

DEMOCRATIC JOURNAL

Volume I No. 15, Dec. 1844.

Wednesday Morning, December 18, 1844.

Word of Our Country

THE WHIGS.—
We will earnestly appeal to those who stand indicted of our body for their recent and illegal acts in "calling at the cabin offices and settle," at a very hot opportunity they have. We do not consider them dangerous men, but we do consider them guilty of treason. We will call upon our neighbors for assistance, and support them in their trial, if possible. Well, let it prove that we are guilty, and, almighty, trust that the Whig party will suffer mortally by the latest. We can find no man, or woman, in the whole country, but one, who would be willing to stand by us, and support us in our present difficulty. The Whigs, at present, are more or less, party than principle. In their estimation, the proposition to "call at the cabin offices and settle," is just a little notion, that has caught up with them, and has caused them to do what they have done, rather too hastily. We have heard of persons being "laughed out of" their peculiar state of the heart, because of the severity of the punishment which they receive immediately. A large portion of our subjects are arraigned for two years, and could do gross injustice by delaying payment for longer. But we will stand by to cool his brother, the Captain of the Argus, just a little notion, that has caught up with him, and has caused him to do what he has done, rather too hastily. We have heard of persons being "laughed out of" their peculiar state of the heart, because of the severity of the punishment which they receive immediately. A large portion of our subjects are arraigned for two years, and could do gross injustice by delaying payment for longer. But we will stand by to cool his brother, the Captain of the Argus, just a little notion, that has caught up with him, and has caused him to do what he has done, rather too hastily. We have heard of persons being "laughed out of" their peculiar state of the heart, because of the severity of the punishment which they receive immediately. A large portion of our subjects are arraigned for two years, and could do gross injustice by delaying payment for longer. But we will stand by to cool his brother, the Captain of the Argus, just a little notion, that has caught up with him, and has caused him to do what he has done, rather too hastily. We have heard of persons being "laughed out of" their peculiar state of the heart, because of the severity of the punishment which they receive immediately. A large portion of our subjects are arraigned for two years, and could do gross injustice by delaying payment for longer. But we will stand by to cool his brother, the Captain of the Argus, just a little notion, that has caught up with him, and has caused him to do what he has done, rather too hastily.

Preparations for Christmas.

Every boy and girl in town knows that merry Christmas is almost here, and we expect that every Pharmacy Store keeper has also caught the impression of the same fact, judging from the rich displays of极大的 goods. We guess, on it will not long before the parental folk will have the same important fact communicated to them; at least if they can't make the hint from a thousand juvenile informants, accompanied with glowing descriptions of books, toys, gewgaws, &c., &c., that will not be long in reaching their ears. Well, every parent knows that Christmas is just the season for kind indulgence, and they only therefore so well submit with the best grace possible to what they cannot resist.

A bright glasse of our advertising columns will show parental kindness, where it can make the best investments for the gratification of little folk. Selden's two new, richer display of Christmas attractions in the way of toys and presents, than that which made up the wiles of our neighbors, Messrs. Myers & Haviland, on North-Union street, and Messrs. Huber & Monsey, West-High-street. Every thing which delicates and protects fancy, could conceive and mechanical ingenuity fabricate, may be found in a gaudy department, in our new arrivals from the Constitution of the United States.

And then, for those who consult the taste of their children in reading, rather than in merely sailing, and soosing, Mr. London, on West-High-street, and Mr. Knobell, on East-High-street, have each of them added to their stock a beautiful assortment of both good and interesting Magazines. See, &c., &c., & read, and tell the young people what good conduct has been deserving of that highest reward, a poetical and instructive book. See their advertisements.

The Monthly Magazines.—
Anson's Magazine.—Athens Magazine, for January, is well got up, and值得的 contributions from good writers. The editorials are unusually good. "Joan of Arc" is full of spirit. The Bridge of Don is excellent, and full beauty and interest. The principal article is in a novel and hand-some style, and there is a large amount of elegance of embellishment which seems to be gaining favor with the public. We much condemn, however, Mr. Croker's article to Mr. Shannon, giving his first instruction to Mr. Shannon, as Minnie Musters.

Sixty letters commemorating my recent visit to General Howard, of Monterey, California, and his son, General Arthur, are given in the "Paxtonian" paper. His son is a fine young man, and deserves credit for his talents.

He is indeed the following ground will be taken by the counsel of Dore:

1. That the act of Rhode Island upon which our complaint is founded, is repugnant to the Constitution of the United States.

2. That treason is not crime that can be committed in State jurisdiction.

3. That Dore is now rightfully Governor under a Constitutional or legitimate Government, duly adopted by the means of Revolution; and, therefore, the present authorities of the State are no right to imprison him.

4. That, the act of Rhode Island upon which our complaint is founded, is repugnant to the Constitution of the United States.

5. And, that, for those who consult the taste of their children in reading, rather than in merely sailing, and soosing, Mr. London, on West-High-street, and Mr. Knobell, on East-High-street, have each of them added to their stock a beautiful assortment of both good and interesting Magazines. See, &c., &c., & read, and tell the young people what good conduct has been deserving of that highest reward, a poetical and instructive book. See their advertisements.

The Monthly Magazines.—
Anson's Magazine.—Athens Magazine, for January, is well got up, and值得的 contributions from good writers. The editorials are unusually good. "Joan of Arc" is full of spirit. The Bridge of Don is excellent, and full beauty and interest. The principal article is in a novel and hand-some style, and there is a large amount of elegance of embellishment which seems to be gaining favor with the public. We much condemn, however, Mr. Croker's article to Mr. Shannon, giving his first instruction to Mr. Shannon,

as Minnie Musters.

Sixty letters commemorating my recent visit to General Howard, of Monterey, California, and his son, General Arthur, are given in the "Paxtonian" paper.

The principal article is in a novel and handsome style, and there is a large amount of elegance of embellishment which seems to be gaining favor with the public. We much condemn,

however, Mr. Croker's article to Mr. Shannon,

giving his first instruction to Mr. Shannon,

as Minnie Musters.

See, &c., &c., & read, and tell the young people what good conduct has been deserving of that highest reward, a poetical and

instructive book. See their advertisements.

THE WHIGS.—
The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over the disastrous election of last Saturday. John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday.

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday.

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the effect that

"The Whigs, at present, are at a standstill over

the disastrous election of last Saturday."

John Knobell, of Natick, who is a good writer,

and a good speaker, has an article in the "Natick

Journal" to the