Oh, trusting Childhood ! I would learn of thee This lesson of pure faith, and to my heart So bind it that it never may depart--Therefore shalt thou henceforth my teacher be; . For in thy perfect trust the sin I see Of my own doubts and fears. The cup of Life, Drugged with the bitterness of tears and strife, Shall I not drink it when 'tis proffered me ? Yes---for 'tis mingled by a Father's hand And given in love --- for, rightly understood, Trials and pains tend ever to our good, Healing the soul that for the better land Thirsts with a deathless longing ! INFLUENCE OF SESTERS.

Many a young man owes his preservation from vice and ruin to the influence of a sister. When in danger of temptationwhen his own principles were insufficient to resist the tide of evil influence that was coming in upon his heart-when he was in danger of becoming profene, licentious, intemperate, it was her society, her conversation, her prayers, that rescued him .--Nothing else would have saved him but affectionate entreaties and fervent supplications to God; and society now embosoms many a virtuous and pious man, who has been rescued from impending ruin by the conversation and influence of a sister. In deed, it will be found that most of those young men who are peculiarly exposed to bad influences, and who were in danger of ruin, who have been rescued, have been recovered by this influence, and owe their happiness now, and their hopes of salvation, to those whom a beneficent Provialence stationed as the pure companions of , their early years.

It should be added, on this head, that this is an influence which is evidently designed to be exerted in favor of religion, and which should be sacredly employed to promote the salvation of the soul. So far as it goes, even in ordinary circumstances. it is one of the best auxiliaries to piety .-She who preserves her brother from profaneness and intemperanee, and an impure life, is doing much in aid of the proper influence of religion in the world. She is keeping him from throwing himself forever from the means of grace, and from the hopes of salvation. She is making it possible still to reach his heart by the appeals of the gospel. She is retaining him where the means of grace may have access to , him; she is keeping him where there is a hope, a possibility that he may be saved. But her influence should reach far beyou this. Of all persons, she, probably, has most entirely his confidence and affection. There is not one of his companious whom he would not sooner abandon than his sister. There is, perhaps, no amusement which he would not give up, or a place of acter. resort that he would not forsake at her af-foctionate entreaty. There is, perhaps, not a book which he would not read, to gratify her feelings, or a good influence under which attachment to her might not bring him. She has his heart at all times -at all times can speak to him on the subject of his soul's salvation. He will not turn rudely away from her, as he will from one of his own sex; nor will he despise her entreaties as he may those of ministers of the gospel. And she has one power which is in advance even of this; for a brother, though he may not be religious, though an infidel, though a companion even of the evil and licentious, she may pray. And what young man is there, who in his sober moments of reflection-and all young men have such moments-would be unmoved at the knowledge of the fact that a sister was pleading with God for the salvation of his soul; and resorted to this method-the last method which piety and love .can use to save the soul, when all other means shall fail to rescue man from eter-

THE PRECIOUS PEARL .--- Religion in a emalé secures all her interests. It graces her character, promotes her peace, endears her friendship, secures esteem, and adds a dignity and worth indescribable to-all her deeds. How pleasant when the absent husband can think of home, and reflects that angels watch the place! When about to leave her a widow, how consoling, it her character is such, that she can lean on the widow's God, and put her children under the guardianship of Him who is the father of the fatherless ! Then he quits the world calm and happy, supported by the hope that he shall meet them all in heaven. 1

To suffer unkindness and injustice rom one on whom we have depended for affection, and to whom we have a right to ook for confidence and candor, is perhaps one of the greatest trials to which the heart can be subjected; and serves more than any other to loosen or snap the ties that bind us to life and to our species. It has the effect, however, of causing us to rely with a stronger faith and a more setiled purpose, upon that future world whose promises cannot deceive.
