For two years past he has travelled through Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware as a lecturer, and the extent of good that he has done may be estimated by the fact that he has succeeded in procuring fifty-four thousand signatures to the pledge of the Washington Temperance Society. He is now travelling through Cumberland county, and up to Monday morning last had procured over five hundred signatures in this county. At the meeting in this borough, about twenty signatures were obtained, which is at least sufficient to set the Tem. perance ball again in motion, and give such en couragement to the friends of the cause here as will lead them to renewed efforts in the good work Colonel Wallace's appointments for meetings

The Whis Organization.

Some of our friends are apprehensive that the Whigs may lose their organization in this ounty, on account of having no ticket this fall. There is no danger of that if we keep steadily in view the great objects before us, and the grand nitle to be fought under the banner of Henry. Clay in 1844. Let no Whig forget in the minor operations of local parties the great contest for the residency, next year.
