THE INQUERY.

Tell me, ye winged winds,
That round my pathway roar,
Do ye not know some spot
Where mortals weep no more?
Some lone and pleasant dell, Some ione and pleasant dell,
Some valley in the west,
Where, free from toil and pain,
The weary soul may rest?
The load wind dwindled to a whisper low,
And sighed for pity as it answered "No:"

Tell me, thou mighty deep,
Whose billows round me play,
Know'st thou some favored spot,
Some island far away,
Where weary man may find
The bliss for which he sights,
Where sorrow never lives,
And friendship never dies; The loud waves rolling in perpetual flow, Stopped for a while, and sighed, to answer "No!"

And thou, serenest moon And thou, sevenest moon,
That with such holy face;
Dost look upon the carth
Asleep in night's embrace,
Tell me, in all thy round,
Hast thou not seen some spotWhere miserable man
Might find a happier lot?
Behind a cloud the moon withdrew in wo, And a voice, sweet, but sad, responded "No?"

Tell me, my secret soul,
Oh! tell me, Hope and Faith, On: tell me, Hope and Patth,
Is there no resting place
From sorrow, sin and death:
Is there no happy spot
Where mortals may be bless'd,
Where grief may find a balm,
And weariness a rest?

Faith, Hope, and bove, best boons to mortals given Wav'd their bright wings, and whisper'd, "Yes, in

THE BALL ROOM.

"Come, come, Peter, it's no use talking; you and Sally must go to the Birth Night Ball, there's no two ways about it,"

"Why, my dear brother," said Peter Scott, looking at, his wife, "I don't suppose it will kill us to go; but you know we were raised to think such things wrong, and though we're neither of us professors of religion, yet I don't like to do what the old folks would not think right, if they

Romance in Real Life.

A romantic incident has just occurred in the Marylebone Infirmary. Ann Dempsey, a young and interesting girl, who had sey, a young and interesting girl, who had been the support of an aged mother, had gone into the infirmary for the purpose of undergoing an operation for the removal of a dropsical complaint, which had assumed the form of a large tumour. She was of Richmond and other neutral noblemen—those who never not we find the resulted the cross benches of the Duke of Richmond and other neutral noblemen—those who

The Catacombs of Paris.

In Governor Cass's work on France is the following description of the catacombs under the city of Paris. The author had been speaking of the frequency with which Marie Antoinette, in her earlier days, visi-
