The Mother's Reward.

I saw a little cloud rising in the western horizon. In a few moments it spread over the expanse of heaven, and watered the earth with a general shower. I saw a little rivulet start from a mountain winding its way through the valley and the meadow, receiving each tributary rill that it met on its course, till it became a mighty stream, bearing on its bosom the merchandise of many nations, and the adjacent country. I saw a little seed dropped into the earth. The dews descended, and the sun rose upon it; it started into lite. In a little time it spread its branches and became a shelter from the heat, " and the fowls of heaven lodged in its branches."

I saw a little smiling boy stand by the side of his mother, and heard him repeat from her lips one of the sweet songs of Zion. I saw him kneel at her feet, and pray that Jesus would bless his dear parents-the world of mankind, and keep him from temptation. In a little time I saw him with the books of the classics under his arm, walking alone buried in deep thought. I went into a Sabbath school, and heard him saying to a little group that surrounded him. "Suffer little children to come unto me." Long after, I went into the sanctuary and heard him reasoning of "righteousness, and temperance, and the judgment to come." I looked, and saw that same mother, at whose feet he had knelt, and from whose lips he had learned to lisp the name Immanuel. Her hair was whitened with the frost of winter, and on her cheek was many a furrow; but meekness sat on her brow, and heaven beamed in her dim eye glistening with a tear; and I thought I saw in that tear the moving of a mother's heart, while she reverted to days gone by; when this Boanerges was first drawing into life hanging on her lips, listening to the voice of instruction, and inquiring in childlike simplicity, the way to be good, and I said:—This is the rich harvest of a mother's toil; these are the goodly sheaves of that precious seed which probably was sown in weeping; and your gray hairs shall not be "brought down with sorrow to the grave," but in the bower of rest you shall look down on him who will arise and call you blessed," and finally greet you where hope is swallowed up in fruition and prayer in praise.

Early Training of Children.

It was a charge given to the King o Israel to "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it. "

Observation and experience have con firmed the truth of the declaration to every careful observer, and urge upon parents and all who may have charge o the young, the necessity of a close attention to a subject of such vital importance to mankind, and which may affect the welfare of millions of the human race. It not unfrequently occurs that persons convicted of crime of the grossest character, reflect upon their parents, as not having discharged their duty to them in early life, by enforcing upon their young and tender minds the importance of carefully observing the law o God, which cannot be broken without in curring the penalty affixed. Parents cannot confer grace upon their children .-This comes from a higher source; but they may by precept and example, which have a most powerful influence over young and tender minds, be led in paths of the strictest moral rectitude, and the precepts of the Divine law become so nstilled into their minds as to be obser ved through life, and never disregarded. Hanny, indeed, is the condition of such; and doubly so when viewed in connection with those, who, for the want of early and parental care, to train them up in the way they should go, have choesn the downward road that leadeth to destruction."

Use Sin.—Use sin as it will use you : spare it not, for it will not spare you: i is your murderer and the murderer of the world; use it, therefore, as a murderer should be used. Kill it before it kills you and though it kill your bodies, it shall not be able to kill your souls; and though it bring you to the grave, as it did your Head, it shall not be able to keep von there. If the thought of death, and rottenness be not pleasant to you, hearken to every temptation to sin as you would hearken to a temptation to self murder, as you would if the devil bro't you a knife and tempted you to cut your throat with it; so do when he offers to you the lait of sin. You love not death -love not the cause of death-Baxter.

The greater the submission, the more grace. If there be one hollow in the valley lower than another thither do the waters gather. The more lowly we are in our own eyes, the more levely we are in the sight of God. When to our selves we are acceptable, we are unworthy; let us be lowly. Job was coming near to the blessing when he said, " I am vile what shall I answer thee?"-R.

The belief that guardian spirits hover around the paths of men, covers a mighty truth; for every beautiful, pure od thought the heart holds, is an angel of mercy, purifying and guarding the soul.

MITCHELL'S SCHOOL GEOGRAPHY & ATLAS, a system of modern Geography, comprising a description of the present state of the world and its five great divisions. Embellished with numerous engravings and illustrated by an excellent Atlas containing 28 handsome and accurate colored maps. This series of Geography by S. Augustus Mitchell has been wholly or partly introduced into the public and private—schools—of all the principal cities and towns of the United States; and after a full and fair trial of its merits in these schools, it has received an almost universal recommendation.

THE SPILLING BOOK.

Consisting of words in columns and sentences for oral and written exercises. It is a complete and systematic series of exercises in English pritingraphy.

This likely popular series of reading books, and this spelling book were compiled by Mr. M. D. Swap, of Boston, and judging from the rapid introduction into schools which they have obtained in the Eastern and Middle States and in many of the Western and Southern States, we think they are really better adapted to the wants of teachers and sendonrs than any other yet published. The publishers have a very large number of recommendations from public school committees, teachers and others friendly to edu-
