CARLISLE

FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 19, 1838. The People's Candidate,

FOR PRESIDENT, GEN. W. H. HARRISON.

We issued no paper last week, in consequence of the confusion attending the election; but the loss will be our's, and not our subscribers'. We have also delayed the publication of our paper this week, in order to lay before our readers the fullest returns of the election which we could procure.

We send this number of our paper to those persons who subscribed until the election, and request such of them as desire to discontinue it, to return this number, with their names and places of residence written thereon. Those who do not return it, will be considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions, and will receive it accordingly.

The Late Election.

"The long agony is over'---'we have met the enemy, and'-we are their's! Contrary to our expectation and wishes, the friends of David R. Porter have suceceded in electing him Governor of the State. We did our best to prevent such a result; but all our efforts were in vain. The friends of Gov. Rither did their duty manfully in this county, by preventing their opponents from receiving more than half the majority which they claimed. The number of votes polled in the county was upwards of five thousand, and it is some consolation to know that we run the enemy hard in this their heretofore strong-hold, of which they boasted so much previous to the election. If we have been beaten, we have not been killed -- we have only received a slight defeat through the extraordinary excrtions and influence of the general government --- and we now give notice to the whole loco toco Van Buren party, that we shall continue to fight until victory shall again perch upon our blancers. As soon as his appointments shall have been made, Gov Porter's maforfly will sink into nothing, and he will be left in a miscrable minority. Like William Findlay, he will be defeated by his own partisans, and be supplainted by a patriotic German and a well tried statesman of the northern part of the state.

cuse to cover, in some measure, the falsehoods which the attacks of the Herald. he published before the election in relation to the majority in this county. He declared, time after time, of Porter's majority in this county!

pay of the general government! 'It was, in the estimation of the Volunteer, all fair for these men to exercise the right of suffrage, because they were in factorious the volunteer and fair for these men to exercise the right of suffrage, because they were in factorious the volunteer and fair for these men to exercise the right of suffrage, because they were in factorious tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous, bout from one party to the other in search of office cannot surely succeed in a contest like this, because they were in factorious tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and Benjamin Reinous tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and tripled trimmers, who are continually shifting and tripled trimmers. vor of Porter; but it was not altogether fair that the industrious and hard-fisted men engaged at the Iron or support of ANY party. This comes with a very limited thinks differently, and those way he some of twice every year. is a pretty story, indeed! And it comes with a very lunteer thinks differently, and there may be some of bad grace from the senior editor of the Volunteer, his readers as silly as himself! whose junior partner openly attempted to commit a Faud at the inspector's election, by offering his vote to be constable, when he knew that he was flot of age! Any & e who imposes upon a constable or inspector, and ther by obtains a vote which he knows he is not not been able to procure such list; we merely give the legally entied to, is guilty of rnaun and he who at-tempts it, the he fail in obtaining it, is not a whit the less guilty. The junior having made a very bold attempt to somm, fraud, we therefore call upon the senior editor to im tigate the case and lay the facts before the public.
