CAUSES OF FAILURE IN BUSINESS.

It is said by political economists that a very large majority brallmen who enter into mercantile business sooner or later fail. A writer in the Providence Journal makes some calculations to show that the failure of nine-tenths is directly attributable rather to a profuse expenditure of their gains in living beyond their incomes, and in rashly extended operations, undertaken to sustain such a career, than to the generally unrequiting nature of business pursuits. This is undoubtedly the truth, and it sufficiently accounts, without reckoning the the influence of other social and moral causes, for the unequal distribution of property, which is the occasion of so much jealousy and heart burning among our jenlous and over sensitive countrymen. It appears by a recent statistical report that one half of the whole property of Providence, with a population of 40,000, is in the hands of 175 individuals! And if the enquiry could be pushed a little further, it would probably be found that most of these individuals have been through life men of frugal and industrious habits and moderate desires. The subject is one of general interest, and we commend the follow ing extract from the communication in the Journal, to young men of business.

"It will be found on investigation that the large estates of the 175 individuals, who possess one half of the whole property in this city, have been solely acquired by persevering diligence and economy, rather than by bold enterprise; which, when successful, induces reckless habits. like success in drawing the prizes in a

Every one becomes surprised in examining the Annuity Tables in familiar use in the offices of Life Insurance Companies, at the astonishing aggregate amount of the daily expenditures of small sums when compounded with interest, and finally summed up at the termination of a long life, as exhibited in the following abstract:

Table showing the aggregate value with com-

pount interest.
n 40 cars.
,540
3,085 1,620
6,100
7,700 5.400
0.800
5,200
1,600 7,000

By reference to the preceding table, it appears that if a laboring man, a mechanic, unnecessarily expends only 23 cents per day, from the time he becomes of age to the time he attains the age of three score and ten years, the aggregate, with interest, amounts to $2900; and a daily expenditure of 27½ cents, amounts to the important sum of $29,000. A six cent piece saved daily, would provide a fund of nearly $7,000, sufficient to purchase a fine farm. There are few mechanics who cannot save daily, by abstaining from the disgusting use of tobacco, from ardent spirits, from visiting theatres, &c., twice or thrice the above stated amount of a six cent piece. The man in trade, who can gether in the same school, or shared in the dred and sixteen thousand dollars, and come when he would be what he is, and we own some one half of the property of the infamy. Yet such is Life! Thank God that city of Providence.

If we examine the particular case to which reference has been made, we shall find that this man now so rich, was once a poor young man, like thousands who now surround him in the population of this city, and his extraordinary wealth,

The true value of money consists in Economy becomes

All day Thad been drinking—
And as midnight chimes were chinking,
From the dirty-twern silinking,
Off I started, homeward bound.
Staggering through the muddy ditches
For it rained like twenty witches,
And twest darker, too, than pitch is—
I at last it shelter found,
Sung I lay, within my quarters,
Gind to scape the mud and water
Which find daubed me o'eg with mortar,
As I staggered through the rain;

Stiffed grunts and hideous growlings,
O'er my head incossant rolling,
All the while that I was falling,
Filled my breast with feelings dire;
Still I swiftly kept descending,
'Till I lost all thoughts of landing,
But at last I "brought up standing,'
In the pit of smoke and fire!

There his Majesty Satanic Grimly sat with form gigantic, Gazing on the fearful panic Which my presence did create 'Mong his household's youthful members, Who were wakened from their slumbers, When I tumbled in the embers, And so loudly cursed my fate.

Sudden from his seat upspringing,
While the rrr with yells was ringing,
Ills huge arms around me flinging,
Close to him my form he clasped!
As my "pluck" was rather tender;
This completely raised my "dander,"
And amid the roar of thunder,
Tightly to his beard I grasped!

Lightfing from his eyes was gleaning,
And oh: such a horrid screaming!
It awoke me—I'd been freaming—
After all I had hot fell:
Then I wildly gazed around me,
At the place where I had found me,
Yet the scene did much confound me;
Where I was I could not tell.

But I saw a hideous creature— Narrowly I scanned each feature; Could this be the awful screecher That I saw amid the sinoke; Oh: protect me, shade of Gunter! "I'was T'NASTY OLD SHE GUNYER!— With a score of squeakens round her, Whose sweet slumbers I had broke.

Softly from my "quarters" sneaking.
Without one "good evening" speaking,
I left the young "wirmints" squasking,
And their dirty mansion quit.
But since then I've left my "bitters,"
For they tore me into fritters,
And I fear the "narnal critters,"
And THE VOICES OF THE PIT.

A Lesson for Young Men.

The editor of the Methodist Protestant of Baltimore, concludes a notice of the murder recently committed by John Price, with the following touching remarks:

"Price is a notorious character, well known in our midst as "City John." The writer of this was a school fellow with him, and remembers "John Price" when he was a playful, happy little boy. It is painful to think of the changes that have come over that smooth faced child. All our recollections of him are those of boyhood. Many a time have we sighed in spirit as we read in the newspapers and police reports the evidences of his deepening depravity, and his heartless abandonment of all that was lovely and of "good report." It is said that this is the fourth case in which death has been laid to his charge. How this may be we know not, but his name has long been associated with deeds of riot and infanty. Price is said to be gentle and easily man aged-a fellow of good heart in the sense in which men of the world use that phrasewhen sober-but when in liquor he becomes a perfect fiend. Drinking and gaming have doubtless brought him to his present condition. What a lesson is here for young men to study! Who that had looked upon the writer of this and John Price as they sat tolay by about one dollar per day, will find amusement of the same play 'ground, could himself similarly possessed of one hun- have predicted that the time would have numbered among the 165 rich men who be writing with a sad heart the story of hi his grace has kept us from the wine cup, from the gaming table, and from the remorse of murderer's conscience!"

Four thousand dollars a year is not an uncommon expenditure for merchants in this and other cities. Half a century ago, five hundred dollars would have been regarded as a sufficient expenditure.

The difference between these two sums for fifty years, with the accumulation of compound interest, reaches the enormous amount of over one million of dollars. Extend the time eleven years, and this sum, groat as it is, becomes doubled.

The proceding calculations are sufficient to encourage hope of eventful success and independence in the bosom of every young man, who, on commencing business, will maintain a determined resolution to combine, industry with economy, the opposite result of bankrupt business, will maintain a determined resolution to combine, industry with economy, the opposite result of bankrupt of the process of an investricted indulgence in shory habits of dress and of living is should cause the failure of nine tenths of the men who embark in Dusiness, and involve also the prudent and careful, on the men who embark in Dusiness, and involve also the prudent and careful, on the men who embark in Dusiness, and involve also the prudent and careful, on the men who embark in Dusiness, and the men who embark in Dusiness, and involve also the prudent and careful, or involve also the prud CILAROLVIANO EStore,

THE NIAGARA SHOWER-BATH. An entirely new Article for Shower-Bathing, with warm or cold Water.

307 THIS Bath took the premium at the Fair of the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, October 1848, the only Bath that ever took a promium at that institute and also took the first premium at the Fair of the Maryland Institute, November 1848

A great and important improvement is made in this Shower-bath over all others, by throwing the water immediately on the body, without wetting the head, unless at the will or pleasure of the bather; but a greater point is gained by being enabled to bathe with warm water, which no other Shower-Bath is adapted to—and most of all the Bath can be medicated without injury to the hair.
