people. Such a man, fellow-citizens, we present to you in Major General WINFIELD SCOTT! the present Commander-in-Chief of the army of the United States—the associate in arms and worthy successor of his gallant compeers, Brown and Macomb—and whose name, with the kindred names of Jackwho more fit than he to purge our camp of the "acursed Achan" who troubles it, and rout the combined legions of Tylerism and Locofocoism? His name will be, like the sound of the trumpet which was wont to summon them to the field of battle, to the scarred and war-worn veterans of our land: and those who with him crimsoned with their blood the ensanguined plains of Chippewa and the still more bloody fields of Bridgewater, will kindle into enthusiasm; they will recall the days of their glory and his—and follow their beloved and accomplished General to his last and crowning victory. And those, too, who did not share with him those days of trail and glory, but whose firesides he protected, whose domestic altars he defended against a powerful and brutal enemy, who showed by their conduct at Hampton and ew Orleans, what the old, the feeble and defenceination of this gallant and accomplished soldier as a national tribute to the memory of his friend, the great and good Harrison, at d a new and hon-orable proof that Republics are not ungrateful. They will look upon his blood so freely shed in the cause of his country; upon the scars of honor able wounds with which his body is seamed; upon the brilliant trophies of his valour; and they will hail his elevation as conterring honor, not so much upon himself as upon the people who had the judgment to appreciate and gratitude to reward worth like his. Allow us to indulge in a brief retrospect of the career of General Scott, less to inform you of that with which, as a prominent part of your Country's History you are of course fami-liar, than to include our own pleasurable feelings in the retrospect.

General Winfield Scott was born on the 13th June 1785, in the State of Virginia, and was educated for the bar, to which he was admitted in 1808, at flattering prospects of success. 1807, when the outrage committed upon that "ill-omened" vessel the Chesapeake, following as it did the British "orders in Council." and a long series of wrongs and insult had inflamed the country, with an earnest desire to vindicate its honor and chastise our haughty foe, young Scott, partaking in the general feeling, at once abandoned a profes-sion of which fie was formed to be the ornament, and entered into the military service of his country as a Captain of Light Arlillery; and has ever since continued in the profession of which he is now the acknowledged and honored head, the pride of his countrymen and the idol of his companions in arms.

On the 6th July 1812, shortly after the commence. ment of the war, he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel; and on the 13th of October in the same year, was present as a volunteer, at his own earnest entrenty and urgent request, in the bloody battle at Queenstown Heights, so disastrous, but at the same time so glorious for the Ameri-

Cols. Van Rensellaer and Fenwick who successively had the command, being disabled by their wounds, the command of the gallant handful of Americans who had crossed to the Canada side then reduced to six hundred men, devolved on Col. Scott; and with this small, but Spartan band, he mos gallantly sustained the contest against the overwhelming numbers of the enemy, untill all hope of aid from the American shore being lost through the refusal of the Militia to cross, on the plea of Constitutional privilege, and with his numbers reduced to less than three hundred, it became necessary to surrender to save a useless and wanton sacrifice of the brave survivors. In this buttle, the troops were repeatedly led to the charge by Scott in person, whose tall stature and rich uniform, rendered him a conspicuous target for the enemy's marksmen; but like the immortal Washington, he was miraculously preserved by a gracious Providence, we trust for higher destinies and more distinguished usefulness. He was singled out, like Washington at Braddock's field, by several Indian marks

Dearborn, as Adjutant General: and on the 26th of May, he led the advance of the army in the successful descent upon the enemy's territory and bat-tle and capture of Fort George. With his command of only five hundred men, he attacked and drove fifteen hundred British soldiers from a commanding position on a hill, pursued and fought them until the main body advanced to his support; and with his own hand, tore down the British Lion from the ramparts and planted the American Eagle in its stead. After partaking in the toils and pri vations of the fall campaign against Lower Canada, under Gen. Wilkinson. he was in the following spring, (1814) made a Brigadier General as a reward for his distinguished zeal, activity and courage With this new rank, he joined the army of Gen. Brown, as commander of the first Brigade, which in the campaign then opening, was destined to cover itself with laurels that shall be as undying as the fame of their accomplished commander.

A new scene in the war is now about to open. upon the American arms, under such men as Hull, Smythe, Wilkinson and others, is about to close. to be followed by a series of triumphs, unparalleled in the annals of modern warfare. His gallant friend Harrison had, the preceding fall, dispelled the gloom and pointed the way to victory, by the memorable battle of the Thames; and faithful to the impulse, the victories of Chiepewa, Bridgewa TER OT LUNDY'S LANE, Erie, North Point, Platts-burg and New Orleans followed with rapidity. The army which under the gallant leading of such men as Brown, Scott, Ripley, Porter, Gaines,

Miller and others, whose names are synonimous with all that is great in arms, gained such distinguished laurels for itself, owed much of its glory and success to the indefatigable care and exertions of General Scott to bring it to a state of efficiency and discipline, hitherto unsurpassed. The fruits are matter of history. The well fought fields of Chippowa, fought and won by Scott with his single brigade and few Militia and Volunteers against the whole British army, vastly superior in numbers. attest at once the powers of the troops and the skill

This victory and that which soon followed at Bridgewater, where the roar of the bettle and the cataract mingled in dread and deafening accord, have established the fame of General Scott and placed him in the very front rank of military comma The severe wounds received by him in this last battle, attest the daring valor with which he led his brave comrades to victory; but, unfortunately their severity deprived his country of his services in the field, during the remainder of the war.

His career since need not be recapitulated. It is within every one's recollection. After having endered important services in removing the Greek Indians, and gained by his prudence, skill in diplomacy, and the respect and confidence universally Pacificator of the North, he now reposes on his laurels, in an honorable station, the highest in the profession he has chosen, and the well earned revard of long and faithful services, great sacrifices and untiring devotion to his country. Whether he shall be called from this to a still higher and more responsible station, is a question that remains with the people, and their representatives whom they shall selest as the organs of their will in the Nation-

It may be proper to add a few words in relation to General Scott's views on some of the great ques-Harrison party. These opinions are avowed with that fiankness and entire absence of all reserve or that fiankness and entire absence of all reserve or concealment; which forms a part of his character.

On the subject of the first and most important question of all, a Protective Tariff, he is its avowed friend and advocate. "I am not only in favor of a Tariff for Revenue, but also for Protection," are his own words. Nothing doubtful or ambiguous the President of the Democratic Scatt Con-in this; nothing about incidental protection; that monstrous conception engendered upon the foul vention, assembled at Harrisburg. monstrous conception engendered upon the foul witch, Nullification; but he is in favor of Protection for its own sake—and because the dignity; independence and happiness of the country demand it. And if he is its friend and advocate, the friends in the affections and confidence of the American and advocates of the Protective System may rest the harvest, in the midst of which we are at present and advocates of the Protective System may rest confident in the belief that it will never be by him abandoned, betrayed, or compromise way, as it has been in time past by those professing to be its most zealous champions. Identified as is every interest of Pennsylvania with the preservation of this policy and the assertion of this principle in all its integrity, we cannot permit a doubt to arise in our minds that he will receive from her a cordial and hearty support. If Scall and Pentsetina? will respect to the harvest, in the midst of which we are at present busily engaged. But to convince the Convention and our constituents, that we are true to the cause of SCOTT, DEMOCRACY AND A PROTECTIVE TARIFF; we request you to embody this into the proceedings of the Convention for publication.

just and salutary measure, the "Land Distribution law." And what State, let us ask again, has deeper interest involved in this than Pennsylvania to which it opens the only avenue of escape from her immense debt and accumulating public burthens without recourse to a scale of Taxation beyond the capacity of her people to hear. "Scott and Distri-bution," then, wilk-marshal in his cause all those who are unwilling to have their taxes still further increased and the State robbed of her just and rightful property.

In a word, there is not a great and leading principle for which the people contended in 1840, under his friend and compatriot, Harrison, that is not sincerely embraced and ardently cherished by Gon. less might await from their lust, rapine and cruel-ty. And those too, who, too young to remember character and unbending integrity—warm hearted, se dark and perilous days, have learned them hopitable and kind, his "latch-string" never pulled only from the annals of History, and there have in against the way-faring man or, soldier, he is found the name of Wirkirkin Scorr recorded as synonimous with all that is magnanimous, honorable and brave; and have drawn, from the record of his achievements, their first draught of love for their country and devotion to her cause.—
All will greet with enthusiasm and pride, the nome

> him to your consideration, as a candidate every way worthy of your nomination and support—canwas his merits; examine his claims for yourselves, until the time shalf come to choose your Delegates to the National Convention. We invite such scrutiny, confident that it will result only in developing new claims upon the admiration, love and gratitude of his countrymen. If then, he should be selected by that great National body as their and your candidate for the Presidency, we will hall get better before sun-down—for he certainly knows such choice with pride and joy as the herald of victory and sure harbinger of success; should the choice light on another, we will submit and Gen. Scott himself will rejoice that "America has a worthing son than he".

Resolutions,

Mr. MAGEEHAN, from the Committee appointed to prepare Resolutions for the considera tion of the Convention, reported the following: Resolved, 1. That in the death of our beloved Harrison, and the assumption of the reins of Government by John Tyler, the Democratic Harrison party of the United States ceased to be responsi-

bic for the acts of the General Administration, 2. That in the abandonment by John Tyler of the policy of distributing the proceeds of the Public Kands amplie the States, of a Tariff of Protection, which would enable our citizens to compete with the pauper labor of Europe; of the One Term principle, and the assertion of the dangerous doctrines found in his annual mes age and vetoes, we ind sufficient to justify us in casting the responsibility of his unprincipled conduct and dangerous octrines upon the shoulders of the Loco Foc 3. That turning from the contemplation of vile traitor and renegade, and the ruin he has bro't upon our whole country by his unprincipled course, the Democratic Harrison party pride them selves in being able to point to thousands of great and good men, who unbought by the patronage of overnment prostituted in the hands of corrup and venal men—unawed by power in the hands of bas tyrants, and looking to the happiness and welfare of the whole people, have never awerved from the paths of political rectitude, are still willing to sacrifice all but honor in defence of their country and her institutions

4. That in Gen. WINFIELD SCOTT, the Hero of the last war, the Statesman, Civilian and Soldier, the supporters of the lamented Harrison acknowledge a leader whom they are proud to folow; a man in whose hands our country's honor and prosperity would beas safe as was the Ark in those of Samuel, and whose name as Chief Magistrate would contribute largely to the honor and of the Insolvent laws,
