CONSUMPTION CURED.

The Indian Specific,

For the prevention and cure of Coughs, Colds, Asthmas, Consumptions, spitting of Blood, and diseases of the breast and lungs, &c.

Doctor LARKSON FREEMAN, the proprietor of the specific, resided upwards of four years among the tribes of North American Indians, and with unwearied diligence used every means in his power to acquire a knowledge of the different remedies used by them, for the cure of the sick and wounded; and more particularly those which they take to prevent and cure the consumption, and complaints of the breast and lungs. He observed the Indians were subject to numerous and similar complaints to those of white people; and from their mode of living, and being exposed to the inclemency of all weathers, many of their complaints were complicated and violent. Although many of their diseases were of such a nature as would, with a people in a civilized state have terminated in confirmed consumptions; yet, during the time he was with them, he did not hear of a consumption.

So happy are they in their knowledge of remedies, and so certain of their effects—when applied in time, that it may be said "a true consumption is a disease never known among them." The truth of this observation must be corroborated by all who have had the opportunity of becoming acquainted with these people. It may then be asked why they are exempt from these complaints? The reason is obvious; because they immediately seek for relief, and prevent those complaints which insensibly undermine the constitution, and bring on irrecoverable consumption.

Bills of direction accompany each bottle of the Specific, pointing out in a conspicuous manner, all the symptoms in the different stages of these distressing diseases, and particular directions respecting Diet and Regimen, and how patients are to conduct themselves through every stage until health is restored; for vain and useless would be the prescriptions of the ablest physician, accompanied by the most powerful medicines, if his directions are not faithfully adhered to.

The public are informed that the depositions of two hundred and eighty-seven persons have been taken before the proper authorities of the city of Lancaster, Pa., all completely cured of the most desperate cases of consumption, some of which are detailed in the bills accompanying the bottle.

The price of each bottle of the INDIAN SPECIFIC is One Dollar, and each enveloping the genuine Specific is signed by Dr. Clarkson Freeman, and the initials C. F. on the seal of each bottle. None can be genuine without this signature; a base composition having been attempted to be imposed upon the public by a counterfeit imitation of this extraordinary article.

☞ A supply of the above specific is kept constantly for sale by SAMUEL ELLIOTT of Carlisle and by Samuel Wilson, Shippensburg.

Beckwith's Anti-Dyspeptic Pills.

(ENTIRELY VEGETABLE,)

The reputation of which has now become established as the most safe and certain remedy ever discovered for restoring health to persons suffering under every disease for which they are recommended.

Wherever these pills have been once introduced into a family, they become a standing remedy, and are called for again and again, which is sufficient proof of their good qualities.

The medicine having met with the unanimous approbation of those who have fairly employed it, according to the directions, is recommended with increased confidence to the public, in every variety of functional disorder of the Stomach, Bowels, Liver and Spleen, such as Heartburn, Acidity of the Stomach and Bowels, Diarrhœa, Colic, Jaundice, Flatulency, Dysentery, habitual costiveness, loss of appetite, sick Headache, Sea Sickness, &c. &c. They are also well adapted to the diseases of women and children. Literary men, students, and all other persons of sedentary habits, find them very convenient. Those who indulge too freely in the pleasures of the table, find speedy relief from the distress of oppression and distension which follows, by taking the Pills. As a dinner Pill, they are invaluable. Those who use drinking mineral waters, and particularly those from southern climates and ague and fever districts, will find them highly beneficial. Those who are exposed to the vicissitudes of weather, on journeys or voyages, can take them at all times with perfect safety, and without inconvenience. In full doses, they are a highly efficacious and safe Anti-Bilious Medicine.—They never produce sickness at the stomach, or griping.

From the Rt. Rev. Levi S. Ives D. D.,
Bishop of North Carolina.

"Raleigh, March 12, 1838.

"Having for the last three years been intimately acquainted with Dr. John Beckwith, of this city, and enjoyed his professional services, I take pleasure in stating that his character as a Christian gentleman, and experienced Physician, entitles his testimony, in regard to the use of his Anti-Dyspeptic Pills, to the entire confidence of the public. My experience of the good effects of these Pills, for two years past, satisfies me of their eminent value, particularly in aiding an impaired digestion, and warding off bilious attacks. Having been for a long time subject to the annual recurrence of such attacks; I was in the habit of resorting for security against them, and with very partial success, to a liberal use of Calomel or Blue Pill. But since my acquaintance with the Anti-Dyspeptic Pill of Dr. Beckwith, which he prescribed in the first instance himself, I have not been under the necessity of using mercury in any form, besides being wholly exempt from bilious attacks. Several members of my family are experiencing the same beneficial effects.

INDIAN QUEEN HOTEL.

SOUTH FOURTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

DAVID MILLER,

RESPECTFULLY informs his friends and the public, that he has removed from the Western Hotel in Market street, to that large and commodious hotel formerly kept by Mr. B. Duke, sign of the INDIAN QUEEN.

This hotel is situated in South Fourth street, between Market and Chestnut streets, in the very centre of the business part of the city, and will therefore be found very convenient for merchants and business men generally.

The buildings have been thoroughly and completely repaired by the subscriber, and no expense has been spared in arranging and furnishing the rooms so as to promote the order and convenience of those who favor him or the house with their custom.

Gentlemen travelling with their families can have private parlors furnished in the best manner with chambers attached to them, where they can enjoy privacy and seclusion, or the companionship of their friends, as may be most desirable.

The BAR and CELLARS have been provided with the best LIQUORS and the choicest WINES of every description.

The TABLE will at all times be supplied with every delicacy which the season and market can afford, and every exertion made to please the palate of his customers.

The READING ROOMS are well supplied with the leading journals of different cities, as well as with a great variety of the country journals of the State.

The SERVANTS will be found careful and trustworthy.

Attached to the hotel are very extensive STABLES, calculated to accommodate one hundred horses, and under the superintendance of careful and attentive hostlers.

D. M. returns his sincere acknowledgements for the very liberal encouragement heretofore received, and feeling confident that he can furnish his guests with fare which will please and satisfy, a comparison with other houses, and that his appointments, and their furniture, are fully equal to those of any other hotel in the city, he respectfully solicits a further share of public patronage.

Evangelical Music;

OR the Sacred Minstrel and Sacred Harp united; containing a great variety of Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Anthems, Set Pieces, &c. of the most approved character—by J. H. Hickok and George Fleming —2d edition, much enlarged and improved. Published and for sale by J. Whitham, Philadelphia—J. H. Hickok, Chambersburg, Pa.—George Fleming, Carlisle, Pa.—L. Loomis, Pittsburgh—Yale and Wyatt, Richmond, Va.—and Pearce and Beaubien, Natchez, Miss.

The publishers put forth this work with a view to meet the wants of the religious community; and its reception has been such as to afford the most flattering assurance that they have neither mistaken its wants nor vainly endeavored to supply them. A very large edition has in a short time been exhausted, and another called for. This demand determined the publishers to have the work stereotyped, and thus be enabled to keep up a supply for the demand.

This collection contains tunes suited to nearly every variety of measure found in the various Hymn Books in use, embraced in a very large collection of Psalm and Hymn tunes. Besides these, it contains a number of interesting anthems, set pieces, sacred songs, &c. easy of execution without the aid of instrumental accompaniments, and suited to various occasions of religious worship connected with the christian enterprize of the present day.

Teachers of Music, Musical Societies, Choirs, retailers and others, supplied on the most accommodating terms on application to either of the publishers.

T. OLIVER,

Reporter of Fashion & Teacher of Cutting Garments,

WOULD respectfully inform the Tailors, that he is now in Carlisle, where he intends remaining for several weeks. Persons wishing to try his system, can have it, with the necessary instructions, by calling at Carlisle. As regards the merits of this system, he deems it unnecessary to say much, as the system is so highly recommended by the most of the leading Tailors of Philadelphia.

THE COMMITTEE

On Science and the Arts, Constituted by the Franklin Institute of the State of Pennsylvania, for the promotion of the mechanic arts, to whom was referred for examination, the Shoulder measure System of T. Oliver, for the measuring and drafting of garments,

REPORT,

That the peculiarities of Mr. Oliver's System, consists in a division of one-fourth of what is called the Shoulder measure into thirteen equal parts, which parts are again divided into halves and quarters. This system also differs from all others, which the committee are acquainted with, in the following particulars, viz: 1st. That it is more simple and consequently easier learned and more accurately applied; the drafts and descriptions being so plain, that any person at all acquainted with garment cutting, can acquire a full knowledge of it in a few minutes. 2nd, that after the garment is drafted on this principle, any and every proof measure the cutter pleases to apply to it, will be found to accord with the draft. This great desideratum the committee thinks, has never been attained by any other method for drafting.

Various systems of cutting have appeared within the last few years, all, or nearly all of which have been examined by members of this committee, but without wishing to detract from the merits of any other system, not one so far, has been found entirely to answer the purpose for which it was intended.

The committee believe that Mr. Oliver's system is better calculated to obviate the difficulty under which Tailors have labored, than any of the above named systems, inasmuch as it establishes all the necessary points, and in such a manner as to convince the cutter that his draft is correct before he begins to cut his cloth. It appears to leave little or nothing to the judgment of the cutter, thus rendering the profession much less arduous than heretofore.

With regard to the originality of the system, the committee believe it impossible at the present day, to introduce a system of garment cutting entirely original; nevertheless, they believe Mr. Oliver's system to be as nearly original as the nature of the thing will admit. Several of the committee have tested the system, by cutting a number of coats by it, and they do not hesitate to give it their unqualified approbation.

Phila. Sept. 24, 1838.

Mr. Oliver—Sir—We have gave your system for cutting and drafting a fair trial, and believe it to be the best we have ever seen offered to the trade, and take pleasure in recommending it as such.

Warwick & Eldridge,
No. 22 Walnut street.

Phila. Oct. 11, 1838.

Mr Oliver—Sir—I have taken your improvements on the shoulder measure system, and am happy to state that it entirely meets my views. I have been cutting coats by your system and all perfect fitting coats, to the satisfaction of myself and customers, and recommend it to fellow tradesmen as a simple and correct guide.

Joseph H. Smith, South 2nd st.

Phila. Sept. 13, 1838.

Mr Oliver—Dear Sir—It is with the utmost cheerfulness we comply with your request, and are happy to state, that we fully concur in the encomiums bestowed on your Rule. As Shakspeare says, "Our doubts are traitors, and make us loose the good we oft might win, by fearing to attempt," for before we attempted a trial of your rule, we had arrived at the conclusion, that it was preferable to retain the rule we were then using, although we found some difficulty in varying to suit the different forms and proportions of men, but are compelled to admit that your rule completely and satisfactorily obviates those difficulties.

We would therefore recommend it to those who desire to suit their patrons in a style of beauty seldom equalled; and believe that when more fully known, it will be properly appreciated, and retain its popularity while other systems enjoy a transient celebrity, and are then consigned to oblivion. Very respectfully yours,

Lawrence & Monell,
No. 9, South 8th street.

Phila. Oct. 15th, 1838.

Mr T Oliver—Sir—We have taken your system of cutting garments, and have cut from fifteen to twenty coats by the same, and are happy to state that they have fitted to the entire satisfaction of ourselves and customers, and believe it to be the best system that has come under our notice. Very respectfully yours,

R D Pell & Brother, No 62 Chestnut street.

Phila. Oct. 13, 1838.

Mr Oliver—Sir—I have taken your system of cutting garments, and have cut several coats by it, which gave general satisfaction to myself and customers, and give it the preference over all others that ever came to my notice, and as such recommend it to the trade as a sure guide.

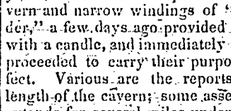
POETRY.



"——With sweetest flowers enriched,
From various gardens cull'd with care."

☞ The following beautiful lines to the "Coroduguet," which we copy from the Baltimore Sun, will be read with pride and interest by every inhabitant of our valley. They breathe the genuine spirit of poetry, and cannot fail to revive in the breasts of those who have spent "life's easy morn" upon the banks of the "long winding stream" the remembrance of the innocent and careless days of childhood.—Ed. Herald & Expositor.

To the Coroduguinet.

A beautiful winding stream in the Cumberland Valley, Pennsylvania.

BY J. WILLS.

Sweet winding stream,
How fancy's dream
Recalls thee to my sight,
And bids me think,
While on thy brink,
I knew life's first delight.

In youthful days
Thy murmuring lays
Fell softly on my ear;
The wild birds sung
On bough that hung
O'er thee, so calm and clear.

Oh! were I there,
Devoid of care,
As when I saw thee last,
This heart would beat
With joy complete,
And dream of pleasures past.

How oft I've seen,
Upon that green,
The young lambs skip and play—
But pleasure's hours,
Like vernal showers,
Are doomed to pass away.

The world I'd give
Once more to live,
With heart as light and free,
As when a boy,
To know that joy,
Bright stream, I've felt by thee.

In memory's waste
Thy name is traced,—
Flow on, bright stream, flow on,—
O'er golden sands,
By myrtle strands,—
Flow on, bright stream, flow on.

The Beautiful Dead.

BY RICHARD HOWITT.

From th' twilight we borrow
Fit solace for sorrow,
When the aged and weary lie down in their west:
And the sunset in splendor
Is touching and tender,
Where the dews of our sorrow fall warm on their rest.

But mighty's the anguish
Where beauty must languish,
And the young from the young in life's morning are riven;
When the dear spell is broken
Of vows fondly spoken,
And the form is recalled that in rapture was given.

Oh, vainly we linger
Where silence her finger
Has laid upon lips that no more may unclose;
Where sad leaves are sighing,
Where blossoms are dying,
O'er the young and the lovely in mortal repose.

The form that came lightly,
Like morn breaking brightly,
With hope as from Eden, all faded and o'er:
The presence endearing,
The smile that was cheering,
And step that was music, are with us no more.

WOMAN'S WIT, OR LOVE'S DISGUISES.

They sat within a bower of roses twined,
A pale, dark youth, beside a bright eyed girl:
Behind her parted lips shone wealth of pearl,
As, ever and anon, she, smiling, turned
To that dark youth: and he, with fervid mind,
Gazed on that bright-eyed girl, and madly drank
The beauty that on her fair features burned,
Till all their witchery to his heart's depth sank.
He seized her hand, and, borne upon the tide
Of swelling passion, straight before her knelt.
He felt—he felt—he knew not how he felt—
But feel he did, and said so, she replied,
"All very fine this, Master Tom, no doubt,
But does your anxious mother really know you're out?"

Singular Adventure.

In that well known and often visited Maddleton Dale, where the towering rocks stand in such majestic grandeur, capped with forest trees, and mantling ivy, the threatening attitude of which has often struck with the sublimest admiration and awe the mind of the idle wanderer, the careless pedestrain, and the tasteful and inquiring tourist—amidst the crags which surround the base of one of those stupendous rocks is a narrow creek, which leads through a long and rugged subterranean passage into a cavern called 'the Wonder,' but which, owing to its dangerous and rugged path, is not often visited but by the most enterprising and curious, and the most daring children of the High Peakers. Four boys of the latter description, from the village of Eyam, about the age of eleven years, ambitious to explore the secret cavern and narrow windings of "The Wonder," a few days ago provided themselves with a candle, and immediately after dinner proceeded to carry their purposes into effect. Various are the reports as to the length of the cavern; some asserting that it extends for several miles under the neighboring hills. It is not often exploded further than about 300 or 400 yards; to which point it appears our youthful subterraneous travellers extended their route, when unfortunately for them, a drop of water from the top of the rock extinguished their light, and left them in total darkness in the gloomy cavern. Night came on, and the parents began to be uneasy about their absence, and not returning home when darkness began to cover the earth, immediately search was made for them, and every inquiry among their play fellows, when it happened that they found one to whom it appears this scheme of exploring "The Wonder" had been communicated—Provided with lights and mining clothes, two men immediately started at midnight to seek them, when at the extremity of the cavern they found the little daring creatures fast asleep, with their cloths torn, scratched, bruised, and bleeding from the wounds they had received in their attempts to make their way out in darkness. From their own accounts it appears, that after the light was extinguished, they made several attempts to find their way back in vain after which they knelt down and repeated their prayers, and then tried again, without any greater success. They then prayed again and again, and each time attempted in vain to get back, till exhausted and wounded by falling over the ragged pieces of rock which line the windings of the cavern, and terrified by their awful situation, they sank into sleep, in which state they were found.

The Palace of Herod.

The palace of Herod stands on a table of land, on the very summit of the hill, overlooking every part of the surrounding country, and such was the exceeding softness and beauty of the scene, even unter the wildness and waste of Arab cultivation, that the city seemed smiling in the midst of her desolation. All around was a beautiful valley, watered by running streams, and covered with a rich carpet of grass, sprinkled like an open book before me, a boundary of fruitful mountains, the vine and the olives rising in terraces to their very summits; there, day after day, the haughty Herod had sat in his royal palace; and, looking out upon all these beauties, his heart had become hardened with prosperity; here, among those still towering columns, the proud monarch had made a supper for "his lords and high captains, and chief estates of Galilee;" here the daughter of Herodias, Herod's brother's wife, "danced before him, and the proud king promised, with an oath, to give her whatsoever she asked, even to the half of his kingdom." And while the feast and dance went on, the "head of John the Baptist was brought in a charger and given to the damsel." And Herod has gone, and Herodias, Herod's brother's wife has gone, and "the lords and the high captains, and the chief estates of Galilee" are gone; but the ruins of the palaces in which they feasted are still here; the mountains and valleys which beheld their revels are here; and, oh! what a comment upon the vanity of worldly greatness, a Fellah was turning his plough around one of the columns! I was sitting on a broken capital under a fig-tree by his side, and I asked him what were the ruins that 'we saw; and while his oxen were quietly cropping the grass that grew among the fragments of the marble floor, he told me that they were the ruins of the palace of a king, he believed, of the Christians; and while pilgrims from every quarter of the world turn aside from their path to do homage to the prison of his beheaded victim, the Arab, who was driving his plough among the columns of his palace, knew not the name of the haughty Herod. Even at this distance of time, I look back with a feeling of uncommon interest upon my ramble among those ruins, talking with the Arab ploughman of the king who built it, leaning against a column which, perhaps, had often supported the haughty Herod, and looking out from this scene of desolation and ruin upon the most beautiful country in the Holy Land.—Incidents of Travel, &c. by George Stephens.

Foggy Atmosphere.—Smoking in Holland, says the Boston Post, is so common, that when a party meets in a room and any present is wanted, the waiter goes round with a pair of bellows and blows the smoke from before each face, that he may distinguish the individual called for.
