There has been some wholesome les-= sons read to various prominent individuals by the result of the late election.

To begin, with the two candidates for the Presidency. While General Harrison was decried by his adversaries, as a weak, unpurposed old man, without merit in his past life, or power at present to effect any good, the people every where have preferred him over even the most favored and best known candidates of their own immediate vicinity. In Ohio, great as is Cor-"corporations are monopolies."-Boston win's popularity, and great as is his majority, it is surpassed by thousands by that of the Harrison electors. So in Massachusetts, where honest John Davis has carried the state by acclamation, as it were; as. Governor, the vote for the Harrison electors considerably exceeds even that cast for this, her well-deserving and favo-
