champions who covered themselves with glory at Cart's Orchard and Wunderlich's Grove, we are unable to opine: But, if we mistake not, Captain Sanderson and Lieutenant Hamilton will cast bombs enough over the mountain to make Stroop, Miller & Co: quako in their shoes.

The grand object of the writer seems to be the reading of both parties out of the "democratic" church; and, in furtherance of this design, he first discourses of the Volunteer and the Porter toasts given at Cart's orchard, in the following style:

The Volunteer side still retains the ancient 'and honored name of 'Democrats,' and the States-man side distinguish themselves by the name of Anti-Tax Democrats.'
