Polttteal. From the Baltimore American.

THE OUT-GOING DYNASTY.

Mr. Polk's Administration, now draw ing to a close, has been signalized by remakable events, which while they mast give it a prominent place in history, will have the curious effect also of illustrating the mediocrity of the man.

The President's friends will claim that his Administration has been highly successful, yet they must admit that he early lost the confidence of his supporters and never regained it. No voice in the Convention of his party was raised for his renomination. He passes now from public life without eliciting from any quarter an expression of regret. Indeed the general sentiment seems to be that in moving from his present position to the obscure range of private life and its occupations, he is going into a conge-nual sphere where his abilities will find a theatre better fitted for their useful exercise than that upon which he has been for some time acting-where his good qualities will appear to better advantage and where his mistakes will do less harm It is a perilous post for any man to occupy-that of the Presidency of the United States. For an inferior man it is fatal. No nominations of Conventions, no majorities of popular votes, can save one of that sort from the terrible ordeal of that inexorable judgment which tests the inmost quality of mind and heart— that judgment of the public, which, knowing no sympathy for individuals, can yet pardon any thing but weakness. Mr. Polk is unfortunate in being af-Mr. Polk is unfortunate in being afflicted with that unpardonable fault. He exhibited it early, and he exhibited along a shrinking timidity at the crisis. Lamentable defects, these-and most lamentable in his position.

The Oregon business disclosed the man to the whole nation. He has never b en able to look the public in the face since that. And yet that very business which proved his political ruin, might have been made, if he he had been an abler and a braver man, the sure means of the most brilliant success. It uses not suit the American character to back out in any thing; and when the President of the United States had declared to the world that our title to the whole of Cregon was "clear and unquestionable," nothing remained but to hold on to it, and make it good to the letter .---There would have been no war; for nothing would have been easier than for our Government to have satisfied every scruple of British honor and every claim of British right by an ample pecuniary compensation to the Hudson's Bay Company for all their property and interests that had accumulated or grown up during the joint occupancy.

The readiness to yield to England was placed in a most unfavourable contrast for Mr. Polk, by the eager promptitude with which he enforced the utmost of a doubled claim against Mexico. Succumbing to a powerful adversary, he bullied a weak one. The war followed-a war fulbof brilliant successes. But none of these could make Mr. Polk a great man. But they disclosed to the nation other great men-particularly one, whose laurels gave their own tint of green to the eyes of his Excellency. The people beheld with astonishment and indignation this suc-cessful General—this here after their own heart—this sturdy upholder of the stars and the stopes amid the smoke and carnage of repeated battles—stripped of his best troops in the heart of the emerliant successes. But none of these could

THE NIAGARA SHOWER-BATH.

An entirely new Article for Shower-Bathing, with warm or cold Water.

30-THIS Bath took the premium at the Fair of the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, October 1848, the only Bath that ever took a premium at that institute and also took the first premium at the Fair of the Maryland Institute, Novem-ber 1949. ber 1848.

A great and important improvement is made in this Shower-bath over all others, by throwing the water immediately on the body, without wotting the head, unless at the will or pleasure of the bather; but-a greater point is gained by being enabled to bathe with warm water, which no other Shower-Bath is adapted to—and most of all the Bath can be medicated without injury to the hair.
