GEN. JACKSON AND MR. WEBSTER. A REMINISCENCE.

In Mr. Charles W. March's new volume, entitled, "Reminiscences of Congress," we find the following sketch of a confidental understanding that formerly existed between Gen. JACKSON and Mr. WEBSTER. - It will be interesting to the friends of both parties :

"Gen. Jackson took an early opportunity to express in person to Mr. Webster, his sincere gratitude for the eminent services rendered by that gentleman, in such a peril-ous moment, to his administration; and Mr. Livingsion, the Secretary of State, repeatedly, and in warm terms, made his own ac-knowledgments besides. In truth, it was-genceded everywhere that; but for the efforts of Mr. Webster, and of the friends who rallied under him, the administration would have under him; the administration would have fallen into a powerless and pitiable condition; an object of opprobrium to its friends, and of safe insult to its foes.

"A community of sentiment and action, in this fearful crisis of our national history, brought Gen. Jackson and Mr. Webster into activities in times, second and whitest them." in this fearful crisis of our national history, brought Gen. Jackson and Mr. Webster into stricter intimacy, social and political, than had previously ever subsisted between them. Some of the General's friends hoped, and more feared, a closer official relationship—In May of this year, Mr. Webster journeyed West; returning in June, he met Mr. Livingston in New York, then preparing to depart on his mission to France. It was understood at this time, in private and confidential circles, that before leaving Washington, Mr. Livingston had not frequent and earnest conversations with Gen. Jackson in relation to Mr. Webster's position; and that he had urged upon him the absolute necessity of securing Mr. Webster's continued support of his administration. To his suggestions, Gen. Jackson gave a favorable ear and acquiesence; and authorized Mr. Livingston to approach Mr. Webster upon the subject, These conversations and their result, Mr. Livingston, in his interview with him in New. York, communicated to Mr. Webster. That a seat in the Cabinet was at the same time proposed to Mr. Webster, on the part of the President, through the same medium of communication, was a belief warmly entertained by some of the nearest friends of both nation. was a belief warmly entertained by some of the nearest friends of both parties. One fact it is allowable to mention; a distinguished Senator, a political and personal friend of Gen. Jackson, brought Mr. Webster a list of the intended nominees for offices in the Eas-ter States, and asked him to erase therefrom the names of any personally objectionable to him. This Mr. Webster declined to do, not wishing to place himself under any obliga-tions to the administration, that might quality the freedom of his action, either in support or

tions to the administration, that might quality the freedom of his action, either in support or refination of its measures.

On many points of what was then the proposed policy of the administration, there was no marked difference of opinion between was, no marked difference of opinion between, these two eminent men; in its foreign policy, particularly, they almost entirely concurred; but there was a radical and fatal difference on the great question of the currency. The measures Gen, Jackson thought it necessary to take to prevent pecuniary loss to the country from the unchecked operations of the U. States Bank, did not meet Mr. Webster's concurrence. Indeed, the removal of the government denosites from that institution. concurrence. Indeed, the removal of the government deposites from that institution, however justifiable on the ground of expediency or even necessity, was a measure of such formidable energy, as to confound some of the General's longest tried and not most timid supporters. It encountered Mr. Webster's apparation, and even depurcation. opposition, and even denunciation. And this honest difference of opinion, in regard to a matter of temporary importance, prevented the union of the two master spirits of the age, and blasted the patriotic hopes of the

Not that both did not possess mental and moral characteristics of the same nature; but some one quality would appear more prominent in one, and some other quality, equally distin-guished in the other; but more brilliant from

"History records few instances of more adamantine will and inflexibility of purpose, than characterized Andrew Jackson. Napoleon himself had not greater, nor more intui-tive knowledge of men, or far reaching saga-city. What he willed he accomplished; his ind never faltered, and his purpose never changed.

"He has got up on the stauesque model of a hero of Plutarch. His qualities were all clearly and boldly defined; but without extravagance or deformity. There was nothing common place in his character or thought. He acted and spake with the freshness and power of genius. He dared everything; yet to his dauntless nature there was added a haughtiness of spirit that withheld him from vulgar strife. He rushed to his purpose like a torrent from the mountain; no obstacle could retard his course, nor opposition restrain his impetuosity. The fiery vehemence of his will swept everything before it. Men gazed at its resistless career, and gave way, overcome with apprehension. To oppose him was to encounter destiny.

him was to encounter destiny.

"Such a determined will and fearless nature, with attendant power, wanted but di rection to accomplish miracles of good. "Such direction could have been found in "Such direction could have been found in Mr. Webster, whose comprehensiveness of view, calmness of deliberation, sagacity, and singleness of purpose, had admirably qualified him for a controlling adviser. His intellectual majesty would have secured the admiration of his great ally, and tempered the vehemence of his action. He would have had the mind to plan what the other would have had the heart to execute. He would have hear the apprisent give directions of the security of the direction and have hear the apprisent give directions the security of the been the engineer to give direction and speed to the locomotive; regulating its power, according to the obstacles to be overcome, or the thing to be accomplished.

Splendid Locomotive.

The Baltimore and Susquehanna Railway Company have recently had placed on their road a new Locomotive. It is finished in all particulars in a first rate style. It has four drivers, five feet in diameter; driven by cylinders fourteen inches in diameter, and eighteen inches stroke. The principal feature in the construction of this engine consists in an improved valve gear, designed by George W. Fulton, of Baltimore. By this contrivance, the whole control of the engine, viz: stopping, starting, backing, as well as regulating the speed in either direction, is concentrated in one handle. This arrangement, requiring the accentric to be set " without lead," the valve is so arranged that a portion of the exhaust steam is received into the opposite end of the cylinder, and immediately out off there, fulfilling all the purposes of "the lead," and further saving that portion of steam usually lost in the side pipe and clearance of the cylinder. Another advantage consists in the saving of the wear of the valve in running down grade, as it can instantly be made motionless, without throwing out of gear, as is usually the case. In reversing the engine, the gear acts without a jar or concussion of any kind, as by merely moving the bar from one extreme to the other, the steam is gradually shut off, and as gradually let on to the opposite side of the piston.

The great peculiarity and excellence of Dr. Christie's Galvanic Curatives, consists, in the fact that they arrises and cure disease by sutmord application, in place of the usual mode of drugging and physicking the putient, till exhausted Nature sinks hopelessly under the indiction.

They strengthen the whole system, equalize the circulation of the blood, promote the secretions, and never do the slightest injury under any circumstances. Since their introduction in the United States only three years since, more than me what has been the result in my own case, of the application of THE GALVANIC BELT AND NECKLACE My reply is as follows:

For about thereby years I had been suffering from Byspenia. Every year the symptoms become worse, nor could lobtain permanent relief from any course of medical treatment whatever. About fourteen years since, in the discharge of my pastoral duties, I became subject to exercise thronic Rheumatism, which for year after year caused me indescribable anguish. Farther: in the winter of 46 and 46, in consequence of preaching a great dea, in my own and various other churches in this region, it was attacked by the Bronchitis, which soon become so severe as to require an immediate suspension of my pastoral dators. My nervour system was now throughly prostrated, and as my Brouchitis became worse, so also did my Dyspepsis and Rheumatic affection—thus evincing that these disorders were connected with each other through the medium of the Nervous System. In the whole pharmacopesia there seemed to be no remedial agent which could reach and recupera. my Nervous System; every thing that I had tried for this purpose had completely failed. At last I was led by my friends to examine your inventions, and (though with no very sangulas hopes of their efficiency.) I determined to try the effect of the application of the GALVANIC BELT AND NETRLACE, with the MAGNETIC FLUID. This was in June, 1846. I have recommended the BELT and FLUID to many who have been likewise suffering from Neuralgic affections. They have treated from with HAPPY RESULES, I EMERYEY, IN FERRY

"A. H. Chenevie, M. D.—Dear Sir: One of my patients, unknown to me, obtained your Galcanic Bell and Nechlace, with the Magnetic Fluid, for a serious affection of Deafness. The case was that of a lady whose Norrous system was much disordered, and her general health poor. Much was done previously to the application of the left; but with vary little success, and I feel it only right to tell you, that since she commenced wearing the Bell and using the Fluid, but a few weeks say, she has ENTIRELY RECOVERED HER HEARING, and her general health is better than for several years."
