profitable, but is it HONEST? We say in this case, protest us from David R. Porter, the SOLVENT DEBTOR.

DAVID R. PORTER. It is really quite amusing to witness the efforts of the loco foco press, to induce the people to believe that their candidate for Governor is a pretty considerable character.

At one-time he is pictured forth as a martial hero, in a cocked hat with huge sword and long spurs; there he is called GENERAL AL Porter. This sounds well, and does well to catch the people's admiration for heroes. So much for the Commander in chief of the bloody Huntingdon Militia. Then again it becomes necessary for him to appear in the character of an agriculturalist, and then he is spoken of as David Ritnerhouse Porter, the farmer, and occasionally in a good honest Dutch county, as the German farmer. This is good again, and may be considered as a master stroke of policy; David is doubtless as good a farmer as he is a soldier. He has been farming the public offices for the last twenty years which would certainly qualify him for the title. Having descended from Irish or Scotch parentage, we scarcely know how, upon fair principles, he can be allowed the appellation of German farmer, unless as has been elsewhere suggested that his wife's mother was a Dutchman, or else, what we conceive to be an equally cogent reason, that his brother James of Northampton county, plays up on the German flute.

THE KNICKERBOCKER.—We did not receive the April number of this admirable periodical until within a few days, and consequently could not notice its contents before the present time. But “it is better late than never,” as it is always a welcome visitor to our table; for it never fails to be well stored with useful, interesting, and instructive articles, both in prose and poetry. The number before us contains some excellent and entertaining productions in prose, among which are “The Power of Mind,” by R. Babcock, jr., D. D. late President of Waterville College—“Effects of Familiarity,” by T. H. Shreve, Esq. of Kentucky—“Shakespeare's Third Age, the Lover,” “Scenes and Adventures in the East,” by J. S. Buckingham, Esq.—“Our Wedding Days,” by Chief Justice Mellon, of Maine—“Letters from Rome,”—“A chapter in the eventful history of the renowned Indian Chief, Captain Brant,” by Colonel Wm. L. Stone, of New York. Among the poetical effusions, are “The Omnipotence of God,” by Park Benjamin, Esq.—“Lines to my Wife,” by the Rev. G. W. Beluone, of Philadelphia—“The Escape of Mary, Queen of Scots, from Lochleven Castle,” “The Baron's last Banquet,” by Albert G. Greene, Esq. of Rhode Island—“I would not live Away,” by Wm. Goulter, Esq.—and “Complaint of the Violets.” The “Literary Notices,” and the “Editors' Table,” are, as usual, quite interesting; but the whole work will recommend itself to every intelligent reader, as it is condensed on all sides to be one of the best periodicals of the kind published either in Europe or America. It is issued monthly in New York, at $5 per annum in advance, making two volumes within the year, each embracing more than 600 large octavo pages, upon fine paper and new type. The editor of this paper is agent for The Knickerbocker in this place, and he will always be happy to send on the names of those who may feel desirous of patronizing a work of sterling merit, such as this unquestionably is.
