The coldness of worldly restraint was broken down; they exchanged vows of everlasting fidelity, and Thomas was about to seal the covenant on her lovely lips, when the man that goes about to gather up the empty glasses, unceremoniously poked his head into the box, and observed, "that he did not allow them sorts of proceedings in his garden !" Thomas Augustus would have resented this injurious insinuation on the instant, only he was by 10 means athletic, and did not possess a particle of courage. He, therefore, contented himself with declaiming for some time in a style of lofty invective, and wound up by indignantly paying the man what he owair for causes which were to be found upon earth, ascribed these intimations to supernatural agency.

John Hunter has solved the mystery, if mystery it can be called, in a single sen tence : 'We sometimes,' he says, 'feel with in ourselves that we shall not live, for the living power becomes weak, and the nerves communicate the intelligence to the brain. His own case has often been quoted among the marvels of which he afforded the rational explanation. He intimated on leaving home that if a discussion which awaited him at the hospital took an angry turn, it would prove his death. A colleague gave him the lie. The coarse word verified the prophecy, and he expired almost immediately in an adjoining room. There was every thing to arcent in the circumstance, but nothing at which to wonder, except that any individual could show such disrespect to the great genus, a single year of whose existence was worth the united lives of his opponents .----

Hunter, on entering the prediction, had only to take counsel of his own experience, with out the intervention of invisible' spirits. He had long labored under a disease of the heart and he felt the disorder had reached the point at which any sharp agitation would bring or the crisis. A memorable instance of the weakness which accompanies the greatness of man, when an abusive appellation could, extinguish one of the brightest lights that ever illumined science. No discoverer has lett more varied titles to fame, and none has given more abundant evidence that he would have added to the number the longer he liv-

Persons in health have died from the exectation of dying. It was once common for hose who perished by violence to summo their destroyers to appear within a stastated time before the tribunal of God; and we have many perfectly allested instances n which through the united influence of fea d remorse, the perpetrators withered "un der the offices and died. Pestilence does no kill with the rapidity of terror. The profit gate abbers of a convent, the Princes Gone Archbishop of Rheims, took it into their heads, for a jest, to visit one of the nuns by hight, and exhort her as a person who was visibly dying. While in the performance of their hearliess scheme they whispered lo

Let any one ask himself where he obtained his knowledge of any particular fact. He is probably unable to tell, because it came si-

ently, unpretendingly, in the newspaper. The same is true in regard to our best moral impressions and sentiments. They have been suggested, reiterated and fastened on the mind by the family press. The pulpit does much; parental instruction, in manycases, does much ; but the press more than either, often more than both. Let any reader. of a well conducted family paper, open its pages and consider thoughtfully its contents There are in a single number sometimes tom one hundred and fifty to two hundred seperate and distinct articles, each one conveying an idea, a fact, or a sentiment, and stated or illustrated so as to produce an effect in enlarging the reader's store of knowledge or giving a right direction to thought, feeling and action. Must not all this have its influence, and in the aggregate a mighty influ ence upon the reader? We think so. No reflecting man can fail to see that the filty two visits in a year of a carefully conducted paper, intelligent, correct, elevated in moral tone, and withat interesting in its contents, must exert a great and blessed juffu ence upon domestic life. Children growing up under such influences, are far more likely to be intelligent, correct in their opinions and morals, and better prepared for the active duties of life, than they could possibly have been without it.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY .- It has been discovared in England, that the golden sulphuret of antimony mixed with India rubber, and sub mitted to the action of heat at 208, in a boiler under pressure, from four to six hours, will produce what is known as metallic rubber, afer which the goods will resist the action of extremes of heat and cold, yet retain for indefinite time, a much greater degree of elasticity than those produced by the melting of sulphur with lead mixed with rubber. Fabrics prepared according to this invention can be made o take all the most delicate tints of color quite free from the odor of sulphur. so objecionable in other modes of vulcanising. REMARKABLE PRESERVATION OF A HOG .---The Easton Whig relates that a Hog belongng to George Hower, Esq., of Allen townuhip, was accidentally buried under a stack of straw in his yard on the 13th of October last. Additional straw was thrown on the the stack from time to time, until the 24th of December, when the animal was found incredible as it may appear, the hog lived n that situation, without air, water, or anyhing to eat, except straw, for seventy-four. days 1. When the hog was lost it weighed. 250 ; when taken out of its confinement it was a mere skeleton not weighing more than 60 or 70 pounds.
