The Glorious Fourth. Another anniversary of our National Independence smiles upon us, and we are still a united if not a strictly harmonious people. Designing men have indeed dared with impunity to utter fierce threatenings of Distinion in our halls of Congress, but while the Capitol is agitated by the angry turmoil of faction and sectionalism, the great popular heart of the nation is as calm and tranquil, as though it felt that silence administers the strongest rebuke to disturbers of the national peace.

The great interests of our people are not all prospering. The large manufacturing and industrial interests are suffering—to our shame as well as our ruin be it. said—from an unequal competition threatenings of Disunion in our halls of 4th of July. We believe there is to be no general celebration of the day by our community. There will be no celebration by either political party. Several of the Sunday schools we understand are making preparations for appropriate festivities, and their pleasures will be shared by many of a larger growth. The farmer will be happier no where than in his teeming fields, and to the politician we would commend a thoughtful perusal of the great charter of our liberties that his patriotism may be deepened and his course made consistent with genuine republican principles.

Report of the Visiting Committee of the Common Schools.

To the Public.—Since the organization of our schools, under the present system, it has been customary at the annual examination of the public for the Board of Directors to appoint a visiting committee, whose duty it is, to take part in the examination, criticise, make suggestions if necessary, and give a report to the public of the progress, and condition of the schools. These duties were placed on the undersigned for the examinations of the present year, which have just terminated; and that which we have now to fulfil, in giving a report to the public, we can perform with great pleasure, speaking in terms of merited praise, and at the same time, in the language of candor and truth. To THE PUBLIC. - Since the organization of the mind. It is here that the intellect begins to send fortheits shoots, and habits of investiga-tion are first extablished. The pupils commence with the alphabot, and are taken on, until they have made some progress in spelling, and reading; when they are transferred into the second grade.

The duties of the teachers in this grade of schools, are not only onerous, but so monoto-nous as to excite sympathy in their behalf. It is a dull and wearisoms task, to go over the alphabet and the same spelling and reading les-cons, day after day, with children that pay as little attention as possible to their books. The exercise of the teacher in these schools, is alexercise of the teacher in these schools, is almost entirely mechanical,—impressing matters that are retained only in the memory,—and having no really intellectual efforts connected with the office, but that of devising the best manner of instruction. The persons who have this labor to undergo, should be looked upon kindly by the community, for their duties are among the most importantivet most oppressive. They lay the foundation of the education, at the heaviest labor is always required when the s properly done.

The examinations of this grade of schools were gratifying, but the manner of instruction were gratifying, but the manner of instruction we think is probably capable of improvement. If there is any defect in the operation of the Common Schools it is in the Primary Department. The scholars of the higher grades answer promptly and correctly in the motor advanced studies, while they sometimes appear to be deficient in the first lessons of instruction. The only way that suggests itself to us for the correction of this evil, is for the teachers of the Primary Schools never to let an error pass, but to make a firm pause and a determined effort to correct'it, and to labour until it is corrected. to correct it, and to labour until it is corrected. Possibly, we are proposing an experiment that is impracticable—but we see the ovii—and we can discover no other remedy and it may at least be worth the trial. The task imposed is a difficult one, and adds graftly to the heavy labors already required, but for the sake of the superstructure, the foundation should be well laid.

We do not mean to intinuate by these remarks, that the examinations in this grade of schools, were not oreditable. They were probably superior to the examinations of schools generally of this class, and certainly all has been done that could be expected of teachers, with their number of number of superior thinks. But we think been done that could be expected of teachers, with their number of pupils. But we think there is a great door open for improvement in them all,—which could be accomplished in our schools by lessoning the number of scholars. In regard, to the second grade of the Primary Department, much that has been said of the duties; labors, and studies of the first may also he repeated of it. The mind of the pupil is here, however, a little more developed, find the studies further advanced, and of course proportionably more interesting. When children the studies further advanced, and of course proportionably more interesting. When children enter this department, they are able to read distinctly in the Testament, the Fourth Class Reader, to spell in three syllables, and to study a satisfactory examination in the first three pages of Smith's Arithmetic. They are then further instructed in Writing, Spelling, Reading, Elements of Arithmetic, and the Elements of Geography; and in the Female High School they are also taught sewing.

they are also taught sewing.

The examinations in this grade-were gen The examinations in this grade were generally very gratifying, and ended with credit to the pupils and their teachers. We would venture one suggestion, however, to the teachers, the importance of which they are no doubt aware, and which we know may be difficult to bring into practical operation. The pupils are too rapid in their spelling and pronunciation of words. If the letters in the spolling, and the syllables and full sounds of the words were more distinctly uttered (which by a little additional care might probably be taught them) we conceive it would be a decided improvement in their training.

THE LARGEST AND CHEAPEST NEWSPAPER

Many very -logant specimens of needle work executed by the pupils, were exhibited in the Schools of Miss Wilson and Miss Wobber, belonging to this grade. They were greatly admired, and many compliments were passed on the little artists, and their teachient.

The committee would urgo, and strongly recomend, the immediate necessity and expediency of having seats in the Primary Department made with backs, so as to provent deformity and ill health.

It is to be regretted that some of the schools in both the 1st and 2d grades of the Primary Department, could not be divided. Some of them are so large as to be almost unmanageable, and if the teachers had a less number to instruct, the progress of the scholars would undoubtedly be much more rapid. As they are, the scholars attain all the proficiency, that can passibly be expected. There can be no complaint of the teachers—but the numbers they have in a great measure paralyze their efforts.

The Secondary Department is also divided into two grades. For admission into the first, the scholars are required to stand a satisfactory examination in the studies of the Primary Department. They are then instructed further in sections to see the selections, in Writing, Geopartment. They are then instructed further in spelling, to give definitions, in Writing, Geography, Arithmetic, Grammar, American and Ancient History. The schools included in this grade are those of Miss Main and Mr. Scaright. After they have gone through the course of instruction mentioned, and again passed a satisfactory examination, they are admitted into the second grade of the secondary department. In this, they take advanced steps in those bran-understand them.

The schools of Messrs. Eckles and Searight the schools of Messys. Lettles and Searight stand very high, and all, probably, is done, had can be done, in the discharge of their duty.—
They might however, we presume, make the attempt of correcting the error of the scholars, in depending too much on the memory, with success. We would also say, that they possess great facility in imparting instruction, and our great brotherhood, but though there are obstacles at the door, Freedom must triumph. Such are the prominent events models of their kind, and worthy of their great popularity. Their pupils displayed some ele

Perhaps we might here, without causing very serious offence to any of the pupils in the two different departments which we have mentioned, give a, slight preference in the examinations to the young ladies; and this remark may be extended also to the High Schools. We observed a readiness and accuracy in their answers which was partially curacy in their answers, which was partially, wanting in the Male Schools. If there wanting in the Male Schools. If there should, however, be any dispute between the sexes of the schools, in regard to their intelectual power, or whether there may not be a difference between quickness and solidity, aptness and strength, we leave those ques-aptness and strength, we leave those ques-tions for them to settle, when they come to maturity of years.

The High Schools, into which the pupils are next admitted (after the Secondary de-partment) leads them into new and higher partment) leads them into new and higher studies, and gives them more thorough exercises in those, than they had been pursuing in the schools below. Among others, they are trained in Critical Readings, Composition, Elocution, and enter upon the studies of Rhetoric, Natural and Moral Philosophy, Astronomy, Antiquities, Natural History, and Muthematics. Some of these studies are pursued to a greater extent in the Male High School, than in the Female. In the Female High School, Drawing and Ornamental Needlework, also form an agreeable and seful recreation.

These schools are under teachers of great These schools are under teachers of great ability and experience, who are untiring in their exertions to make their scholars proficient in all those branches which arm at usefulness and refinement. The examinations elicited general approbation; und the display of work by the pupils of the Female High School, received the praise of all who examined it. amined it.
. The remarks which we have thus made in commendation of nearly all the schools, have not been uttered in the spirit of flattery, but because we think they are called for by the merits of both teachers and pupils. think they are justified by having discovered, as we believe, a strenuous effort in the teachers, to make their pupils, in reality, scholars, and not merely to qualify them for display at the examinations. While this is the case, the Common Schools of Carlisle, will be a just source of pride to its citizens.

But there is a great duty resting upon every parent, which, if not performed, will render nugatory in a great degree, all the efforts of instructors and directors. It is incumbent on them to support the discipline of the schools, and thus to uphold the hands of the schools, and thus to upnote the halds of the faithful servants who are laboring for the welfare of their children. It is natural that a father's and mother's love should create strong partialities for the child, and frequently cause them to take the part of a young offender, when prudence and an en-lightened affection would dictate a different course. Directors may mark out the path of mental culture, and teachers may lead them along it, but if parents frown and censure, when discipline undertakes to correct way wardness and disobedience, all the efforts to instruct, will end only in obstinacy of character, contempt of education, and deba sing ignorance.

The greatest duty, however, that rests upon the parent; is in regard to the moral education of the child. The tutor may instruct in precepts, but the parent must teach in practice. Rules of conduct may be laid down for children, but they amount to little, unless they are illustrated and enforced in the conduct, and by the influence and authority rity of those under whose especial care God rity of those under whose especial care God has placed them. A very important part of education is acquired outside of the school-room, when from under the eye of the teach-er; and if this portion of the formation of character is neglected, and the passions are allowed to gain the ascendancy, intellect is smothered, conscience is drowned, and the precepts of books cannot save from ignoprecepts of books cannot save from igno-miny, and shame. If, then, the ducation of the youth of our town is to be perfected, and they are to be trained up into both mental and moral beings, the love of parents must look more to the future welfare, than the present pleasure and gratification of their children.

We cannot close this report without a few words in commendation of the disinterester labors and the efficient services of the Boar of Directors. A more active and faithful board, is probably not to be found in the State. Some of the members have for years given much of their time to the service of this people, without any compensation.

They have marked out the way for the education They have marked out the way for the education of the young—they have examined and selected the lest books to be used—they have monthly writed the schools—inquired into their progres and wants, and provided for the comfort of the pupils—they have assiduously watched over the welfare of every—thild that has been placed under their direction, and for all this they have received not and company company to the properties. But tion, and for all this they have received not one cent of pecuniary compensation. But there is too much reason to believe that they lack even the recompense that would be more gratifying to them, and edsily paid—the gratitude of the people. We are inclined to think, from what we have observed, that of all the thankless tasks that are too numerous in the world around us, that of the School Director is the most so. While some may feel grateful for their efforts, and their spirit of philanthropy, many are constantly ready of philanthropy, many are constantly ready to abuse and villify them, because they will not break their established rules, and destroy, the elements of their organization, to gratify supprecilious demands and ridiculous whims.

supercilious demands and ridiculous whichs. This should not be. It is well, if you have faithful servants, who give their labor gratuitously, without inflicting stripes upon them, for their natient endurance and toil.

In conclusion, the Committee must express the great pleasure they experienced in witnessing the performances at the exhibition given by the two High Schools on Friday evening. All the exercises were brilliant and entertaining. The compositions of the Young Ladies, displayed elegance of style, ight and research; and the addresses of the Young Men, both in their matter and manner of delivery, were highly creditable. The music we have seldem heard exceeded in molody. We were gratified to hear the evidence of a higher order of musical talent was a ware aware our town cossessed.

THE undersigned begs leave to inform the public, that he has recently purchased the WARM SPRINGS, in Perry County, Pennsylvania, and has improved and refurnished the buildings for the entertainment of visitors, in a style calculated to insure comfort and convenience to all who may feel disposed to patronize style calculated to insure comfort and convenione to all who may feel disposed to patronize the establishment.

These Springs are situated on the bank of, and empty into Sherman's Creek, a stream associated with the thrilling scenes between the early scultors of that parrof Pennsylvania and the aborigines, whose builting grounds lay on its margin. They are eleven miles from Carlisle, (through which the Cumberland Valley Railroad passes from Chambersburg to Harrisburg) from which place visitors can at all times obtain excellent conyeyances. Those also from the cast, wishing to reach the Spring by the Central Railroad can do so by taking passage to the Duncation. Iron Works, (thirteen miles distant from the Springs,) where coaches are constantly in readiness to convey them thithely
and those coming from the West on the same road, at all times obtain easy conveyances at the Railroad Hotel at Newport, which is but a fow miles distant from the Springs.

The qualities of the water of these Springs are most extraordinary indeed, for the speedy and permanent cure of Scrofulas, Eruptions of the Skin, and eyery species of Cutaneous discases. He has hundreds of certificates, showing the wonderful cures effected by using this water internally, and by bathing in it, obtained as well from strangers as from those residing in the immediate neighborheod of the Springs, who have not only experienced the infallible officacy of the water themselves, but have witnessed the same upon others. Prof. James C.
Booth has analyzed the waters, and found them to contain 9-2 grains of solid matter in the gallon, which is composed as follows:

Years ago the property fell into the hands of a number of heirs, who were indisposed to undertake the responsibility of making it a place of public entertainment, as business;—probably, because the patronage of the public would not have justified the undertaking, as at that time, thefore the spirit of public improvements by Canals and Railroade had rendered distant and difficult points of spicedy and cheap access,) its location was out had rendered distant and difficult points of speedy and cheap access,) its location was out of the way, and the roads to it rough and almost impassable. At the death of Mr. Kennedy it fell into the hands of heirs, neither of whom seemed disposed to take hold of it, but leased it to tenants, more for the cultivation of the land, than a regard to the use of the water.—
It was finally rented to Mr. Hipple, (now proprietor of a large Hotel, in Tremont, Pennsylvania,) who made arrangements to accommodate the public; and during his term, many invalids availed themselves of this opportunity to visit and test its medical qualities. Mr. Hipple, however-retired in a short time, and the property again foll into the hands of the heirs, visit and test its medical qualities. Mr. Hipple, however, retired in a short time, and the property again foll into the hands of the heirs, and remained so, until proceedings were instituted in the Orphans' Court, by they heirs, for its sale. It was then sold, and the subscriber-became the purchaser. With the exception of the short time it was held by Mr. Hipple, it remained in the hands of the heirs without any efforts to bring it into notice.

The country round the Springs and neighborhood is diversified by cultivation, and is beautifully wild and picturesque in seenery, abounding in game, while the stream passing through the property affords fine fishing. Every attention will be paid to the confort and convenience of guests, and the charges so moderate, that all may avail themselves of the benefits of the Water. iat all may avail themselves of the benefits in Water.
