

E. BEATTY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR,
CARLISLE, PA.

Wednesday, January 1, 1843.

The ladies of Richmond, Va., have taken measures for the erection of a statue of Henry Clay in that city.

A writer in the National Intelligencer speaks of the morality of the Parliament of Paris. "Full one third of the population of Paris live together without marriage."

The man, who is always boasting of his readiness to die, is the first one to send for a doctor when sick. A sceptic never scoffs at religion in his last moments.

A fellow taken up as a vagrant, declared that he was not a man "without any visible means of subsistence, as he had a hundred dollars." It was found on inquiry that he had opened it with a crowbar in the night, and, inconsequently, the store belonged to another man.

A Good Work.—A rather green sort of well-meaning individual walked into the Broadway House, (N. Y.) the other day, and stretching himself up to his full height exclaimed in loud voice, "Where are all the Whigs? Show me a Whig, gentleman," said he, "and I will show you a thief." A large company of quiet gentlemen was present, and in an instant one of them stood before the noisy inquirer in a warlike attitude, and said:

"I am a Whig, Sir!"

"Are you indeed?"

"Yes sir, I am!"

"Well, just step down to the tomb and I will show you a thief!"

The Anti-Race Disturbance.—We learn from the Albany and Troy papers that the results of the examination of the persons confined in the jail at Hudson leave little doubt of their participation in the murder of Ryenburgh. It is also believed that the murderer is known and will be secured.

The impression having prevailed extensively that an attempt to rescue the prisoners would be made, the sheriff, aided by the militia, had taken every precaution to repel the attempt abortively.

A force of 100 men had been enrolled, and on day 1, 100 citizens were in readiness at a moment's warning.

A committee of the Common Council of the city of Hudson went to Albany on Saturday with an application to the Governor for arms and munitions, and with a request to the Burgess' Corps to proceed to Hudson to assist in guarding the jail. Gov. Bouck gave an order for 300 stand of arms, in addition to two hundred previously supplied, 4,000 cartridges, &c.

The Burgess' Corps promptly obeyed the call, and at a meeting at their armory on the same day, resolved to proceed with 300 muskets and three field-pieces, in the 8 o'clock train on Wednesday morning.

Another Feature.—Resolutions were adopted on the 16th inst. by the legislature of South Carolina by an unanimous vote—that the receding the rule by Congress relative to Abolition petitions is a flagrant outrage upon their rights; that there is no legislative power in Congress, and in fact a dissolution of the Union is an event to be apprehended; that if there should be legislation on this subject by Congress, the Governor should call the Legislature together, to decide upon the manner and mode in which they shall preserve and defend their ancient rights and liberties.

Young Americans, while travelling in Europe, gravely announced in a letter that Professor Van Gruisenbach, of Scotland, has brought to a state of perfection the art of producing a torpor in the system, by the application of cold, of degrees of intensity, proceeding from lesser degrees, so as to cause the human body to become perfectly torpid, in which state it may remain for 100 or 1000 years, and then awaken to a new existence.

On the 28th of November, Pa. a public meeting has been held to express the indignation of the citizens against a body of armed men who have been recruited in the South for the purpose of kidnapping a number of colored persons who were formerly slaves, who, for years, have resided here leading quiet, industrious, and decent lives. The meeting was of the citizens generally.

The approaching session of the Legislature seems likely to be a memorable one. The Galveston News, the paper of the members, will assemble under a high sense of excitement, with bitter and angry feelings. Much jealousy exists between Eastern and Western members.

The Bostonians are engaged in the pleasure of alighting parties, and the members are gathered to the annual meeting of the Boston Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge.

The Bostonians are engaged in the pleasure of alighting parties, and the members are gathered to the annual meeting of the Boston Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge.

Literary Notes.

The English steamer and arrived at Boston on the 21st ultimo, and about half day from Liverpool, after braving a stormy passage. The intelligence by her is not of great importance.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most astounding robberies on record. The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds. A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The late crop of potatoes in Ireland is found to exceed the produce of any year on record.

It is stated in a London paper that the sum of £121,364, of which £50,000 were devoted to the personal and private uses of Mr. O'Connell.

The Russian government, in the Kingdom of Poland, has issued an order, by which all males, without distinction, are henceforth prohibited from contracting marriages till they have completed the thirtieth year of their age.

The probable election of Mr. Polk, as President of the United States, has been a fruitful theme of discussion for the British and French prints, all of which express much surprise that Mr. Clay should be shelved for a person comparatively unknown to fame. Some laughingly observe that the Pollack, which has been running through Germany, Spain, France and England, has at length got to the United States. Generally they indulge a hope that he will be favorable to the modification of the party, who probably recollect the "Old Maxim" that it is well to have a friend at Court.

It was stated a few days ago by the Intelligence, that Mr. Clay's postage has been swelled by exulting and insulting letters transmitted to him. How different those who can write such letters must estimate him from some of their political friends here.

A number of locofoco members of Congress were congregated together on Christmas day, among whom was a Whig, who proposed the health of Henry Clay; at once, they all declared that they would drink it, and did drink it, one of them, a Western man, a thorough-going party man, saying that he was one of the noblest and greatest men living, though he had opposed his election on party grounds.

What would those villains, who have traduced his character, and poured upon him every species of vituperation and calumny during the past campaign, have thought had they heard their own words?

Mr. O'Connell rose, and said he had to hand in, the subscription of the Rev. Mr. Moriarty, of Philadelphia, whom he regretted to see in this country. Personally, he refused to see him, but he regretted exceedingly the cause which had brought him there, it was to raise money to rebuild the Catholic church that had been burnt during the late riots. (Hear.)

The public were aware that atrocious unparalleled in civilized times—horror, that made many ashamed to belong to human nature—had been perpetrated by the inhabitants of Philadelphia under the name of natives against the Catholics and the Irish.

On the first occasion of these riots they held a meeting for the purpose of enacting laws resolutions against the Catholics, and, as the Irish were allowing them to proceed, graciously, they moved an adjournment to the Irish quarter. The next day, in seeking for a riot, and the person who was doing it for such a purpose was not likely to be disappointed, or, if he were, he could easily get a riot himself.

They destroyed the Catholic churches, and on the 4th of July, the anniversary of American Independence, that brutal and barbarous mob of the authorities to disperse the Catholics under the pretense that they should be protected, and then attacked them till they were driven back by a superior military or military force.

Such was the origin of this horrible instance of bigotry and fanaticism. (Hear, hear.) He regretted that no Catholic people had ever been guilty of any fanatical violence, though Catholic sovereigns—as in the atrocious reign of Queen Mary of England—had done so.

He read the history of an American newspaper, leading article, in which he expressed his opinion that they would have to proceed, graciously, they moved an adjournment to the Irish quarter.

The House was engaged yesterday in Committee of the Whole upon the Land bill, upon which three hours were spent.

We find the following particulars of a melancholy steamboat accident in the Louisville Journal of the 20th inst.

At 12 o'clock on Saturday night, the 14th inst., the Belle of Clarksville, from New Orleans for Nashville, was rounding the bar below the three-star Cut off, she came in collision with the Louisiana, from Memphis, on her way to New Orleans. The Belle of Clarksville did not obey her helm, but steered off, by which she came directly across the bow of the Louisiana. The engines of both boats were immediately stopped, but not in time to prevent collision. The Belle of Clarksville was entirely demolished, the hull parting from the cabin, and the cabin breaking in two pieces.

The Louisiana took from the fragments all the persons on board. As it was not to be ascertained thirty-one lives were lost, including those of the crew.

The survivors lost all their baggage.

There were six valuable rice horses on board, all of which were lost, among them the celebrated mare of N. Y.

No charge can be attached to the members of the Louisiana. The crew informed us that the boat had been sold to the citizens of the State of the city of Albany.

On the twenty-first day of December, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and forty-four.

Mr. Morley came forward.

He begged to assure his friends, that it is only for the sake of their religion he appealed to them, he would not come forward so willingly but during the recent outrages in the United States, it was not only the extermination of Catholicity, but the extinction of the spirit of nationality and of the government in favor of Ireland, which was fought for.

He had been advised by the Bostonians, to go to America, and established himself in New York.

He was sorry to say that of the number of poor Philadelphia had been put to death, a number of colored persons who were formerly slaves, who, for years, have resided here leading quiet, industrious, and decent lives.

The meeting was of the citizens generally.

He has nothing to defend outside protection but his dear leases, and the household that he and his fellow-countrymen in America would again winch the cords to be destroyed by a wreath of sharp rocks. (Loud cheers.) He trusted that these words would be heard across the Atlantic. The design of these parties was to exterminate, or to annihilate, the United States. His trusted old companion, Gould, left America. It was intended to frighten every, and lay out of his country, but they were not to be frightened. (Loud cheers.) They might be exterminated, but they would only be able with their dying breath to call aloud for their cross and their glorious fatherland. (Loud cheers.)

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

The banking house of Messrs. Rogers & Co. in London, in which the post-

of memory, Mr. Samuel Rogers, the partner, has been the scene of one of the most asounding robberies on record.

The iron safe in the banking house was plundered on the night of Sunday, the 24th ult., of notes and specie exceeding forty thousand pounds.

A reward of £3000 has been offered for the discovery of the perpetrators, and the Queen's portion is secured to 907 of the robbers, giving such evidence as may convict the offenders.

</