

TERMINAL EXPOSITOR

CARLISLE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, May 28, 1845.

C. D. PALMER, Esq., No. 59 Pine street, Philadelphia; and 169 Nassau street, (Tribune Building,) New York, and South-east corner of Baltimore and Calvert streets, Baltimore, our authorized Agent for receiving advertisements and subscriptions to the "CARLISLE HERALD & EX-HERALD," and collecting and receiving for the same.

DR. LARDNER'S LECTURES.—Part second of these deservedly popular Lectures on Science and Art has just been received from the press of Greeley & M'Elrath, New York. It contains the conclusion of his Lecture on Electricity— together with those on the Minor Planets— Weather-Almanacs—Halley's Comet—The Atmosphere, &c. &c. They contain a vast deal of knowledge which all should know, more or less of, and written in a style easy to be comprehended by ordinary minds. Price 25 cents per single copy.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—We invite the attention of the public and the agricultural portion of it particularly, to the notice by the President of the Cumberland County Agricultural Society, which will be found in our advertising columns. A day has been designated for the annual exhibition this year, and it will be seen that the preliminary arrangements have already been gone into by the appointment of the necessary committees. As there will be no exciting political canvass this year to absorb the public attention to the exclusion of every thing else, we hope the Agricultural Society will receive a due share of attention from the Farmers of this country. Now that we have a Society organized, it is earnestly hoped that the mass of our Farmers will not prove so short sighted to their own interests as to permit it to languish and die away through the want of a little time and energy or from prejudice in relation to its object. If properly and actively supported, the Agricultural Society must prove beneficial to the Farming interests of this county, and if our Farmers will but give their active individual exertions in its behalf, they will soon experience a rich return for their trouble and labour.

We do not notice among the arrangements any thing in relation to a public Address on the day of exhibition. We hope this shall things will not be omitted. A sound practical Address, setting forth the advantages of associations for mutual improvement, and embodying statistics and facts relating to improvements in the science of Agriculture, would be of unquestionable advantage, and we hope if a competent person has not been already engaged that the committee of arrangements will procure one in due season.

New Papers.—The Morning Ariel is the title of an exceedingly neat daily paper, the publication of which has just been commenced in Pittsburg, by Messrs. W. C. Tobey and Hiram Kaine. Both of these gentlemen are well known as gay and humorous writers and under their charge the Ariel cannot fail of being a most entertaining, sprightly and spirited sheet. We do not covet for ourselves a higher success than we wish them in their new enterprise—we mean personally, of course, for they are incorrigible locofocos.

We omitted to notice on its first appearance a new paper which has been established in Lancaster, by Mr. Eli Bowen, under the title of the "Lancaster County Farmer." It is a very large and handsome sheet, well filled with sensible editorials and useful selections. We hope our young agricultural contemporaries will not find this new enterprise— we mean personally, of course, for they are incorrigible locofocos.

The "New World" newspaper, a manuscript sheet issued in New York, has been purchased by Messrs. Ward & Co., publishers of the "Saturday Emporium" under which name and by whom it will hereafter be issued. It is one of the best literary journals of the day, and is illustrated with handsome wood cuts. Subscription $2 per annum.

Fingertricity. It is a very appropriate term which has been coined by our jocose brother of the Chambersburg "Wing," for that very common practice which prevails among visitors to Editors' sanctuaries, of pocketing exchange papers, which not content with rendering them who wish to preserve for their own use.—We have suffered most vexatiously in this way, but some amateur fingertricity have displayed their skill lately on other articles besides exchange papers belonging to this office. A few days since a manuscript paper-book had been left with us by an Attorney, and deposited in a drawer, marvellously disappeared, and after a long and fruitless search was finally given up as among "the gone, forever gone." Three days afterward, and by the time a new copy had been nearly prepared, a copy as marvelously reappeared, and was found, in the same place from which it had been abstracted! This same degree of perplexity has been once exhibited by some one in taking and returning our office ink-stand! This may be very great fun to the person or persons engaged in it, but as it does not exactly agree with the bent of our humor, we would gently hint to the authors of it that it perished in a very disagreeable consequence.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterians has decided against the agitation of the Slavery question a vote of 164 to 12.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.—We are sorry to report that during the past year, Mr. Franklin Brinley, this gentleman has, for the last four years, filled with distinguished ability, the station of Law Clerk to the Treasury Department; he was placed in office at the commencement of Mr. Tyler's administration, and though, in general opinion, disengaged from the dominant party of the day, he was well liked, and his talents and legal acquirements which he received through the Presidential term, and was retained as the Law Officer of the Government. But the beam of party is sweeping the land—and the time is at hand, when the Post of Home will be the private station.

We clip the foregoing from the U. S. Gazette of Saturday last, and feel constrained to draw to it the attention of our readers in consequence of the extreme injustice which it does to another gentleman who recently filled an important office in Washington. We allude to CHARLES B. PENNICK, Esq., late Solicitor of the Treasury. Shortly after Mr. Penrose entered upon the duties of his office, he appointed Mr. Brinley, who is spoken of so highly by Mr. Chandler, to a clerkship. This situation was not permanent, but only temporary, and depending upon a contingent fund which was annually appropriated to the Treasury Department. In 1842 Congress reorganized the several offices in the different Departments, and among other changes established a Law clerkship in the office of the Solicitor of the Treasury. To this clerkship Mr. Brinley was appointed by Mr. Penrose. The business incident to the Solicitor's Office was divided into several branches, one of which Mr. Brinley had the charge. He did not occupy an independent position, but his acts were merged in the acts of his official superior. At no time except during the occasional absence of the Solicitor did he ever decide a single question the answer to which had not been first suggested by Mr. Penrose. There were other clerks in this office who performed duties quite as important as those performed by Mr. Brinley; but in all cases the business was prepared under the direction of the Solicitor, and afterwards submitted to him to be modified or changed by the Solicitor, and always in accordance with his previous suggestions.

In addition to this such questions as were most difficult were reserved for the Solicitor's own investigation and decision. Where the subject was very important, Mr. Penrose did not deem it consistent with his duty to hand it over to one of his clerks, but gave it his personal consideration. There is no such "officer" as "Law Clerk of the Treasury Department;" the legal adviser of this Department is the Solicitor of the Treasury to whom are addressed all such questions as involve points of law. Mr. Brinley was merely a clerk in this office. Though efficient and possessing considerable legal acquirements, and faithfully performing the duties of his subordinate station, any one who is acquainted with the organization of the Departments at Washington must smile at his being called the "Law Officer of the Government."

We hope Mr. Chandler will correct the mistake into which he has doubtless unintentionally fallen, and not injuriously deprive Mr. Penrose of that share of credit which by his long and arduous services as Solicitor of the Treasury he is so justly entitled.

MELANCHOLY AFFAIR.—We regret to learn from the Harrisburg papers, that three persons, formerly of this borough, became involved in a quarrel on Thursday last a week, which led to the death of a citizen of that place. From the following particulars, which we take from the "Telegraph," it will be seen that this distressing event, just as fully nine-tenths of the crimes, casualties and murders which we hear of, is the legitimate result of the use and traffic in intoxicating drinks. When will society be rid of this murderous and monstrous evil?

The "Telegraph" says: Yesterday morning three men, Nicholas Shambarger, the keeper of a tavern in Walnut street, in this borough, near the canal, his son-in-law, Frederick Callio, and a man named Isaac Hawn, the keeper of an oyster room in the basement of the tavern, were arrested and brought before Justice Kline, and by him committed to prison on a charge of beating and so maltreating George W. Brooks, so as to cause his death.

It appeared from the evidence before a jury, held by the Coroner upon the body of Brooks, that on Thursday night last, the deceased was in the tavern of Shambarger, and was quite turbulent, as was usually the case with him when on a spree. Shambarger attempted to put him out, and a quarrel ensued, in which both the others joined against Brooks, who was very severely handled and very much bruised.

Brooks left the house, but shortly after returned, when he was again fallen upon by the three, and it is supposed would have been killed, had it not been for the interference of some persons who happened to come in. Brooks then went home, lingered until the next Tuesday morning when he died. A post mortem examination was made by Doctors Seiler and Dock, whose testimony before the jury of inquest, left no doubt that the death of Brooks was caused by the injuries he received from the hands of Shambarger, Callio, and Hawn.

We learn that Shambarger and Callio have since been released on bail. Hawn still remains in prison.

TRADE.—Caroline.—The forty-first annual Convention of the Episcopal Church of the Diocese of Pennsylvania assembled at Philadelphia on Tuesday last. Sixty-seven clergymen and one hundred and forty-four lay delegates answered to their names as members of the body. Rev. Dr. Lyman, was chosen President, and G. M. Whitton, Esq., Secretary. The principal business before the Convention was the election of a Bishop, in place of Bishop Onderdonk, resigned. Considerable interest was manifested in the Election, the Convention being almost equally divided in favor of the two prominent candidates. On the first ballot, which took place on Thursday, Rev. Dr. Samuel Bowman, of Lancaster, received 87 votes, and Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, of Philadelphia, 35 votes. Dr. Bowman's vote fell, two votes short of a choice. Three other balloting were had without success, and a fifth balloting being ordered, Mr. Bowman received 39 votes—the number required for a choice. Dr. Bowman's nomination was not however, confirmed by the lay-members, and he is therefore the Bishop-elect of the diocese of Pennsylvania. The Convention adjourned on Saturday.
