If you can find a few evergreens to Mayn't I go father ?" mingle with the rest, and a few sprouts of locust, you can make almost an Eden of your little door-yard, at a cost of a few mornings labor. Five years hence, you would not part with these cheaply purchased embelhahments for a hundred door of an ancient couple: times the labor.

I wonder if you have any rose bushes about your premises? If you have not your neighbors have, and I know they would not grude a few small roots, that by a little care will, in a few years, add much to the beauty of your homes: A climbing rose, trained over the window, pay in perfumery for the little trouble they cost; and any of your friends who possess them will be happy to aid you if they see you bent on improving your grounds. A small slip of honey-suckle that would be trimmed off and thrown away as useless pruning, can be buried in the same manner that grapo slips are, and in a few years you will have a beautiful vine to embellish your arbor. By the way don't forget how easily grapes are cultivated, and what a luxury ey offerd.
