A WHITE MARK!-The Washington correspondent of the U. S. Gazette relates. an anecdote of Mr. Polk which is greatly to his credit. The rowdy Empire Club of N. Y. sent a deputation to Mr. Polk, to inquire when it would be his pleasure to receive them. His prompt and dignified reply was, "Never, never As citizens I shall be happy to see any one who may happen to belong to that or any other club. but as a Club I cannot see them."

The Alexandria Gazette hears good anecdote of Mr. Polk, the President elect. As soon as a visiter is introduced he commences the conversation forthwith by informing the autonished stranger, that he has been delighted to find since his arrival in Washington that not one of his democratic friends has had the indelicacy to annoy him with an application for of fice, and that he is quite sure the information must be as gratifying to the gentleman listening to the narration, as it is acceptable to his own views and feelings. The visiter listens in profound silence—hesi tates a moment-makes his bow-and slopes !
