Several new and old advertiscments crowded out of this week's paper:

Coor paper is so filled with the proceedings of the State Convention, and other articles relative to it, that we are compelled to defer the proceedings of the County Convention until our next. We have had some very "juicy days," as Sam Slick calls them, within the last week. A great amount of rain has fallen in this neighborhood during the present season.

But by the course recommended by the Convention, the Whig party is not left without the means of bonefitting its own interests and of still doing our plundered Commonwealth some service. The Whigs will not forget that there is an open of the ways of the will be supported by an open of the proceeds of the public lands among the States by the General Government the highest-toned Federal measure that is supported by any continuous the Whigs. But by the course recommended by the Convice. The Whigs will not forget that there is an to oppose the ruinous and reckless course of the sequence, he is strongly suspected of being parpresent Administration, against whose mis-management the Whigs have been fighting for years, Nor will they forget that there is a TARIFF CANDIDATE in the field; who, although not di. rectly from our own ranks, is yet known to be so identified with this great measure of American interests, as to give the people sufficient guaranty that protection to Home Industry will find in him a genuine, true and ardent advocate. What, then will the Whigs lose by the course of the Conven. tion? Nothing certainly. Whig State Convention. LT We give the proceedings of the Whig State Convention to nominate candidates for Canal Comissioners, in to day's paper. The Convention was large, every county being represented but those of the extreme West, and the delegates were generally men of age, experience and influential character in their respective counties. Tho occedings were of the most harmonious charge. WednesdayMorning, September 13, 1843 ter; nothing having occurred to disturb the mu tual good feeling which subsists between the two great divisions of the Harrison party on all subocts having the general good of the State in view. The ticket nominated by the Convention is emplintically a strong one, if honesty, integrity, a bility and unimpeachable good character can give strength to any man, Among the candidates of the Eastern district of the State, a somewhat animated contest took place between Mr. Guilford, Mrt Mehaffey and Mr. Strolim, which resulted finally in the choice of the former. A strong partiality was manifest be found in another column, of Mr. Guilford, the

Every now and then, ever since the existence of their party, the ears of its neighbors have been startled by loud explosions, and the bursting forth of lava streams of political bile and gall, which it seemed a wonder did not overwhelm our Anti-Perter friends. But still they live on, as bravely and merry as ever! The last eruption from this region is the letter spoken of above, but it seems to have burst forth with as little harm as the preceding ones, and by this time its rumbling is scarce heard. But to drop a figure which is rather too extensive for the subject, this letter of Mr. Bonham's,iings we are able to publish to day, it will be seen who has all along been one of the most active who has all along been one of the most active leaders and principal orators of the Anti-Porter party—did create some surprise. Mr. Botham has been acting in familiar and intimate connection with General Miller for the last year and a half, in advocating the principles of the Anti-Porter and advocating the principles of the Anti-Porter and a half, in advocating the principles of the Anti-Porter and a half, in advocating the principles of the Anti-Porter and a half, in advocating the principles of the Anti-Porter and the same has been divided as follows: that the Convention decided that it was inexpedi. leaders and principal orators of the Anti-Parter ent to form a Whig Ticket. The resolution is as party-did create some surprise. Mr. Botham Resolved.
