THE VOICES OF LIFE.

We spend our years as a tale that is told,"DAVIE Like the sunset bue on the drops of dew, When night shades chase the day, Like the rainbow's gleam on the leaping stream, Our life flies swift away !

With a stealthy tread by the bridal bed Creeps He of the ley breath; A kiss leaveth He, then laugheth in elee : "Tis the hollow laugh of death!

He aimeth his dart at a maiden's heart,-He loves the beautiful best .--And the brightest gem in his diadem He torg from a mother's breast!

He is plucking now from an infant's brow The bud that is bursting fair ; In the dismal tomb will be hid its bloom; Now flowers can blossom there!

In youth's sunny hour, with a witching power, Hope leadeth a merry round, But the hoar old age knoweth life's brief page, A tale that has ceased its sound!

O! nothing bath birth in the beautiful earth But speaks with a tongue of fire, Beyond the blue dome the True bath its home; Then Heaven-ward, my soul aspire.

NATIONAL MORALITY.

BY DR. BEECHER.

THE crisis has come. By the people of this generation, by ourselves, probably the amazing question is to be decided, whether the inheritance of our fathers shall be preserved or thrown away; whether our Sabbaths shall be a delight or a loathing; whether the taverns, on that holy day, shall be crowded with drunkards, or the sanctuary of God with humble worshippers; whether riot and profaneness shall fill our streets, and poverty our dwellings, and convicts our jails, and violence our land, or whether industry, and temperance, and righteonsness, shall be the stability of our times; whether mild laws shall receive the cheerful submission of freemen, or the iron rod of a tyrant compel the trembling homage of slaves. Be not deceived. Huour laws, institutions, and habits. It is a moral influence, which, with the blessing of God, has formed a state of society so eminently desirable. The same influence which formed it is indispensable to its preservation. The rocks and hills of New England will remain to the last conflagration. But let the Sabbath be profaned with impunity the worship of God be abandoned, the government and religious instruction of children neglected, and the streams of intemperance be permitted to flow, and her glory will depart. The wall of fire will no longer surround her, and the munition of rocks will no longer be her defence.

· If we neglect our duty, and suffer our daws and institutions to go down, we give them up forerer. It is easy to relax, easy to retreat : but impossible, when the abomination of desolation has once passed over New England, to rear again the throwndown altars, and gather again the fragments and build up the ruins of demolished institutions. Another New England nor we nor our children shall never see if this be destroyed. All is lost irrotrievably when the landmarks are once removed, and the bands which now hold us are once broken. Such institutions and such a state of society can be established only by such men as our fathers were, and in such circumstances as they were in. They could not have made a New England in Holland; they unade the attempt, but failed.

The hand that overturns our laws and temples is the hand of death unbarring the grate of Pandemonium, and letting loose up. nor our children shall never see if this be gate of Pandemonium, and letting loose upon our land the crimes and miseries of Hell. If the Most High should stand adoof, and cast not a single ingredient into our cup of trembling, it would seem to be full of superlative wo. But he will not stand alooff: As we shall have begun an open controvorsy with him, he will contend onenly with us. And never, since the earth stood, has it been so fearful a thing for nations to fall into the hands of the living God. The day of vengeance is at hand; the day of judgment has come; the great earthquake which sinks Babylon is shaking the nations, and the waves of the mighty commotion are dashing upon every shore. Is this, then, a time to remove the foundations, when earth itself is shaken?-Is this a time to forfeit the protection of God, when the hearts of men are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are to come upon the earth?-Is this the time to run upon his neck and the thick bosses of his buckler, when the nations are drinking blood, and fainting, and passing away in his wrath? Is this a time to throw away the shield of faith. when his arrows are drunk with the blood of the slain? to cut from the anchor of hope, when the clouds are collecting, and the sea and the waves are roaring, and thunders are uttering their voices, and lightnings blazing in the heavens, and the great hail is falling from heaven upon men, and every mountain, sea and island is fleeing in dismay from the face of an incensed God?

She was bending over the coffined clay of a lovely infant! A mother's anguish was swelling her heart and heaving her bosom with convulsive sobs, as she pressed her lips, for the last time, to the marble cheeks of her child. With a trembling hand she wiped the gathering tears from her eyes and said, "Thy will oh! God be done; what is one of thy creatures that she should dare to DR. LEIDY'S SARSAPARILLA. complain?" A more than mortal calmness came over her. She stood in the dignity of a superior being, gazing ut the dead form of her beautiful child. Again I saw her. She stood beside the bier of him who had been her friend, her soother, her counsellor, the bier of her husband. He had been called in manhood's pride to lie down by the side of his lifeless child, and she his beloved one, was left to weep his premature death. It is true, that when she met his last look of love, she thought life a burden! But heaven was her support—on that she leaned, and was soon taught to be resigned to this last and greatest affliction. Calmly the bereaved, but lovely mourner, took a last farewell of him she had loved with the consistency of woman, and with a serene brow, took her fatherless babes to her bosom. Once more I saw her. Still fair was that lovely brow, over which the dark hair parted in luxuriant brightness. But ah! how strangely cold, how awfully still! She too was loved the father of the frame and system to dealth. The same affected with the factor of the frame and system to dealth. DR. LEIDY'S SARSAPARILLA.

ALLY are the effects of this preparation be Decoming more apparent. Numerous persons assert they have derived more benefit from using one bottle of it, that there of any other. This is easily accounted for, as Dr. Leidy's Sarsapavilla is a much stronger preparation than any other, and, near twic as much is contained in one, bottle as of any othe (and sold at the same piece.) Let the public remem this—it is no vain boast but the real fact.

From the Medical Review. A SURPRISING CURE.—Among the many singular curve which this medicine has effected, there is perhaps none in which its powers are so fully shown as in the case of Mrs. Austin.

This hady had been consumptive for several years, and during the greater part of this time had received the best medical attention, and tried all the most valuable remedies, yet nothing could be found to arrest its progress. She became subject to violent valuable remedies, yet nothing could be found to arrest its progress. She becam's subject to violent fits of coughing, expectorated large, quantities of matter occasionally tinged with blood, and step by step this fearful disease continued its course, until all hope of a recovery was entirely despaired of.—While in this distressing situation, ingering upon the very verge of the grave, she commenced the use of this Balsalm, which, to use her own expression, operated almost like a charm. In a few days she expectorated freely, the cough was gradually suppressed, and every day appeared to add fresh vigor to her lonks, and now, in the place of that emaciated flor a withering to decay, she is seen uningling in sorty, in better health than she has enjoyed for
