turned his back, that on opening the door his face might not at first be seen - he proceeded face might not at first be seen—he proceeded to take of what they hospitably set before him. Mentioning that he came from Rockes-ter, N. Y., our friend was at once questioned if he knew one there whose name was R— "Oh, yes, I know him well," was the reply— "He is a hatter in the city, and made my hat,"—showing it with the maker's name in-side. "Well," said the mother, "you must give me the lining, at my rate, for it is a long time since we have seen our son."

At this our friend could not further hesitate to make himself known-and what followed all can well imagine.-Rural New Yorker.
